Big Bill Means It.
Gold Nugget Turkey.
Chicago's Plans.
J. P. M. and U. S. Steel.

By ARTHUR G. BRISBANE

(Copyright, 1927.)

CHICAGO, Ill., Dec. 28.

"BIG BILL" THOMPSON of this city says about patriotism in school books:

"As long as Bill Thompson is mayor of Chicago, they are not going to call George Washington a rebel. I object to Superintendent McAndrews removing pictures of the 'Spirit of '76' from the schools rooms and I am going to kick McAndrews out of the schools.

"They are not going to teach the children that Hancock was a smuggler, that Patrick Henry was a drunken lawyer, that the Constitution of the United States was drawn up by a lot of drunken bums."

TO King George, Washington was a rebel, of course, because he rebelled against the government then established in America. In the eyes of Americans he is one of the world's greatest men. It is dangerous to take liberties with a nation's heroes, as Byron pointed out in Don Juan.

"Cervantes smiled Spain's chivalry away;
A single laugh demolished the right arm
Of his own country—seldom since that day
Has Spain had heroes."

Nobody will smile away the heroism of America's great ones while "Big Bill" Thompson lives and fights.

THERE is excitement at Red Lodge, Montana. Mrs. A. Pollard, opening the gizzard of her Christmas turkey, raised in that neighborhood, found small gold nuggets. Prospectors are seeking desperately the spot where the turkey picked up the nuggets. To the turkey those nuggets were simply rough stones swallowed to help grind corn. To "proud man" those nuggets are the beginning and the end of earthly ambition, ninety-nine times out of a hundred. Wise turkey, foolish man.

CHICAGO, according to Frederick Rex, municipal librarian, now has a population of 3,741,910.

What is more important than population to a great city, Chicago has courage, power and foresight, to prepare for the 5,000,000 and 10,000,000 population that are coming.

THIS writer inspected with Mr. James Simpson, chairman of Chicago's Plan Commission, the things that Chicago PLANS to do, and the amazing things that Chicago actually has DONE. Doing equals planning here and both amaze anybody accustomed to the slow movement of Swiss glaciers or the slower progress of New York City where they began "planning" a generation ago and haven't done anything yet.

CHICAGO'S plans were inspected on paper in the offices of the commission, and then in actual work. Details not to be published in full until next month will astonish every city in this country and Europe.

A magnificent boulevard running around the congested center of the city, on land taken from the lake, will connect North and South Chicago. A boulevard 200 feet wide, running for miles over railroad tracks, with no cross streets, connecting Chicago's central business district, with territory around Chicago and magnificant airports, are features of a plan that not only looks ahead, but builds ahead, for many years.

Chicago is deeply indebted to Mr. Simpson and his associates, and big New York ought to borrow them for a few weeks and learn something.

J PIERPONT MORGAN takes Judge Gary's place as chairman of the United States steel board of directors. That will please stockholders. Mr. Morgan's father created the company, with the assistance of Judge Gary, James A. Farrell, and other able citizens and changed a half-billion worth of stock that Carnegie called "not even water, mere air," in stock, now worth more than $220 a share, the 40 per cent stock dividend included.

To change "thin air" to a solidly established stock worth more than a billion real dollars, shows what American business can do.

MR. FILENE, of Boston, predicts, not far off, chain stores rivaling in financial importance General Motors, or United States Steel and doing a business of a billion a year. Last week in Chicago, one retail store did a business of $750,000 a day. A chain of stores like that would make United States Steel seem small.

PROFESSOR DEWEY teaches philosophy to young gentlemen of Columbia University and tells Chicago the world has not lost its morality, but is changing to a new era that will be better.

That new era, to be better, must drop whisky flasks for high school children, get rid of some pink stockings that reach, visible, nearly to the waist.

Morality, in any era means self respect.

"THE FOX" ENMESHED

100 Million In Taxes Refunded

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—(AP.)—Refunding of illegally collected taxes totaling $103,858,687 and affecting approximately 230,000 persons was reported to Congress today by Secretary Mellon.

The Treasury Department's report covered 12,133 typewritten pages and included refunds ranging from one cent into the millions of dollars. Secretary Mellon said the credits covered the years 1928 back to 1925, inclusive, and "prio. years."

Refunds made for 1928 amounted to $63,388,865; for 1927 they totaled $34,751,602; for 1926 they were $654,691, and for 1925 they were $63,528.

Congress at its last session appropriated money to provide for the repayments by the treasury. The estimate that approximately 240,000 persons would benefit was made by Representative Williamson, of South Dakota, chairman of the new house committee on expenditures by various departments.

Among the larger refunds were: Charles P. Taft, Cincinnati, $56,000; Sec-

Fog Irks, He Ends Life

Complaining of the foggy weather to other roomers, as he finished breakfast in the home of Mrs. Sarah Schuler, 521 Alpine avenue, at 8 o'clock this morning, Edward B. Clark, 44, widower, walked to his second floor room and fired a bullet into his head.

Occupants of the house heard him fall. A 32-caliber revolver and knife lay beside his body.

GOVERNOR SETS DATE TO HEAR RUTH, JUDD

By International News Service.

ALBANY, N. Y., Dec. 28.—Gov. Smith announced today that the hearing for executive clemency for Mrs. Ruth Snyder and her paramour, Henry Judd Gray, would be held at the Capitol on Thursday, January 5. Mrs. Snyder and Gray are scheduled to die in the electric chair at Sing Sing on January 12 for the murder of the woman's husband, Albert Snyder, Queens county art editor.

While no formal application for a clemency hearing for Gray has been made to the Governor, the Executive said he would hear the argument of Gray's counsel at the same time he hears Mrs. Snyder's appeal.

Attorney Edgar F. Hazelton will represent Mrs. Snyder at the hearing before the Governor.

Recently Dr. Raymond F. C. Kieb, state commissioner of corrections, denied a request made by Hazelton to have Mrs. Snyder examined by Dr. Clarence A. Neymann, noted Chicago psychiatrist, who figured in the Leopold-Loeb case.

Recently the State Board of Alienists filed a report with Governor Smith declaring Mrs. Snyder and Gray sane.

VOGELS IN RECEIVER'S HANDS

On the heels of the return of George Vogel, who was missing six weeks, treasurer of Vogel Brothers, operating a chain of 16 groceries and meat markets in the city, a receiver was asked for and appointed in Common Pleas Court today. Frank W. Pfordt was named receiver, and his bond was fixed at $50,000 by Judge George V. Moore.

The petition for the appointment of a receiver was made by the Pillsbury Flour Mills Company through Attorney F. R. S. Kaplan, and was unopposed by counsel for Vogel Brothers. Attorney Harvey M. Aronson, representing the local company, admitted that a receivership would be for the best interests of all concerned.

In the Pillsbury company's petition it was stated that Vogel Brothers have assets of approximately $150,000 with liabilities of $72,000. A meeting of the company was held this morning. William H. Vogel is president of the concern. George Vogel, at the time of his disappearance was treasurer, but it was stated in court he no longer holds that position.

Dawn SOS Message Traced

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Dec. 28.—Hope for the rescue of Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson and the Dawn's crew of three men was aroused today by the possibility that a Newfoundland telegraph operator may have intercepted a radio message from the missing plane on Monday afternoon.

An operator named Hillyard reported to Assistant Supt. Stentaford of the Anglo-American cable station at Heart's Content, N. F., near Harbor Grace, that he heard the following message:

"Where are we? Can you locate us?"

Senate Owes Victims Of Mexican Brutality A Searching Inquiry

The Senate is confronted by a bigger and broader question in respect to Mexican affairs than is involved in the authenticity of any particular group of documents. The real question is not whether all or any particular documents are genuine but whether the general state of facts which the documents allege to exist does in fact exist.

Has there been in fact a hostile, truculent and intriguing attitude on the part of the Mexican government toward the United States? Has the Mexican government been seeking to embroil the United States in Central America and in South America? Can Mexico's attitude, under any possible construction, be construed as "friendly"?

For the past fifteen years Mexico has been consistently murdering Americans and confiscating their property. Furthermore, in that period a great many American women have been abused and outraged, and no adequate punishment has been visited upon the murderers of American men or the violators of American women. In fact, this violation of American women sometimes has been committed by the Mexican authorities themselves, as in the case of the Peteet family, where this whole family committed suicide as a result of the shame and disgrace that they felt because of the violation of the daughters by the chief of police at Tia Juana.

This is not a very pleasant exhibition of "friendship" on the part of the Mexican people or the Mexican authorities and hardly the kind of thing calculated to justify economiums of this so "friendly" nation. Not only were hundreds of American men murdered and hundreds of American women abused by this "friendly" nation in Mexico during the past twenty-five years, but millions of dollars worth of property of dead Americans and of live Americans, too, has been destroyed or confiscated by the Mexican government as a further act and evidence of their "friendship" toward our people.

It may be all right for certain Senators to turn the other cheek as far as they are concerned and invite further contumely at the hands of Mexico, but it hardly seems to be their business as Senators and Representatives of the American people to turn the other cheek of the American people to Mexico for further punishment when through the murder of the men and the violation of their women they have been sufficiently outraged already.

Among the questions with which the present Senate, in its relation to foreign affairs must deal, is the reopening of the claims of American citizens for damages for the loss of American lives and property in Mexico. These claims add up to a total of $800,000,000. The first of these claims, known as the Santa Isabel case, has been already decided against us and it is charged that the neutral arbiter in this dispute was corrupted by the Mexican government, and this government is now seeking to reopen this case and secure the appointment of a new neutral arbiter.

This is a situation which can not be lightly disposed of. It demands a most thorough investigation and the public is entitled to the facts disclosed. Did Mexico, or did she not, corrupt the judge who sat in the case? Did President Calles make a bargain with the Brazilian arbiter and thus save his country the payment of hundreds of millions of dollars to families of American citizens who have been robbed or murdered?

There might be some patriotic excuse on the part of President Calles for sustaining that corrupt payment, but it is difficult to see what patriotic excuse there is for Americans shrinking from the most thorough-going probe of this alleged corruption. If any corruption tainted the action upon these American claims because of valuable considerations given the Brazilian arbiter, then the whole decision of that arbiter is vitiated and the prosecution of these claims against the Mexican government can be taken up de novo; and if the administration at Washington and the Senate, which is in a sense a co-partner of the administration in such international matters, will proceed with patriotic vigor the hundreds of millions of dollars at issue, and justly due the families of American citizens robbed and murdered in Mexico, may be secured for our people and the result of Mexico's corrupt acts be wholly nullified. Our dead can not be restored to life, but protection to the living may be given in the future if the Senate meets this issue courageously.

WALL STREET CLOSE

WON'T FIGHT NOOSE

By ARTHUR L. MAREK,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 28.—The killer "Fox," caged and cringing at bay, will not fight back.

Locked inside the steel walls of his solitary cell in the Los Angeles county jail, William Edward Hickman says positively he will plead guilty to charges of kidnaping and murdering little Marian Parker.

His confession that he kidnaped the 12-year-old school girl, throttled her to death, butchered her and sold her mutilated body to her grief-stricken father for $1,500 stands, he says.

Hickman sees no need for counsel other than the services of the public defender and does not want the ad-

"No Longer a Son Of Mine," Says Fox's Father

By Universal Service.

EL PASO, Tex., Dec. 28.—"Let him be punished according to his crime. He is no longer a son of mine."

This was the declaration last night of Thomas Hickman, father of William Edward Hickman, confessed slayer of little Marian Parker.

"If he had just been guilty of kidnaping I would have helped him," said the 50-year-old father, who has become white haired since his son's capture near Pendleton, Ore. "But since he has confessed to this awful crime I disown him and the law can have him."

Books of Treasurer Seized

Two private memorandum books of County Treasurer Samuel D. Foster, alleged to contain entries of twice-paid taxes, were confiscated by Controller C. C. McGovern at the resumption of the audit hearing today. The Controller in seizing the books said he would have them audited and endeavor to see what relation, if any, they bear to public accounts.

The taking over of the books which the County Treasurer insisted were his private property created a furore at the hearing and in the midst of the confusion, McGovern adjourned the audit until this afternoon. By an audit of the books the Controller hopes to discover who paid taxes twice.

Prefacing his drastic action, the Controller called Robert A. Harkins, chief tax clerk in the treasurer's office, to the stand.

"Here are frequent entries reading 'Paid to Sam,' the sums ranging from $10 to $100," said McGovern. "What does that mean? Who is Sam?"

"'Sam' stands for Samuel D. Foster, county treasurer," the witness explained. "Clerical errors occurred in the office and where it appeared that a taxpayer had paid twice the money was given to the Treasurer. In nearly every case the error was soon discovered and the money was returned and paid into the county funds."

The witness declared that only on rare occasions had any taxpayer paid the same taxes twice. It was brought out that the two memorandum books had never been audited and were not balanced after the return of funds to the county.

"McGovernitis" Epidemic Hits Courthouse

"McGovernitis" is referred to in the Courthouse as a prevalent disease, the term being applied in those cases where witnesses subpenaed by the County Controller in his audit probe fail to respond and report illness. Today's victim was Samuel Klingensmith, cashier in the County Treasurer's office, who was reported "at home sick" when his name was called. He is one of several employes of the treasurer's office who had been subpenaed.

ROBBED AND BEATEN

MRS. FRANK OTT

Mrs. Frank Ott, 825 Maginn street, was held up, beaten and robbed by a Negro last night on Marshall avenue near her home. When Mrs. Ott screamed the Negro slashed at her with a knife. Mrs. Ott suffered facial bruises where the Negro struck her. Her assailant escaped with a purse containing $20 and some jewelry.

ENGINEER HOLDS POST IN FLAMES, STOPS TRAIN, DIES

STICKS TO THROTTLE IN BLAZE

Robert J. Ellis, 50, of 1211 Tweed street, Sheraden, a Pennsylvania Railroad engineer who yesterday heroically remained at the throttle of his engine while flames from a demolished gasoline tank truck swept the cab, died last night in the Washington (Pa.) Hospital. The collision occurred at the Meadowlands crossing.

Cornelius H. Williard, 45, of 601 Shawhan avenue, Carnegie, fireman, is in the hospital burned seriously. The truck, driven by Lee T. Booker, of 138 Oakland avenue, was hit head-on by the engine. While the flames from the truck roared through the cab of the engine, Ellis remained at the throttle and safely guided his train through the flames. Had he leaped to the ground to escape the flames, the engine would have ran wild. Booker escaped injury by jumping from the truck before the crash.

The blazing truck stuck fast to the cowcatcher of the engine and was carried more than 200 yards before it fell clear.

Both Ellis and Williard remained in the cab until the train was brought to a stop and then they fell to the track, their clothing aflame. Passengers extinguished the flames and sent the men to the hospital.

Henry Ashbrook, employed by the Catholic Observer of Pittsburgh, was a passenger on the train. He said that the flames from the truck shot back along side the coach in which he was riding, forcing the passengers to the aisles to escape the heat. When the truck rolled clear it fell into the yard of the South Penn Oil Company and for a time threatened to ignite a large gasoline tank.

THEY'RE OFF AGAIN—ONE SOUTH, ONE NORTH

Mrs. Evangeline Lindbergh, after flying from Detroit to Mexico City to spend the Christmas holidays with her son, Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, "Ambassador of the Air," today started her return flight in the same plane she used in the southward hop. The all-metal Ford monoplane took off from Mexico City today a few minutes after her illustrious son was on wing again, Panama bound. Her itinerary will be virtually the same as that followed on her first flight. Tampico, San Antonio, St. Louis and Detroit will be the stopping places, although the clamor of dozens of other communities along the route to see Lindy's flying mother may be heeded.

"SHE'S A MODEL FLIER"

Harry Brooks, Detroit aviator who is piloting Mrs. Lindbergh's plane, said on his arrival in Mexico City that the "Lone Eagle's" mother had been an ideal passenger. "She was just as calm and quiet as an experienced flier would have been," Brooks said, "and she seemed to enjoy the entire trip. I don't wonder her son is such a marvelous pilot."

Woodside Takes Oath As Controller

Robert G. Woodside was sworn into office as Controller at noon today, the oath being administered by Judge George V. Moore in the presence of a large crowd of friends and associates. Judge Harry H. Rowand was on the bench with Judge Moore. The commission was presented by Mayor Charles H. Kline.

Following the ceremony, Controller Woodside was guest of honor at a luncheon given by friends from the Eighth, his home ward, in the William Penn Hotel.

Woodside was born in Pittsburgh, the son of the Rev. Nevin Woodside, a Presbyterian minister. He attended Washington and Jefferson College, and while a senior there he enlisted in the Tenth Pennsylvania Infantry, serving with the regiment in Cuba and the Philippines. Following the war Woodside entered the Western University of Pennsylvania, where he completed his law course and began practice. During the World War he was a captain in the Thirty-eighth Infantry and served 18 months overseas. He was twice wounded in action, and won several citations.

He was elected sheriff of Allegheny county in 1921, and served from 1922 until 1925. For the last year he has been a deputy auditor general of the state, appointed by Gov. John S. Fisher.

Woodside has served three terms as national commander of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. As a member of the Battle Monuments Commission, which selects the sites for United States battle memorials abroad he has made two trips to the war area.

Woodside, unmarried, lives with his mother, Mrs. Mary Woodside, on South Aiken avenue.

He asked his wife several times to come back to him, but she refused, Reno testified.

(Central standard time), today, for Guatemala City, Guatemala, the first stop of his Central American good-will flight.

Without maneuvering over the field, Lindbergh flew straight to the south, just as the pearl-gray dawn gave him sufficient visibility to take off.

Within a couple of minutes, the Spirit of St. Louis was almost lost to sight. It appeared a dark speck against the streaks of dawn as the plane swerved toward the eastern horizon.

Seven Mexican army planes hopped off immediately after Lindbergh. Five were to escort him about 50 miles. Two intended to accompany him to the Guatemalan border.

"Goodbye, Little Brother."

"Adios, Hermanito" (Goodbye, Little Brother) was the shout that ascended from some in the crowd as the Spirit of St. Louis started. About 1,000 persons watched Lindbergh's departure.

The presidential office received a telegram stating that a plane apparently that of Col. Lindbergh passed over Cintalapa in the State of Chiapas at 10:20 a. m. Cintalapa is about 140 miles from the Guatemalan border.

Later information indicated that Col. Lindbergh was making steady progress toward Guatemala, the presidential offices being informed from Tuxtla, capital of the State of Chiapas, that Col. Lindbergh flew over the Hacienda Porta Celli, near the town of Villa Flores, which is between Cintalapa and the Guatemalan border.

A route fraught with peril over a mountainous region with virgin forests, some perhaps never penetrated by civilized man, lay before Col. Lindbergh for the first lap of his 3,000-mile flight.

Before the Lone Eagle stretched the longest leg of his flight, 675 miles by airline from Merico City to Guatemala City. It led past Popocatepetl volcano (Smoke Mountain), often called the Vesuvius of Mexico and towering 17,782 feet above sea level, and Ixtaccihuatl (Sleeping Woman) joined to Popocatepetl by a low saddle.

Over the high plateau land of the State of Puebla the path of the Spirit of St. Louis extended into the mountainous state of Oaxaca. Here were virgin forests, many of which have perhaps never been penetrated by civilized man.

A NEW BIRD

The tropical birds of this region had a chance to see a new bird, a craft made by man, winging its way above them toward the little-explored state of Chiapas. Over this a rugged finger, the Sierra Madre Mountains, pointed the way to the borders of Guatemala. To the west of the Lone Eagle's trail towered the majestic Tacana volcano, over which passes the dividing line between Guatemala and Mexico. Once that line had been crossed scarcely more than 100 miles would separate the flyer from his goal, Guatamala City.

A two-day stop is planned for Guatemala, then the Lone Eagle will again take to the air for Belize, British Honduras, 250 miles away. There no airplane has ever landed, although American seaplanes have landed twice in the harbor. In Belize, it was stated that if Lindbergh could not land, since no field is available, he would at least fly over the capital.

3 PINNED UNDER AUTO IN WATER

BRIKLEY, Ark., Dec. 28.—(AP.)—While her husband and infant son lay dead beneath the wreckage of their automobile, Mrs. L. L. Foster and two other children lay pinned underneath it in a foot of water for more than six hours today before children on their way to school discovered the accident.

The Fosters were en route from their home in Capleville, Tenn., to Dardanelle, Ark., where Foster was to undergo an operation. About two miles south of Cotton Plant the car left the road and overturned in a ditch.

Fatally injured, Foster summoned enough energy to tell his wife to keep her head above the water and then expired. The baby apparently was killed instantly. Frances, 3, was hurt probably fatally and Anna, 5, suffered bruises. Franklin, 2, was the other child rescued.

Robert G. Woodside, former sheriff of Allegheny county and more recently deputy auditor general of the state, today took his oath of office as county controller. Woodside, a "Regular Republican" organization man, succeeds Charles C. McGovern, Pinchot appointee and stormy petrel of Pittsburgh politics. Woodside received the oath from Judge George V. Moore, of Common Pleas Court. He was presented for the oath by Mayor Charles H. Kline, acting as a member of the Allegheny County Bar Association in accordance with custom. In the photograph, Woodside is receiving the mayor's best wishes, while two of his friends, Peter Glick, long actively associated with Republican campaign work in the county and state, and John D. WILLIAM EDWARD HICKMAN

This photograph shows the outward indication of what the scientists term a split personality. Close observation will reveal ears, eyes, eyebrows and lips of William Edward Hickman, self-styled "Fox" and confessed slayer of Marian Parker, 12-year-old Los Angeles girl, fail to "mate." Those on the left differ materially from those on the right, one being indication of the normal, average boy and the other of one distinctly subnormal.

MARJORIE PARKER MARIAN PARKER

Five years ago this picture was taken of the Parker twins. At that time Hickman was an honor student in the high schools of Kansas City, attaining marks at which his professors marvelled. The twins at the time of Marion's murder retained the remarkable resemblance of the accompanying photograph.

WHERE "THE FOX" FAILED

Hickman, styled himself "The Fox" and a "master mind," proved an ordinary bungling criminal. In his apartment he left a glass, a milk bottle and a sugar bowl with finger prints identifying him as the driver of Marian's death car.

IN DAYS WHEN

Hickman's mother, and his sister, Mary, still cannot believe his guilt. With them here is Mary Bright, mother of Mabel Bright, a school teacher who constantly held young Hickman to her pupils as a model student.

THOMAS HICKMAN

Hickman's father, a miner, living at El Paso, Tex., has announced he disowns his son as a result of the crime.

OKLAHOMA GOVERNOR AGAIN CALLS GUARD

By International News Service.

OKLAHOMA CITY, Dec. 28.—Members of the Oklahoma Senate, attempting to meet as a court of impeachment, were dispersed from the State House today by 60 heavily armed militiamen, and 90 more soldiers were held in reserve by Gov. Henry S. Johnston to prevent a meeting of the legislative body elsewhere.

This was the third attempt of the State Legislature to meet at the Capitol and was Gov. Johnston's answer to a summons issued by the court of impeachment Saturday. Mac Q. Williamson, president pro tem. announced a secret session would be held downtown.

Gov. Johnston's action today in calling out troops again after he had withdrawn them last week followed the granting yesterday of a temporary restraining order issued in a district court, specifically prohibiting the Senate court of impeachment from functioning.

The 90 militiamen held in reserve to break up any meetings of the insurgent Legislature are seasoned soldiers who have seen service in France, a spokesman for the Governor declared.

95, He Chins Self On Semaphore to Celebrate

By Universal Service.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Dec. 28.—Dr. Edwin Pye Turner Onslow Osbaldeston celebrated his ninety-fifth birthday yesterday by chinning himself on a railroad semaphore 45 feet in the air.

The aged veteran of the Crimean War would have skinned the cat, he says, if he had the right kind of an apparatus. After his acrobatics he donned a Palm Beach suit, in spite of the cold, and called on neighbors.

He says Jehovah gave him his vigorous constitution, although he hasn't been to church for 75 years.

ONE DIES, ONE HURT AS TRAIN HITS GAS TRUCK

CRASH ON MEADOWLANDS CROSSING

The engineer of a Washington-bound passenger train on the Pennsylvania Railroad was fatally burned as he stuck to his throttle and stopped his train, when the locomotive struck an tAlantic Refining Company truck at Meadowlands crossing, yesterday. His fireman was seriously burned. The wrecked truck chassis illustrates the collision's force.

DYING ENGINEER STICKS TO POST

The dead man is Robert J. Ellis, 50, of 1211 Tweed street, Sheraden, and the injured fireman is Cornelius H. Williard, 45, of 601 Shawhan avenue, Carnegie. The driver jumped to safety. The tank, still red hot when this photograph was taken, blazed for several hours but a few yards from a large gasoline storage tank.

TRIO TAKES U. S. STEEL REINS

By International News Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Wall street's reaction today to the selection of J. Pierpont Morgan, James A. Farrell and Myron C. Taylor, to handle the affairs of the $2,500,000,000 United States Steel Corporation was entirely favorable. The consensus in the financial district was that the men best fitted for the high positions had been chosen.

Morgan, Farrell and Taylor will split between them, three ways, the title held by the late Elbert H. Gary. Morgan, head of the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co., became chairman of the board of directors; Taylor, a lawyer, banker and textile capitalist, was named chairman of the finance committee, and Farrell—"Big Jim" Farrell, who rose from a day laborer to president of the steel corporation—became chief executive officer, retaining the title and all the duties of president.

COOLIDGE RUMOR HEARD

No confirmation could be obtained of a rumor circulated in Wall Street that Morgan's acceptance of the chairmanship was only temporary—that the chairmanship of the directorate would be offered to President Coolidge when he leaves the White House.

It was officially announced that under a change in the steel company's by-laws the chairman (Morgan) will not in the future be an executive officer.

Until further light is thrown upon the corporation's method of operations, the actual division of duties under the new arrangement will be open to conjecture. Gary had held all three titles: Chairman of the board of directors, chairman of the finance committee and chief executive officer. He was the spokesman for the company, and his expressed views had a tremendous effect upon the Wall street market and business in general.

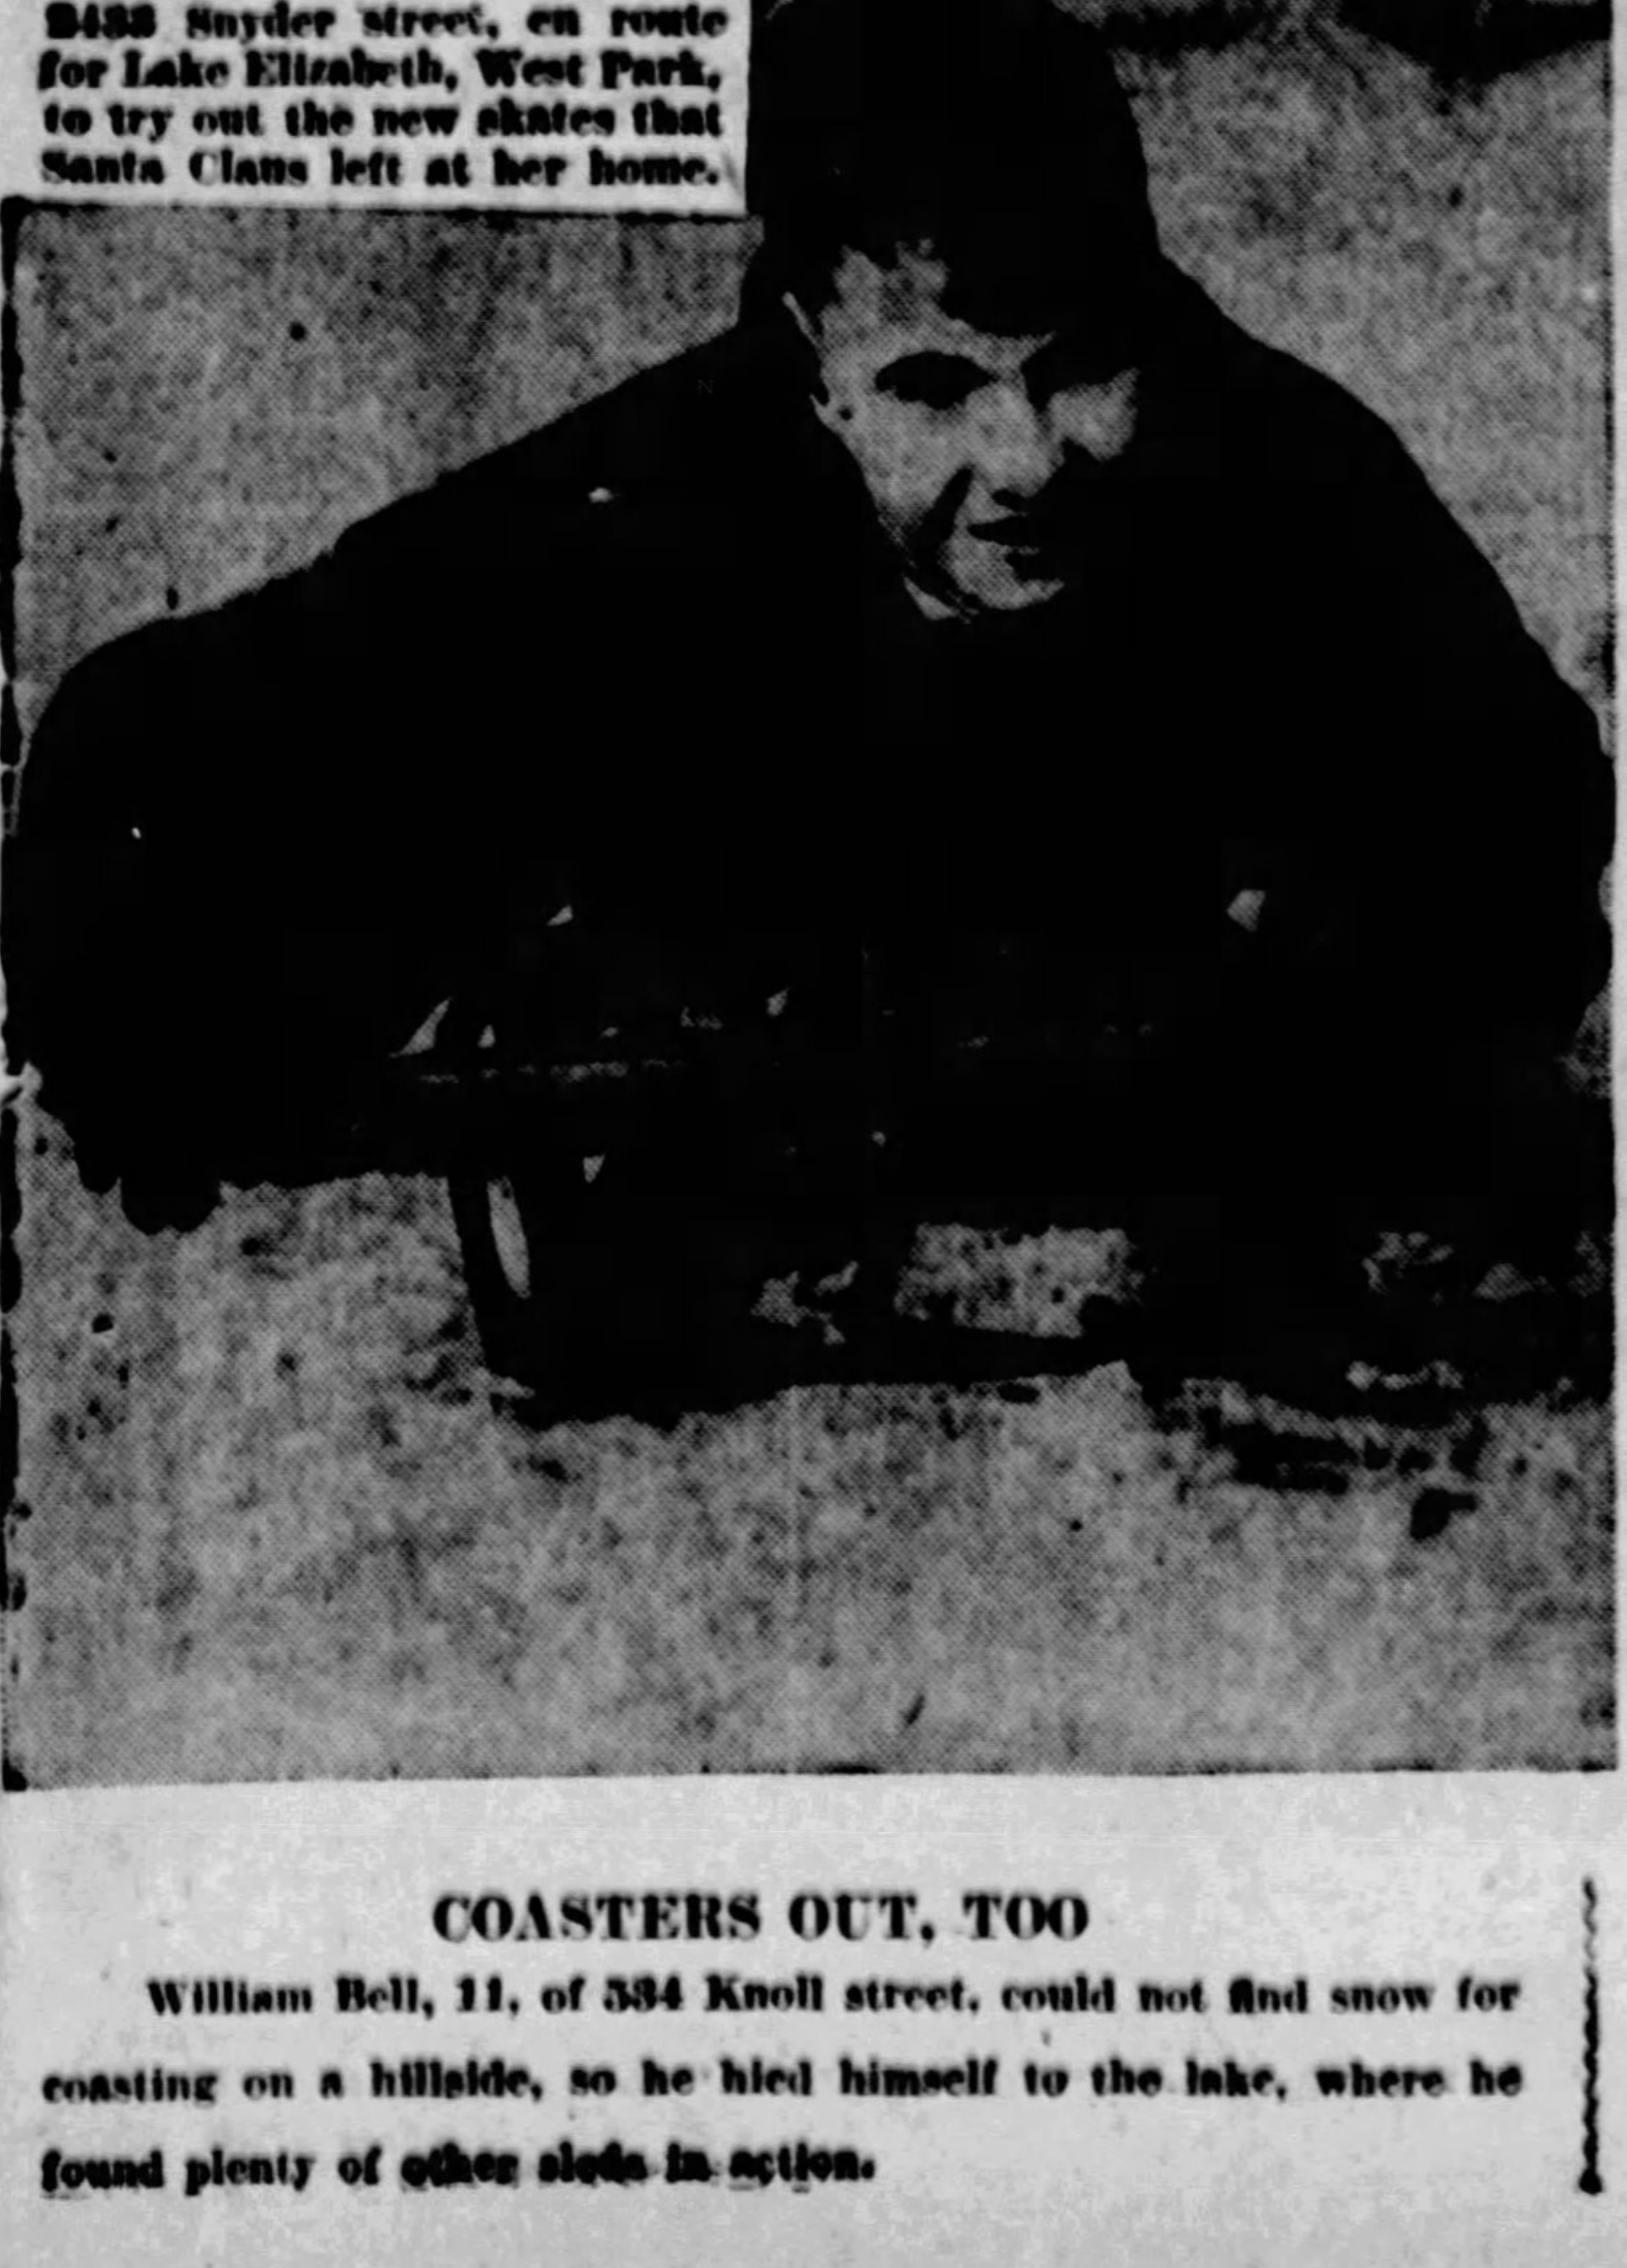
Upon Farrell will devolve the duty of running the business of the corporation. He will be the operating and directing head of this great corporation, of which he became president in 1910 after having served as president of the United States Steel Products Company, a subsidiary.

TWO ARRESTED AS SHARPS

Charged with being professional gamblers, Alexander Mastezich, 36, of Beaver Falls, and Aram Casparein, 41, of Munson avenue, McKees Rocks, were arrested at Second avenue and Market street last night by city detectives.

The arrests are the result of numerous complaints registered by manufacturing companies that two professional gamblers had been winning their employes' earnings.

According to detectives, a search of Casparein's rooms revealed alloys for loading dice and chemicals used to shade cards.



COASTERS OUT, TOO

William Bell, 11, of 534 Knoll street, could not find snow for coasting on a hillside, so he hied himself to the lake, where he found plenty of other sleds in action.

DOWN, BUT NOT OUT

Adelaide Blum, of 1223 Sheffield street, slipped while rounding a corner. Lillian Miller, of 337 Republic street, Duquesne Heights, came to her aid.

JUST OUT OF LUCK

Florence Angelo, 9, of 1206 Redour street, seemed fated to have ill luck. Her skate came loose so she went home to have mother fix it.

FIRST DOWN AGAIN

Mae Jones, of Walnut street, East End, traveled way over to the North Side yesterday to take this spill. Helen Barrell, of Irwin avenue, assisting Mae to her feet, didn't quite accept the alibi that the "skates are too wobbly."

"DAWN" MESSAGE TRACED

tempted trans-Atlantic flight from Roosevelt Field, N. Y., to London and Denmark, but her plane was not seen after passing over Cape Cod last Friday evening.

The message, according to Hillyard, was signed with a signal like W M U. Hillyard attached little importance to the incident and did not report it to Assistant Supt. Stentaford until he learned that W M U was the Dawn's signal.

In a report to the Western Union offices in St. John's, Stentaford said:

"Hillyard told me the call he picked up was signed 'W.' The next letter was unreadable but sounded like 'I' or figure 6. The third leter was 'U.' It was repeated every three or four minutes for nearly half an hour. The signals sounded very loud on the set and if they came from the Dawn she must be pretty close."

It is believed here that the Dawn may have been forced down near the Newfoundland coast. The plane should have arrived here at daybreak on Saturday.

According to another report from Heart's Content, two persons declare they distinctly heard an aeroplane at 9:30 o'clock Saturday night while crossing the barrens near Heart's Content.

DIRIGIBLE IN HANGAR

NAVAL AIR STATION, LAKEHURST, N. J., Dec. 28.—The Navy dirigible Los Angeles was placed in its hangar here at 1:15 o'clock this morning, after an unsuccessful search off the coast of New England for "The Dawn," missing Grayson plane.

The dirigible appeared over the field at 11:55 p. m. and landed at 12:20 a. m. The airship patrolled the "ocean graveyard" from Cape Cod to Emerald Banks, about 170 miles southwest of Halifax, and then started back again. Although every person on the ship scanned the seas and huge searchlights threw powerful beams of light across the waters, no trace of the missing plane or its occupants was seen.

SHIPS STILL SEARCH

By HERBERT CARVL,

International News Service Staff Correspondent.

ABOARD U. S. S. STURTEVANT, OFF SABLE ISLAND, Dec. 28.—Following receipt of radio reports that a message ostensibly from the Dawn, Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson's lost plane, had been picked up at Heart's Content, near Harbor Grace, Newfoundland, yesterday, the five destroyers searching for the plane circled around Sable Island today.

The Sturtevant and Mahan, 16 miles apart, were covering the southwest quadrant of a circle around the island, while the Saw, Mohegan and Downes were searching the southeast quadrant. Three lookouts were on duty on each ship.

The sky was overcast and the sea smooth.

Seek to Link Hickman With Murder of Aged Man

By International News Service.

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Dec. 28.—William Edward Hickman today faced another grilling to determine if he is involved in the murder of a 75-year-old man whose body was found last September in a ditch along a main highway near Cotton Falls, Kan.

The new investigation was requested by Assistant United States Attorney Hutchinson, of Chicago, in a telegram to authorities here.

Hickman is believed to have been somewhere in the Middle West at the time of the murder. Many persons were said to have since identified him by photographs published in Kansas newspapers as a companion seen with the aged man shortly before his death.

The victim has not been identified. A bullet hole had pierced his brain. His automobile was found wrecked in Topeka, Kan. The license plates were missing.

FOX IS READY TO PAY

vice of Jerome Walsh Davis, a Kansas City attorney, who is speeding west to defend him at the instance of the prisoner's mother.

"Even if that lawyer tells me to plead not guilty, I will refuse to do it," Hickman declared.

"I said I'm going to plead guilty and I mean it. The officers have my story all down in writing anyway—and I signed it. I told everything I know. I can't see where that Kansas City lawyer will be much help now."

Although Hickman has firmly decided that he will not fight the kidnaping and murder charges, followers of the case today pointed out the possibility that his counsel will seize the opportunity to use Autopsy Surgeon Wagner's declaration that the Parker girl died of fright and not primarily from strangulation as a basis for the slayer's defense.

Within two hours of Hickman's return here yesterday from Pendleton, Ore., where he was captured, he was haled before Superior Judge Carlos Hardy to answer the murder and kidnaping indictments. The case was put over until tomorrow pending arrival of counsel from Kansas City.

JAILERS FEARFUL

Meanwhile jail officials are uneasy over their responsibility of guarding the prisoner. They fear two things.

One is an attempt at suicide by the prisoner. The other is attempts at violence on the part of the jail inmates.

Feeling against Hickman today was reported as running high among the prisoners. Threats against his life came to the ears of Jailer Dewar. It was reported that prisoners had been found fashioning clubs out of broomsticks they had purloined. All cells were searched for articles which might be used as weapons.

His keepers reported Hickman slept soundly through his first night in the Los Angeles jail despite murmured threats of violence on the part of fellow prisoners who openly, and within earshot of Hickman, expressed their wrath because the ruthless killer had been harbored beneath the same roof.

Every precaution has been taken to prevent a mutiny among the wrought up prisoners and special guards have been stationed at Hickman's cell to protect him from the fury of his jail mates.

Meanwhile, Jailer Dewar has issued explicit orders that Hickman will not be permitted to receive any visitors.

LETTERS CENSORED

Neither will maudlin sentiment be permitted to seep through Hickman's cell to create misplaced sympathy for the killer, Dewar is determined.

Letters, mostly from women offering to pray for Hickman, already have begun to pour into Dewar's office.

But all mail addressed to Hickman will be rigidly censored before it reaches his hands, his jailers say.

Not once during the long hours did they fail to hear the heavy breathing of his deep sleep.

Neither was the almost death-like slumber of the prisoner, fatigued and near exhaustion from the ordeal of his first day in jail, broken by the frightened outcries of fitful dreams.

His jailers attributed Hickman's lethargy to his physical exhaustion which yesterday brought about his collapse.

He had flung himself across his cell bunk, buried his head in his arms and fell into a heavy sleep.

AWAKENED, COLLAPSES

An hour later a deputy sheriff shook him.

Frightened, Hickman leaped from his bunk and toppled to the floor in a dead faint.

His guards dashed cold water into his face and with the aid of restoratives brought him back to consciousness.

Dr. Black, jail physician, who was summoned to administer medical aid, declared Hickman's collapse was no sham.

Meanwhile, a 24-hour watch is being kept over the notorious prisoner. Every eight hours a new guard stations himself just two feet away from Hickman's cell—No. 1 in Tank 10-B-2.

It is in this steel-caged tank, atop the 10-story Hall of Justice, that Los Angeles authorities lodge their desperate prisoners for safe keeping.

The tank is variously referred to as "the jewelry tank" and the "hard boiled tank."

A highway robber and an automobile thief are Hickman's uncommunicative neighbors.

CHAMBER BOOKS LECTURE ON SOVIET RUSSIA

Two interesting events are scheduled for the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce tomorrow. At noon there will be an address by James G. McDonald, chairman of the national executive board of the Foreign Policy Association of America, who will talk on "Soviet Russia After Ten Years." Mr. McDonald spent some time in Russia last summer. D. W. Daniel, director of the department of arts and sciences at the Clemson Agricultural College, South Carolina, will speak.

EXPLOSION TIES TRAFFIC FOR HALF HOUR

Pedestrians in Fourth avenue were endangered late yesterday, and downtown traffic was demoralized when an explosion in the transformer vault of the Duquesne Light Company, under the street in front of the Dollar Savings Bank, between Wood and Smithfield streets, spread fire through conduits beneath the street and blew manhole covers into the air. Flames leaped from the manholes and one woman is reported to have been overcome by the dense smoke. Scores of downtown buildings were without light or power temporarily as a result of the blast.

A second explosion occurred a short time later in a transformer vault in front of the Tranter Manufacturing Company building at Water and Ferry streets. Flames that followed threatened the Tranter establishment and also the G. H. Samuels produce store at 109 Water street. Windows in Water street and Fourth avenue were shattered by the explosions.

Street car service was halted for approximately half an hour, while firemen fought the flames that leaped from the manholes and from the gratings over the transformer vaults. The recent flood that put water into the conduits is believed to have caused short-circuits which in turn caused the "blowouts." No estimate of damage was given by officials of the light company. Full electric and gas service was restored in the affected district today.

STABS MAN WHO SPANKED CHILD

Sherman Rose, 67, Harmarville, was arrested today as the man who stabbed Walter Novak, 42, five times after an argument in the home of Rose's daughter at Harmarville.

County detectives said Rose attacked Novak, a roomer in the house, after Novak had spanked Rose's grandson.

Novak was reported in serious condition in Citizens' General Hospital, New Kensington. Both men are miners.

The Carnegie Library is enriched by several antiques by the will of Edward G. Craig which was filed for probate today. His bequests to the library include a five-piece China tea set once the property of Napoleon Bonaparte, and an oil portrait of Gen. Daniel Morgan.

The estate of $40,000 is to be held in trust for two sons, Neville B. and Morgan N. Craig.

MRS. DOROTHY WOODMAN PARKHURST

Boston was amazed to learn that Mrs. Dorothy Woodman Parkhurst, widow of Gov. Frederick Hale Parkhurst, of Maine, will wed Cyrus Dimitri Comninos, 31-year-old medical student and reputed descendant of Byzantine emperors, who is working as a headwaiter in a Back Bay cafe. This romance was revealed in their application for a marriage license.

NIECE, BROTHER HEIRS TO BLACKMORE ESTATE

A niece and a brother are named as heirs in the will of Mrs. Estelle Blackmore Little, daughter of the late J. A. Blackmore, one-time mayor of Pittsburgh, filed for probate today.

From the estate, which is valued at $50,000, Charles A. Blackmore, California, is to receive an annuity, and the estate is to be held in trust for Marie W. Cappeau until she is 45.

FIRE DAMAGES HOME, 2 WASHINGTON PLANTS

WASHINGTON, Pa., Dec. 27.—The home of A. B. Dagan, at Donnan and Hall avenues, was damaged $10,000 by fire yesterday. The chemical department of the Hazel-Atlas Glass Company was put out of commission and a large tank at the Tygart Valley Glass Company broke in two other fires. The damage at the two plants was slight.

START WORK ON WELFARE FUND ORGANIZATION

Forms of application mailed today will extend the opportunity to more than 140 of the philanthropic and charitable agencies of Pittsburgh to apply for membership in the Welfare Fund of Pittsburgh, which was granted a charter in the local courts last Friday, according to a statement issued by the applications committee today.

The directing board of each agency is to decide whether application will be filed. Applications are to be filed on or before February 1, 1928. These will be considered on the basis of definite requirements, and those approved by the Committee of Fifty, of which William B. Schiller is chairman, will be invited to elect delegates and to help form the organization. It is the purpose of the Welfare Fund to combine the appeal for contributions of all member agencies in a single annual campaign.

LENGEL WINS NEW TRIAL

By Associated News Service.

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 28.—A new trial for Saranus A. Lengel, gray-haired ex-police chief of Canton, O., who was convicted as a member of the "ring" which engineered the assassination of Don Mellett, Canton newspaper publisher, today was assured as the Ohio Supreme Court overruled an appeal by the state for reversal of the Appellate Court decree, ordering the trial.

Lengel, once convicted of first degree murder with recommendation of mercy, had already served several weeks of his sentence in the state penitentiary when the Court of Appeals reversed for error and remanded the case for a new trial.

The state sought reversal of the Appeals Court decision, and in the meantime fought Lengel's return to the Stark county jail. The Supreme Court refused to grant a stay of the Appeals Court decision and ordered Lengel sent back to Canton, where he now is at liberty under bond, pending the second trial.

FATHER AND SON PARTY TONIGHT

A record-breaking crowd is indicated for the fifth annual Father and Son banquet of the Pittsburgh Chamber of Commerce to be held at the chamber beginning at 6 o'clock this evening, with music, speeches, vaudeville, and prize contests galore, a minstrel show, an address of "Dad's Relation to His Son" by Alexander Dunbar vice-president of the Bank of Pittsburgh, N. A., and a chalk talk by Ralph Reichhold, a comic strip cartoonist of the Pittsburgh Press. Jack Thompson will in addition give a clown act. Frank A. Willison is to be chairman and toastmaster. Prizes will be awarded to the heaviest son, to the tallest son, to the son accompanied by the baldest dad, to the son accompanied by the youngest dad, and to the dad accompanied by the largest number of sons.

DESERTING MATE CRAZES WIFE

VANDERGRIFT, Pa., Dec. 28.—Harry Thomas, 40, millworker, of Lowell street, alleged home deserter, came back to a deserted home today.

In his five months' absence, Thomas' wife went insane from worry and was committed to the Torrance State Hospital for the Insane; his oldest daughter, 12, was committed to Morganza on a charge of incorrigibility, and his two younger children were taken to the Westmoreland County Childrens' Home at Greensburg.

Thomas, upon his return, was committed to jail on a desertion charge. He is alleged to have disappeared last July with another woman, who deserted five children.

CHOIR TO SING "MESSIAH"

The annual Christmas presentation of "The Messiah" will be given Friday night by the Mendelssohn Choir of Pittsburgh in Carnegie Music Hall. Ernest Lunt is the conductor. The soloists will be Grace Kerns, soprano; Marie Stone Langston, contralto; Dan Beddoe, tenor, and Henri Scott, bass. Earl Mitchell will be the accompanist. The choir will be composed of 300 voices.

"Get That 1928 License," Warning

Motorists who attempt to operate their machines with 1927 license plates after January 1 will be arrested. Police Superintendent Peter P. Walsh today issued orders to every patrolman to "knock off" all automobilists using 1927 plates after the first of the year. A charge of violating the automobile laws will be placed against those caught.

"Owners of machines have had plenty of time to secure new plates," the superintendent said. "If, through carelessness, they have failed, they will have to suffer." A maximum fine of $10 can be placed against the motorists.

$300,000 SPENT ON KEENAN BUILDING

The Keenan building, 18-story office structure at the corner of Liberty avenue and Seventh street, has been completely remodeled and furnished with the best of modern equipment. More than $250,000 has been invested in improvements.

S. W. Rubin, present owner of the building, purchased it last May from the City Real Estate Holdings Company for a consideration in the neighborhood of $800,000. Mr. Rubin immediately had plans prepared for the improvements which are now completed.

Four new electric elevators have been installed. They are the latest type, capable of a speed of 650 feet a minute, and are controlled by an automatic signal system which holds them on schedule and registers on a lighted board on the first floor lobby. All of the elevators are equipped with hollow metal doors.

The lobby has been fitted with new marble, a special grade of Pavanozza in greens and browns, the last block of its kind available. The ceiling of the lobby has been done in colors enriched with gold.

All floors have been removed and replaced with a modern flint terrazzo. The corridors on the upper floors have been refinished in white marble. The exterior walls of the building in enameled brick and terra cotta have been cleaned and beautified. All windows have been equipped with the latest weather-proofing.

The Keenan building was constructed in 1908 by Col. Thomas J. Keenan and has been considered an outstanding example of business architecture. It is now occupied by a number of artists' studios. The building is located in the heart of the downtown triangle and offers numerous advantages to tenants. Although the building is well rented, a few suites are available.

S-4 CREW DEAD NAVY REPORTS

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—Relatives of the officers and crew of the submarine S-4 were formally notified by the Navy Department yesterday that they died in the disaster of December 17 when the ship was rammed off Provincetown.

The six men, who escaped apparent instant death by seeking refuge in the forward torpedo room, died on December 21, when heroic efforts to rescue them had failed, according to the Navy.

This is the first official admission from the Navy Department that all hands lost their lives when the S-4 was sent to the bottom. In the meantime the Navy Department announced that salvage operations would continue as long as weather permits.

BULLET HITS CAR WOMAN UNHURT

SHANESVILLE, Dec. 28.—Mrs. R. E. Fair, Shanesville, the Mayor's wife, was the target of the bullet of an unknown marksman, which passed through the windshield of her car in which she was driving to Walnut Creek for medicine for her mother and dropped into the rear seat. Mrs. Fair, uninjured, continued on her errand. Only one shot was fired.

CREDO CLUB HOLDS CHRISTMAS PARTY

A Christmas party was held yesterday by the members of the Credo Club of the Credit Association of Western Pennsylvania, the festivities being carried out in the Chamber of Commerce. There was an exchange of gifts, each person bringing one. Lester Harris was master of ceremonies, the principal talk being made by Ruhl W. Elkin. A quartet composed of Robert Young, C. E. Willis, W. E. Morgan and L. H. Cross sang and J. D. Counahan read a Christmas poem.

A. COGGESHALL LECTURE AT SCIENCE CONVENTION

Arthur Sterry Coggeshall, director of educational work at Carnegie Museum, left last night for Nashville, Tenn., where he will deliver an address at the annual meeting of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. Mr. Coggeshall will speak on dinosaurs. His subject will be "Turning Back the Clock Ten Million Years."

COURT PAYS RESPECTS TO SAMUEL S. ROBERTSON

When Common Pleas Court adjourned Tuesday, it did so out of respect to the memory of Samuel S. Robertson, well-known lawyer, who died Christmas day in Oklahoma City, Okla. C. E. Theobald paid Mr. Robertson a high tribute in making the motion, which Judge George V. Moore ordered spread upon the court minutes.

POOLING OF GOLD RESERVE IS ADVOCATED

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Formation of a "gold league of nations" by pooling international gold reserves to prevent an extended price decline was urged by Prof. Lionel D. Edie, of Chicago, at the opening session of the American Economic Association.

"New prophets in the name of free paper, instead of free silver "are making war on the gold standard." Prof. Edie warned, predicting that unless preventive steps are taken a price decline and long period of depression will be felt about 1935.

Edie predicted that in 1935, at the present rate, the international gold reserve will be about $12,800,000,000, or one billion less than will be required. To prevent this shortage, he said, production must be doubled.

Addressing the American Statistical Association, also meeting here as part of the American Council of Learned Societies, Dr. M. L. Copeland, of the Harvard business school, declared that nowhere in the United States is wholesale business being conducted by settled methods. Wholesalers, he said, must "become more distributors and less traders."

An attack on alleged "hodge-podge" employment methods of the U. S. government, was launched before the American Association for Labor Legislation by Fred Telford, director of the Bureau of Public Personnel Administration.

He described present methods as consisting of "much overlapping, duplication, inefficiency, and downright lawlessness." He declared some 125,000 government workers were recruited without any selective process.

SCHOOL BY RADIO FOR FARMERS

By Universal Service.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 27.—Thousands of farmers all over the country are going back to school, via radio, the Department of Agriculture announced today. The radio school, fostered by the department, consists of a series of weekly talks, by Federal experts, on farm economics.

The talks are broadcast by 57 stations, in 34 states. The first talk was put on the air October 4, and the entire group will require 30 weeks to complete. Subjects yet to be discussed include the new idea in marketing, standards in marketing, grading and marketing, market news, warehousing as an aid to marketing, packages in marketing, shipping to market, financing marketing, advertising in marketing, direct marketing, by parcels post, and agricultural co-operation.

CHILD BLINDED BY DRINK

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28. — Morris Drago, 11 years old, may never see again. Morris took a drink from a bottle, a brown bottle, he found in a vacant lot. He went blind.

The hospital physicians said there is little doubt that the liquid was poisonous holiday liquor, probably wood alcohol.

DRUGGIST KILLS BANDIT

By Universal Service.

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—Five swift bullets that took the life of an unidentified Negro, about 26, formed the answer yesterday of Harry Halperin, druggist, when he was told to "stick 'em up." Halperin told authorities that the Negro entered his drug store with his hand in his pocket and demanded money.

CHICAGO GLEE CLUB TO PERFORM HERE

The Y. M. C. A. College Glee Club of Chicago, with Simeon Oliver, Eskimo pianist, will aid the Y. M. C. A. of Pittsburgh in entertaining its members and the general public at the annual open house reception which various branches of the local association will hold January 2. The club will appear at the Downtown, the Hill Top, the Allegheny, and the East Liberty branches of the association during a two-day stay in Pittsburgh. In addition to these concerts, local Y. M. C. A. members are providing the traditional musical entertainment and athletic features.

SAYS CRAFTON HEIGHTS CUT OFF BY STREET WORK

Because of the closing of Crotzer avenue for paving, Crafton Heights is practically cut off from the city, according to a letter received by Council from James G. McCloskey. The writer said that, in case of fire, it would be impossible to get apparatus to the district. Automobile owners are unable to use their cars, he said, and suggested that Crotzer avenue be opened during the winter season.

Monte Blue Again Signs With Warner Brothers and Begins Voyage to South Sea Islands

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS,
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 27.

ALL I can say this holiday week to the announcement that Monte Blue has signed with Warner Brothers is—well, you never can tell what will happen in motion pictures. All year long Monte had been looking forward to the end of the year and the termination of his contract with Warners so he could announce some new plans.

Now the end of the year has come and almost "went" and Monte's plans are not what any of us expected. I thought he would cast his lot with another film organization. But looking the field over, I reckon Monte came to the conclusion that Warners is not such a bad studio after all. For he has agreed to remain for two years longer.

Personally I think Monte's move is a sensible one. After all, this company has done its best for him and whatever grievances he has had were too small to cause any definite break in their relations.

There is every chance that Monte will make several pictures for Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer this coming year. Conrad Nagel will make two for Warners and it looks to me as if an even exchange will be effected. In fact Monte's first under the new contract is for M. G. M. He left last night for the South Seas to hero in "Southern Skies."

Patsy Ruth Miller will make at least one picture before she sails for Europe the first of the year. She has agreed to play the feminine lead in "We Americans," which Universal is making on a lavish scale. Pat is greatly excited over the role of the daughter, which is really the piece de resistance of the whole picture. Good word, eh, what? Sounds like the day after Christmas. "We Americans," by the by, is being supervised by Carl Laemmle, Jr., the boy's biggest assignment. Edward Sloman is the director and Al Cohn the adaptor.

The activity at Columbia is one of the interesting developments of an independent company. Last year at this time, no one paid much attention to Columbia. They were listed along with other "quickie" companies. Then came "The Blood Ship" and "The Lone Wolf" and things started picking up. At this moment there are three or four companies at work. One of the latest to start is "So This Is Love," headed by Shirley Mason and Buster Collier. I cannot hand the title of this very much, but Columbia rises to say the public demands a little love in its titles. Maybe so, but I'll hand it to the first person who gets away from these sentimental monikers. Others in the cast are Johnny Walker, Carl Gerard, Jean Laverty, Willis H. Strauss and Ernie S. Adams. Frank Capra is wielding the megaphone.

The mysterious disappearance of A. W. Dupont, director of "Variety," is explained. Mr. Dupont was signed by Universal after he directed "Variety." He came to this country and made one picture which in no way fulfilled the expectations of his American employers. Although he was supposed to be under contract to them, he returned to Germany with the explanation that he would return shortly and make an independent picture. Whether or not capital was forthcoming I do not know, but I do know that Mr. Dupont did not return to the U. S. A. He is now, according to latest reports, at work in Paris, having been signed by a French company. I should think the man who made "Variety" would be a worthy investment, for at one time or another he will surely show signs of the genius that marked that picture.

George Melford's friends have been sympathizing with him during the Christmas holidays. His lovely young wife, Diane, who made such a desperate fight for life, was buried Thursday. Last April, Mrs. Melford was taken to a sanitarium and from week to week she thought that she was improving and would be permitted to come home. "I'll spend Christmas with you," she told her husband. "Get everything ready for me." That very day she became worse and before night had passed on.

All the romance in the movies isn't confined to the players on the screen. Occasionally an outsider comes in for a little attention. Here we have Johanna Mathieson, Universal's wardrobe designer, and Elmer N. Woolf, associated with the Western Costume Company, announcing their engagement. The work of the two brought them together. Cupid did the rest and the result is an early marriage.

Thirteen years is a lifetime, so to speak, in the film business. That is why Edward Connelly astonished everyone when he stated that he had been in pictures 13 consecutive years and most of that time had been spent as a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer star. He started with the old Metro Company and followed the amalgamation of Metro and Goldwyn. Irving Thalberg thought Mr. Connelly's 13 years ought to be celebrated, so he cast him as Joan Crawford's father in "China Bound."

Jack Warner can depart for Europe feeling that he has done well. Most of his big directors and stars have been farmed out to other companies. John Miljan is the latest to be loaned. First National signed him to play an important part in "Lady Be Good," starring Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall, with Richard Wallace directing.

Turns Blonde -:- Redhead Beauty Parade -:- Mr. and Mrs.

COLLEEN MOORE, as a fake duchess, wears a blonde wig part of the time in "Her Wild Oat," now showing in the Grand and Liberty.

RUBY McCOY, aged 19, film actress who won the beauty contest for redheads in Venice, Cal. Other cup winners with Miss McCoy are Cathleen Sturgill, Lola Brennon, Gloria Shatton, Hildegard Juck. There were 50 entrants for Miss McCoy to outpretty.

VICTOR VARCONI, as Pilate, and Rojel Coleman, as Mrs. Pilate, in "King of Kings," which comes to the Nixon the first week of the New Year.

"King Of Kings" Among Coming Programs

Cecil B. DeMille's photoplay, "The King of Kings," will be presented in the Nixon New Year's week, opening with a special New Year's Day matinee, Monday, January 2. There will be two performances daily at 2:20 and 8:20, sharp. "The King of Kings" is a picturization of the life of Christ, tracing His holy presence from the carpenter's shop at Capernaum to the Crucifixion at Golgotha and the Resurrection. It is said the story has been approached with reverence and a deep appreciation of its beauty.

There is a matinee today in the Shubert Alvin, where Florence Reed is appearing in "The Shanghai Gesture," a reflection of Oriental life in which philandering of Occidentals and Orientals form the basis of the theme.

"Saturday's Children" is to remain a second week in the Pitt, opening the second half of the holiday engagement with a New Year's Day matinee next Monday. There will be three matinees of the Maxwell Anderson comedy next week, that on the holiday and the usual Thursday and Saturday afternoon performances in addition. Seats for the second week will go on sale tomorrow.

In the midnight show New Year's Day in the Gayety, "Chickie," specialty dancer, will make her appearance as an added attraction with "Dancing Around," the burlesque to be presented. She also will appear at the matinee and night performances New Year's week.

SECRETARY OF LABOR TO LECTURE HERE

Secretary of Labor James J. Davis will address the delegates to the twentieth biennial convention of the Delta Sigma Phi Fraternity at a luncheon Friday in the plant of the H. J. Heinz Company, North Side. C. J. Hammers will be host. The convention will be held tomorrow, Friday and Saturday, with headquarters in the William Penn Hotel.

Molly Climbs Hills to Fame

Seemingly, Molly O'Day, First National leading woman, can't escape from the hills.

Having recently completed the feminine lead in "The Shepherd of the Hills," a tale of the Ozark Mountains, she is now cast in the role opposite Richard Barthelmess for "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," which transpires in the mountains of Kentucky.

This is Miss O'Day's second role opposite Barthelmess, the first having been that of the cabaret dancer in "The Patent Leather Kid." After that she was Milton Sills' leading woman in "Hard Boiled Haggerty."

Midnight Movies Planned For New Years

Special midnight performances will be presented in many of the Stanley-Davis-Clark theaters on Sunday, New Years. The performances will begin at 12:05 o'clock. Clara Bow's picture, "Get Your Man," will be shown in the Davis, Grand and Liberty. Tickets for the shows in these theaters may be obtained in advance. The State will offer "If I Were Single," featuring Conrad Nagel and May McAvoy. Madge Bellamy's "Very Confidential" and Vitaphone entertainment will comprise the midnight show in the Olympic.

HARRIS WILL PRESENT FIRST MIDNIGHT SHOW

A midnight show of vaudeville and motion pictures will be presented in the Harris Sunday night, with the complete bill of acts that will play there during the following week, augmented by other acts from the various houses of the Harris Amusement Company. The seats will be unreserved throughout the house. This will be the first midnight performance in the Harris and, incidentally, will mark the seventeenth anniversary of the Harris Theater and the thirtieth anniversary of the founding of the Harris enterprises by the late J. P. Harris.

HERRICK RETURNING

AMBASSADOR HERRICK SAILS SOON

Ambassador Myron T. Herrick is shown with his grandson, Parmely Herrick, Jr., and daughter-in-law, Mrs. Parmely Herrick, on the walk of his Chagrin Falls, O., estate where he is recuperating from two major operations he underwent recently. The ambassador dispelled all doubts concerning his return to Paris by announcing that he will sail January 9 after spending the holidays with his family.

Attack on "Squealer" Held Boys' Quarrel

A petty quarrel among three boys, all good friends, in which one was slightly injured, is the true story of the reported "revenge" attack upon Walter Zogran, 14, of Third avenue, Homestead, in which the lad was said to have been almost fatally beaten for being a "squealer" in a Homestead boy murder case last summer, according to Homestead police.

Zogran, Andrew Bacho and George Hamrock, all of Homestead, were skating yesterday, and a boyish dispute arose. Hamrock is said to have hit Zogran with an iron bolt, after the latter had called him a vile name. Zogran's scalp was cut, and he was taken to Homestead Hospital. He was discharged today.

The three boys figured as witnesses to the murder of an unidentified man near Brown's Bridge last summer. The man was beaten to death by two boys and robbed of $3.75, according to witnesses. Alvin Hess and Robert Stevens, both under 15, of Homestead, were arrested for the killing. Hess is in jail on a charge of murder and Stevens is being held in custody of Juvenile Court officers.

WIFE DUCKS, HUSBAND PLUNGES OUT WINDOW

Mrs. George Pulkhak sidestepped the rush of her husband and George Pulkhak, 42, of 218 Fifth street, Braddock, crashed through the kitchen window of their home. His right arm was cut and he almost bled to death before being taken to Braddock General Hospital. According to the Braddock police, Pulkhak lunged at his wife with a knife.

Composing the Soul With a Jackknife

DR. COPELAND

MR. COOLIDGE says he "does not choose to run for President." When asked what he would do on retiring from the White House, his reply was, "Well, I am going back to Vermont and for a year or two I am going to whittle."

If you were born in the country, you know exactly what President Coolidge meant. You know the joy of "settin' around" and just whittling.

No angry, irritated, cross, vindictive person can whittle. It is the calm, contented, right-thinking individual who does this. It gives a man a chance to think and dream and compose his soul.

The presidency is a gruelling, exacting, trying, body-wracking and mind-smashing job. I can well understand that Mr. Coolidge wants a rest. He needs it. It will take a year or two of quiet and many days of whittling to restore his physical vigor and rest his tired brain. I sincerely hope the President will enjoy his first leisure in just this sensible way.

Why don't you do a little whittling? Do you ever relax? How often do you give body and soul a complete rest? An hour of placid, leisurely whittling every day would add years to your expectation of life.

I look in pity upon some of my friends who play golf two or three times a week, doing so upon the theory that it is good for them. But how do they do it?

These fine men rush through the day's work, on edge to get through in time to catch the 4 o'clock train. Under pressure of hurry they get short and cross, spoiling the tempers of their associates.

All out of breath they catch the last car of the express. Hot and sticky and worn out, they reach the clubhouse. They get into golf togs like a fireman dons his uniform for a three-alarm fire. Rushing to the links, they smash into the game as if launching a lifeboat to save a man from drowning.

After visiting the nineteenth hole and eating a tremendous dinner, it is counted a "great day." Well, it is a great day—for the undertaker.

Do you imagine that is good for health? It is not. Golf is a wonderful game and capable of adding to the joy and length of life, but not when played like this.

Unless you can play the game in a more leisurely and a more casual way, it will do you harm instead of good. Apply a little common sense to your recreations and they will mean more to you.

Invite your soul now and again to a period of absolute relaxation. Buy a good strong pocket knife and a stick of soft pine. With every long, curly shingle will come a revived and rejuvenated nerve cell.

Good luck to you, Mr. Coolidge!

TOMORROW'S HOROSCOPE

Thursday, December 29

Astrology is not contrary to freedom of will, religious belief, exact science.—BULLETINA.

THE lunar transits for this day emphasize the trend toward the things of Venus—domestic and affectional concerns, as well as social activities, amusements and pleasures, women and children. Art matters should likewise thrive.

There is a menace from vehicles, electricity, aeronautics. Be cautious as to physical mishaps generally. And keep the mind and tongue controlled.

Those whose birthday it is may have a year of social and domestic popularity and activity, but they should be careful to safeguard the person from dangers by vehicles, electricity or falls.

A child born on this day may have a tempestuous and rash nature unless properly disciplined in infancy. Its natural outlook on life may be sullen and gloomy unless directed to happier channels. It should succeed fairly well in employment.

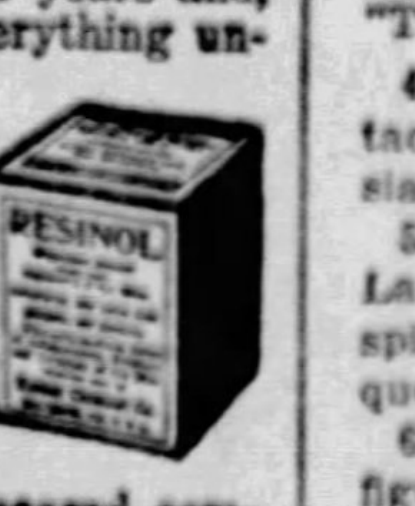
Thought his case was hopeless
Resinol cleared away pimples in a week

Lexington, Mass., March 5:—"I had been suffering from shaving pimples on my neck for years and, I believe, had tried everything under the sun for them without avail. One day on a friend's advice, I purchased some of your Resinol Ointment and was astonished at the quick results. After a week's constant use, the pimples disappeared completely, leaving the skin clear and fresh. I had thought my case was hopeless, so you can readily see why I was overjoyed at this cure! You can be sure that henceforth you have one more loyal booster for your product." (Signed) Fred J. Fox, 5 Bloomfield St.



Simple Vamping

(Lesson Five)

By HELEN ROWLAND

JUST AS GOOD AS S. A.

THE way to a man's heart is not through his stomach, but through his vanity. And the path to his vanity is paved with applesauce.

The gentle art of flattering a man is one of the most vital and subtle forms of vamping, and sometimes more powerful than the well-known U. S. A. or Universal Sex-Appeal.

Never flatter a man by showing jealousy, by hanging around his neck, by calling him up, calling him down, or showing that you missed him. That is flattering him too much; and he will soon begin to wonder why such a combination of brains, beauty and sex-appeal should waste himself on a little fool like you.

HELEN ROWLAND

Say it with WORDS—not with actions!

Say it with WORDS and you can go as far as you like. No matter whether you lay it on delicately with a camel's hair or slap it on with a towel, some of it is bound to stick. Fill him with self-admiration, and what slops over will be all yours.

When it comes to swallowing overdone compliments and undiluted flattery, every man has the capacity of an ostrich. He is almost as bad as a woman!

Of course, every man has his pet illusions about himself; but there are certain stock tributes that almost any man will swallow with relish.

Tell him that he is "different." All men are alike in thinking that they are different! Tell him that he should have been a writer; that his life would make a book. Tell him that he has a keen, analytical mind; that he knows his groceries; that he is sensitive; that most women don't understand him; that he has a remarkable sense of humor.

Tell him that he has good shoulders. And a strong nose. Admire his taste in cravats; never fail to compliment him on the snappiness of his new socks and the smart appearance of his feet. Remember, that even Achilles had one vulnerable spot—and that was in his FOOT.

But why go on? You've got a start; and once you see how a man melts and runs over under a warm fire of flattery, you can find fifty-seven variations with which to keep the fire going.

But never let ANY man suspect that he has SEX-APPEAL! For the moment he gets an inkling that he is a Woman-charmer, off he'll flit to try to prove it to ANOTHER WOMAN!

And never, by any chance let him suspect that you are "kidding" him. Because every man loves to be flattered—but hates to be kidded!

THIS IS THE MOST BEAUTIFUL SPOT IN THE WORLD!
I DIDN'T HAVE TO BRING YOU INTO THE WORLD EITHER!
I DIDN'T ASK TO BE BORN!
HEY FOLKS—THERE'S QUICK-SAND DOWN THERE!
WE DON'T BELIEVE IT!
IN A FEW HOURS THE INCOMING TIDE WILL COMPLETELY COVER THIS ROCK! WOULD YOU WARN HER?
FAY KING

By FAY KING.

A DROWNING man often fights his rescuers and both would sink to death if the life-saver did not deal a blow that makes the drowning man unconscious.

No person wishing to live would resent such a kindness in disguise.

It is often necessary for parents to figuratively deal such a blow to their children. But the time will come when the children will realize, like the drowning man, that it was necessary to rescue them, and will be as grateful.

Young and wilful daughters often imagine that they are misunderstood.

They are sure that they know best and heartily resent any "obedience" which, after all, is merely "parental life-saving."

"I didn't ask to be born," they say defiantly, forgetting the years of constant care and sacrifice that mothers might have avoided, too.

If you saw even a stranger about to step into the path of danger, would you shout a word of warning?

You not only would, but you have many times grabbed some one back from an oncoming car they did not see.

It always saves time and trouble to ask directions from one who knows the road best!

But the trouble with some foolish young persons is that they will neither be directed to the right road by parents who love them best nor warned by others who have taken the wrong road and admit their mistakes.

COOKING SCHOOL ECHOES

How I make good pies every time

For a medium size pie I use 2¼ cups flour, ¾ cup Crisco, 1 teaspoon salt. To measure ¾ of a cup of Crisco I take a measuring cup, put in ¼ cup of cold water, then add enough Crisco to bring the water to the top of the cup, pour it off and I have an exact ¾ cup of Crisco. Then I cut the Crisco into the flour with two knives, criss-cross fashion. (If I used my fingers the heat from them would soften the Crisco and blend it with the flour too closely to make a flaky crust.) As the Crisco is cut into small particles each one becomes covered with flour, and when enough cold water is added (4 to 6 tablespoons) the dough will then be composed of these small particles, which when rolled become layers of flour and Crisco. Then if baking is started in a very hot oven to set mixture before the Crisco has time to melt, the result will be a tender, flaky pastry.

Be careful about water

Have the water cold and use only enough to make a paste which will easily clear the bowl and is soft enough so it will not break at the edges when rolled. It is easier to tell when you have just the right amount of water if you use your fingers to mix it. Now take half the dough, dust the board with flour, using as little as possible, and roll the pastry very lightly from the center outward, each motion of the rolling pin ending in the air, not on the board. It should be about an eighth of an inch thick. Fold it over one-half, lay over a Criscoed plate, fold back over the plate, smooth into shape with the fingers and trim the edges.

To prevent the filling from soaking into the bottom crust

Brush it over with melted Crisco, dust a little flour over that, then add the filling prepared according to the recipe you are using. Moisten the edge with water, then roll the other half of the dough, fold it over one-half, make slits with a knife in the center of the fold for steam to escape. Lay over the pie, with the fold in the center, turn back to cover it, press edges together with thumb and finger, trim, then press together again.

To keep the juice in

Take a strip of plain cloth about three inches wide, wet it in cold water and put around the edge of the plate, letting one half lie on top of the edge of the pie crust and the other half just under the pie plate. Have the strip long enough so that the ends will lap over each other two or three inches. For very juicy fillings, make a little funnel of paper or take pieces of macaroni and stick into two or three of the slits you have made. The juices will bubble up into these and return to the pie as it cools.

When pie is partly cool remove cloth and funnels.

When juices run out they will burn on the bottom of the oven, causing a smudge which is likely to add a smoky taste to the pie and leaving the oven hard to clean.

Chocolate Meringue Pie

Make the pastry with Crisco and your pie shell will slip off the outside of the plate into the inside without breaking, and be tender and flaky, too.

Cover an inverted pie plate with pastry; turn back the edges to make it firm. Prick well with a fork to prevent bubbles. Bake in a hot oven (450° F.) about 15 minutes. Then fill with Chocolate Cream made as follows:

2 squares from ½ lb. cake of chocolate
⅓ cup corn starch
2 cups milk
3 egg yolks
⅔ cup sugar
1 tablespoon vanilla
1 teaspoon Crisco

Melt chocolate in double boiler. Blend sugar, salt and corn starch. Add milk. Cook until thick, stirring constantly. Add beaten egg yolks, melted chocolate and Crisco. Continue cooking a minute or two. Pour into the baked shell, cover with meringue made by beating the 3 egg whites until stiff and dry, and add 6 tablespoons granulated sugar. Return to slow oven (300° F.) for 15 minutes or until brown. Serve when thoroughly cold. Makes one medium sized pie.

Deep Dish Apple Pie

(a pie without an undercrust)

Serve in dishes they are baked in. Or when they are baked, turn them upside down on plates, cover with sweetened whipped cream, sprinkle with chopped nuts and call them Apple Crow's Nest.

Prepare 3 cups of sliced apples, then mix in 1 cup of sugar, ½ teaspoon cinnamon. Divide into 4 or 5 individual baking dishes. Add ⅛ teaspoon salt to each. Dot with bits of Crisco. Cover with the pastry, making slits in the center for steam to escape. Bake in hot oven (450° F.) until pastry starts to brown. Then reduce heat to moderate (350° F.) until apples are done. (About one-half hour.)

Butterscotch Tartlets

Use Crisco in making the pastry for these tarts and the tender, flaky crust, blended with the delicious filling and fluffy meringue will fairly melt in your mouth.

Take bits of dough about the size of an egg. Roll; cover the bottom of inverted muffin pans which have been greased with Crisco. Prick well with a fork to prevent bubbles. Bake in a hot oven (450° F.) about 15 minutes. When baked, slip shells off, turn pan over and put in a muffin tin. Fill with the following Butterscotch filling:

1 cup brown sugar
3 tablespoons flour
2 egg yolks
1 teaspoon Crisco
1 cup milk
3 tablespoons water
1 teaspoon vanilla
⅛ teaspoon salt

Mix sugar, salt and flour. Add water. Cool until thick, stirring constantly. Just before removing from stove, stir in beaten egg. Add Crisco and vanilla. Cool slightly and fill the tart shells. Cover with a meringue made by beating 2 egg whites stiff and dry; add 2 tablespoons granulated sugar; cover tarts, return to slow oven (300° F.) for 15 minutes or until brown. This amount will fill 12 tarts.

An Astonishing Blindfold Test

SEE if this doesn't give you the greatest surprise of your whole cooking experience!

Put a little Crisco on the tip of one spoon. On the tip of another place a little of the fat you are now using; have someone blindfold you, and give you first one, then the other fat to taste.

Now, did you ever imagine there could be such a striking difference in the taste of raw cooking fats? Think what an improvement Crisco's sweetness and freshness will make in your own cakes, pies, biscuits and fried foods.

To test your cooking fat, taste it. Crisco's sweet flavor will astonish you.

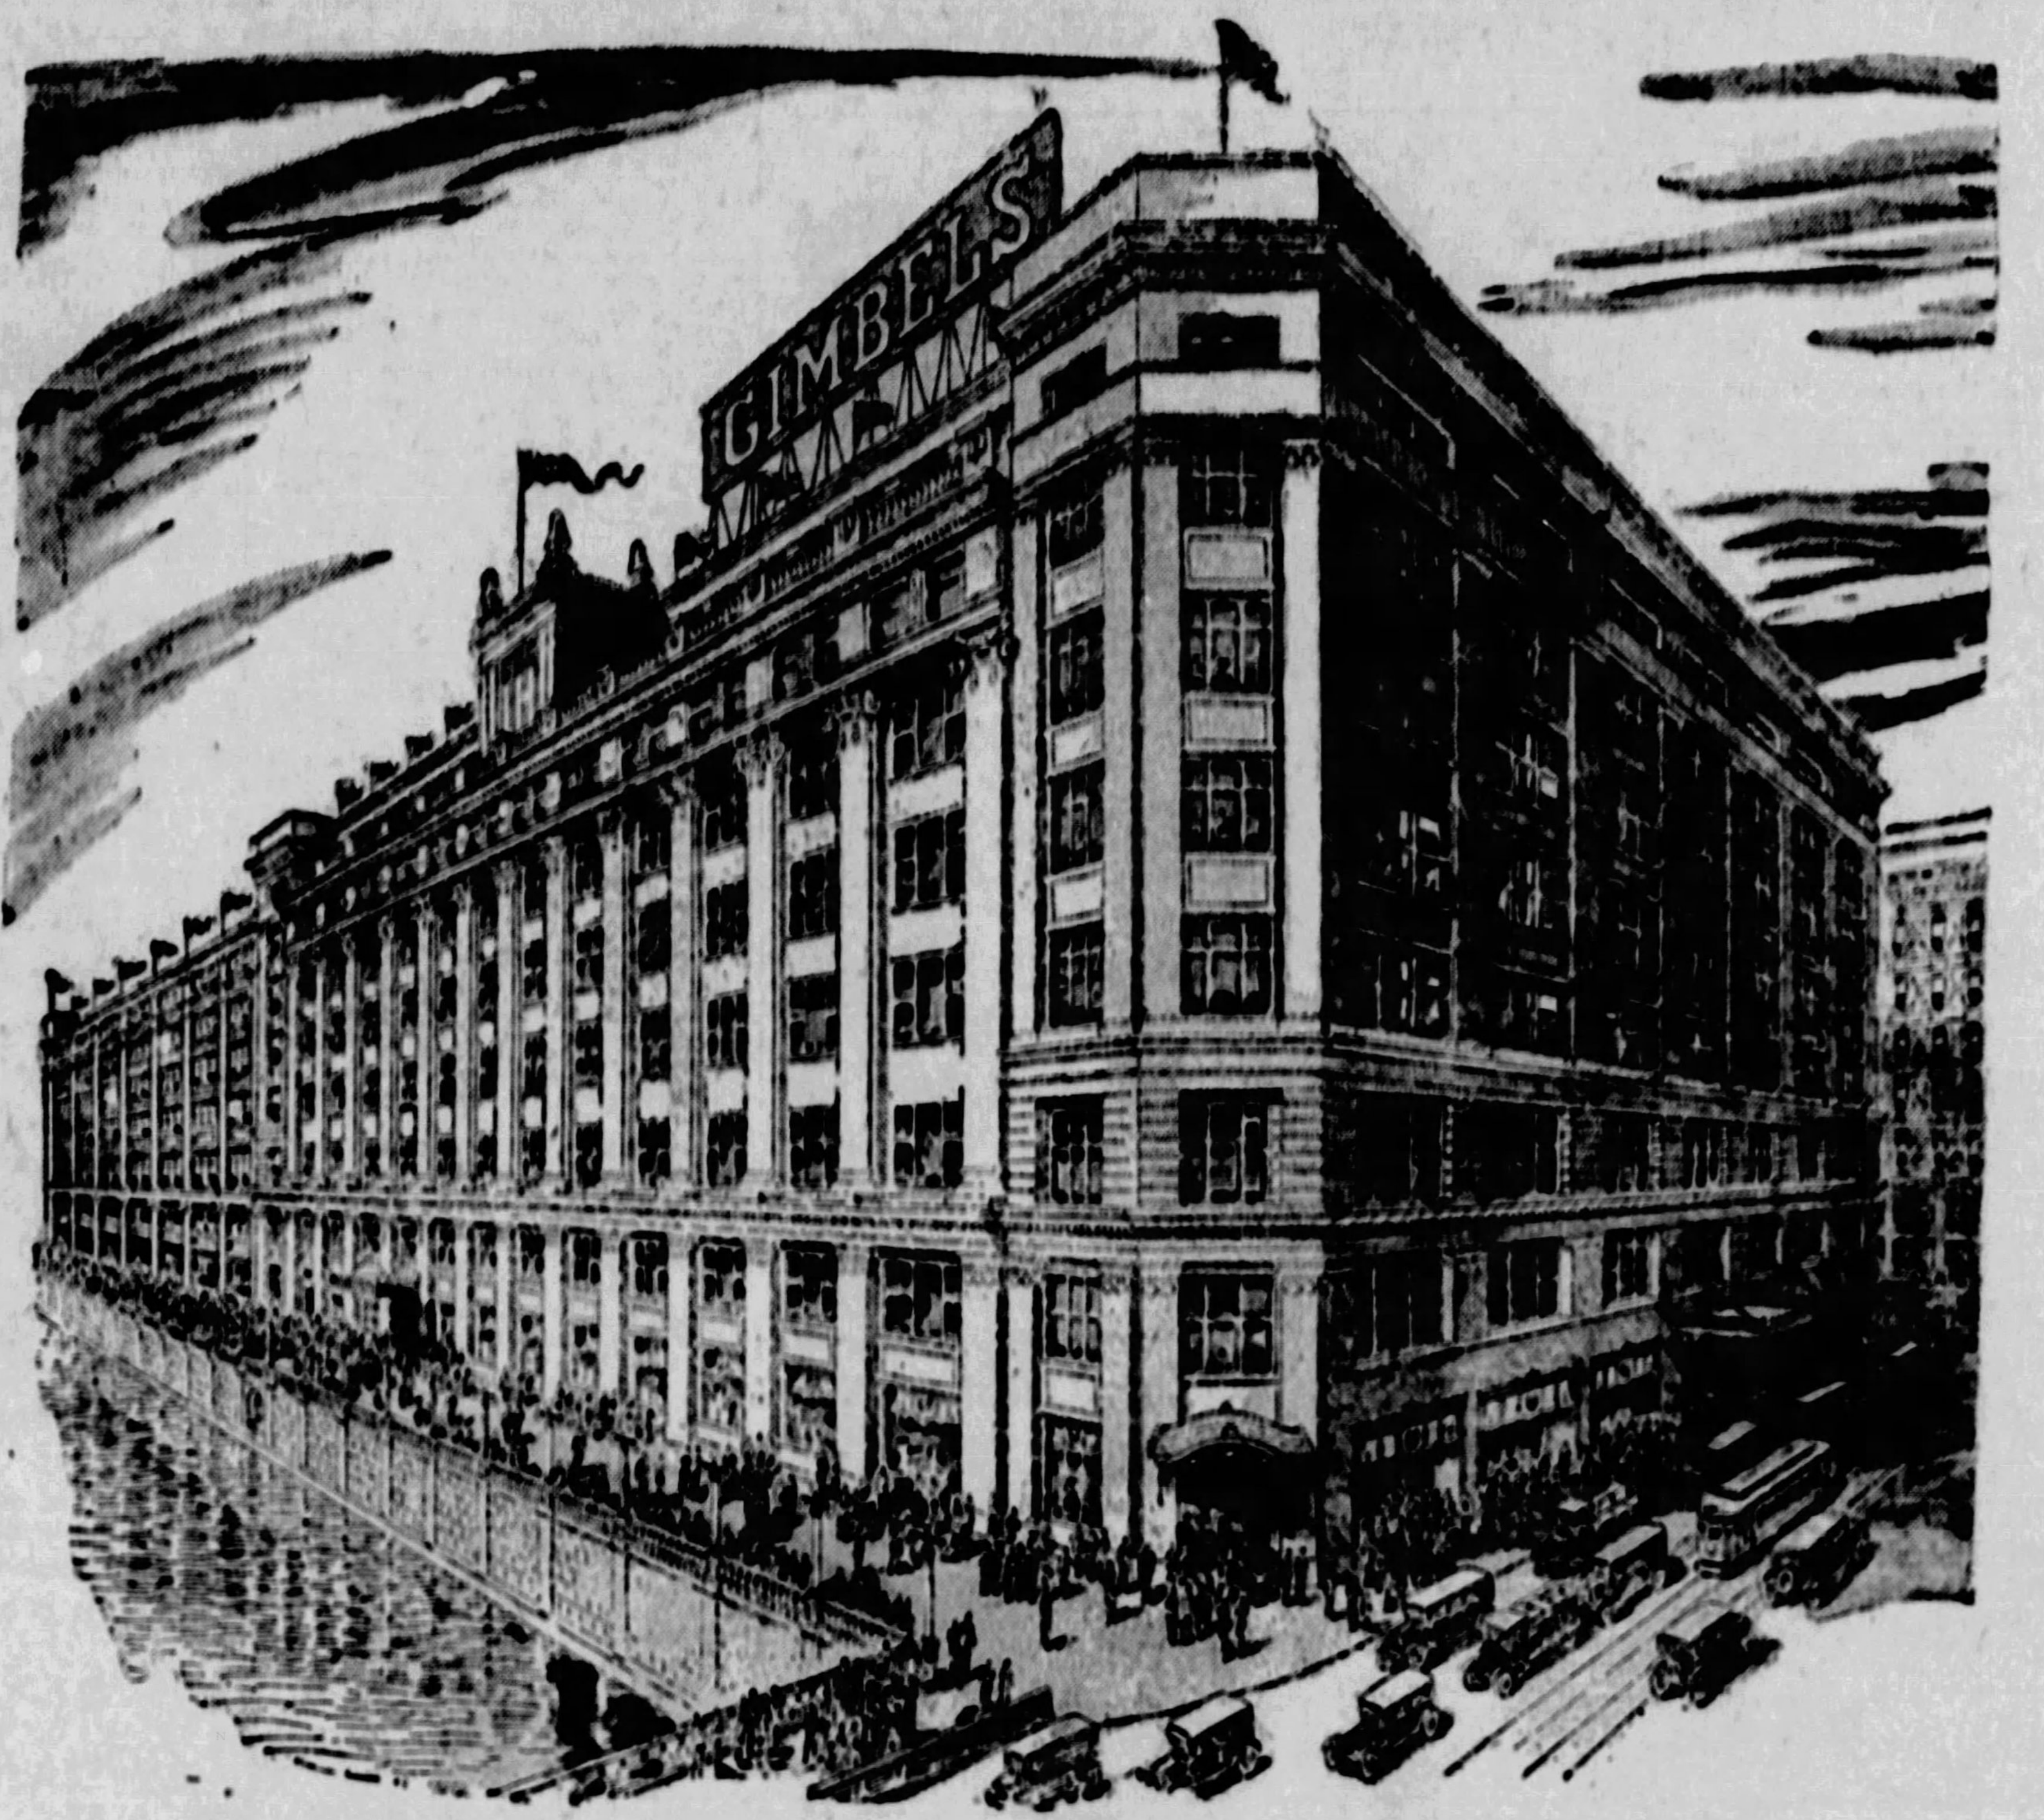
THIS ANNOUNCEMENT IS NUMBER FOUR OF A SERIES



Gimbel Brothers Store of Milwaukee

The small American town needs no word of praise. Out of it has grown much that is richest and best in our national life. That the Gimbel Idea, now so potent a factor in America, should have spent many years developing in the comparative obscurity of the small town is not at all strange. It required more than four decades for the Gimbel store at Vincennes, Indiana and the tiny branch store about a hundred miles distant at Danville, Illinois, to prepare the Gimbel Idea for its venture into a larger field.

Milwaukee, Wisconsin's largest city, on the Great Lakes and the great railroads, was chosen as the new Gimbel seat. And in 1887 the sons of Adam Gimbel, with a single gesture, closed the doors of their small town stores and launched their new project. Significant that the Gimbel Brothers should believe so unreservedly in their first great undertaking.

Milwaukee liked the friendly sons of Adam Gimbel and their Idea of service. Year after year the population of Milwaukee increased. Year after year the Gimbel store required larger and still larger quarters. Today Milwaukee numbers among America's largest cities and Gimbel Brothers' store of Milwaukee numbers among America's finest stores, covering a full city block, rising to eight stories in height and serving upwards of a million people.

Gimbel Brothers, Milwaukee, is the wonderful parent of wonderful stores in Philadelphia, New York—and now in Pittsburgh. Stores employing twenty-five thousand people, serving one-fifth of the American public, influencing the entire field of merchandising and dominating the retail markets of the world. Marvels of accomplishment for the great Idea. And today as in 1887, the Gimbel Idea is bigger than anything, than everything it has accomplished.

PATRICIA PITT'S SPRIGHTLY COMMENT ON PITTSBURGH SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

Society in Playful Mood as Charity Ball Carries Guests Back to Memories of "Gay Nineties"

MAYBE the older generation and the new do not agree when it comes to such things as customs, manners and dress, but they do agree, or at least they did last night at the charity ball in the William Penn Hotel, that the popular songs of the "Gay Nineties" are intriguing. For the audience joined lustily in singing such song hits as "My Mother Was a Lady," "After the Ball" and "Sidewalks of New York." The verses were sung by Theodore F. Smith.

Society was in a play mood last night anyway, and nothing was ceremonious.

The tableaux, depicting various characteristic aspects of life in the Gay Nineties, were quite the feature of the evening. One, a seashore scene was particularly amusing, and those taking part were Mrs. William P. Witherow, Mrs. Charles W. Dahlinger, Mrs. Charles L. Snowdon, Jr., Hanson Rose and William P. Witherow. Another was "Looking for Father," the characters taken by Betty Snowdon and Charles L. Snowdon III, and still another was a scene in a picture gallery, depicted by Mrs. William Larimer Jones, Jr., Howard H. McClintic, Jr., and James Macfarlane.

"The Cozy Corner," with its drapings and cushions, was another tableau, those taking part being Augusta Leovy and Thomas M. Jones III, and a party of gay picnickers included Mrs. Francis J. LeMoyne, Mrs. John F. Walton, Jr., Mrs. Jones, Mrs. G. Harton Singer, Jr., Augusta Leovy, Louis R. Schmertz, Jr., William L. Jones, Jr., G. Harton Singer, Jr., and James Macfarlane. Especially funny was the bicycle lesson, with the junior George Harton Singers as teacher and pupil. Donald Scott Rodgers announced the tableaux.

There was an old-fashioned waltz, danced by Margaret Loeffler and Karl Heinrich, and, of course, a note of modernity had to be introduced into the evening. So a group of the season's buds attired in raccoon coats, flamboyant hued berets, abbreviated skirts of gay flannel and sweat shirts boasting huge initial letters, gave their impression of the varsity drag. Anne Louise Marshall, Margaret McCready, Florence Carroll, Elizabeth George, Florence Wainwright, Frances Fitzgerald, Mary Lewis and Nan Bunton were responsible for this collegiate touch of the evening.

And then there was a dance by the representatives of the chorus girls, the Floradora Sextette, of the Gay Nineties, and the dances concluded with a "1990" dance.

Besides all this entertainment and dancing there were all sorts of games to be played, popular in the Gay Nineties, and represented today at many a country fair and carnival. In charge of this entertainment was Mrs. Ambrose Nevin Diehl, who wore an old-fashioned gown of pale blue velvet, made with leg o' mutton sleeves, a tight fitting waistline and a full skirt primly trimmed with rows of ruffles. And to complete this costume she wore an evening wrap of black and white chiffon which was much admired in that period.

Most of those who appeared in costume, I noticed, were those on committees. Particularly charming were the gowns worn by the program aides, headed by Geraldine West. Her dress was of white satin, fashioned with puff sleeves, a wide, oval neckline edged with roses and lace, and a very full, long skirt. A sash of rose ribbon, worn a little above the normal waistline, completed her frock. A floral design in rose and green was painted on the front of the skirt. All the aides wore similar costumes and Rhoda Drew and Mrs. Charles H. Snowdon painted the gowns, I heard. Rhoda, I have been told, is one of the most talented artists of the social set. She is studying at the College of Fine Arts, Carnegie Institute of Technology, in addition to keeping up with the social whirl.

Gladys Croft, one of the cigaret girls, made a charming old-fashioned girl. She wore rose satin trimmed at the neckline with black lace. And the neckline was that style so popular with our grandmothers, which permitted the shoulders to be seen. With her Empire period gown of dull blue satin Pauline Bauersmith, another cigaret girl, wore her long hair in braids, demurely twined around her head.

Mrs. Wilmer M. Jacoby, who was chairman of the tableaux, wore a gown of white satin gaily printed with sprigs of lavender. Lavender velvet outlined the low neck of the gown, revealing the shoulders, and formed the sash tied at the high waistline. The sleeves, of course, were leg o' mutton.

Among the social set at the ball who wore the evening costume of today were Mrs. Maitland Alexander, who appeared in new blue chiffon and lace: Mrs. E. H. Jennings in red velvet, Mrs. Herbert A. May in black chiffon and rhinestones, Mrs. D. M. Clemson in red crepe, Mrs. Joseph Horne Holmes in gold and silver brocade, Mrs. W. W. French in canary chiffon with crystal trimming, Mrs. John Crossan Dilworth in black crepe, Mary Childs in blue satin, Mary Armstrong in blue velvet and tulle, Mrs. J. Hanson Rose in black crepe with crystal trimmings, Mrs. W. Terrell Johnson in silver cloth and crystals, Mrs. Frederick Billings in black crepe, Mrs. George Singer Ebbert in a gown of deep lavender crepe, Mrs. Samuel Harden Church in blue velvet and rhinestones, Mrs. W. Harry Brown in rose georgette, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., in white satin.

Miss Helen Rauh, chairman of the safety committee, was seen wearing a gown of blue satin, trimmed with crystal. She wore a rope of pearls and bracelet of pearls.

Black velvet frocks were most popular. Among those wearing distinctive frocks of transparent black velvet were Mrs. T. M. Jones, III, Mary Louise Johnson, Mrs. Frederick I. Merrick and Mrs. Samuel Alfred McClung.

Mrs. H. A. Ingram wore rose crepe and silver point lace: Margaret McClintic, peach satin; Mrs. H. R. Bughman, Jr., white velvet; Mrs. William P. Witherow, apricot velvet with rhinestone trimming.

As you know, the ball was given in the William Penn Hotel by the Federation of Girls' School Societies, and groups of girls of the various schools had charge of the different features. A cafeteria supper was served downstairs, with Spence School girls wearing barmaid costumes, as the aides.

About 200 young people of the debutante and college groups attended the buffet luncheon given this afternoon in the Longue Vue Country Club by the James Edward Lewises, of Aylesboro avenue, for their daughter, Mary Currier Lewis, one of this season's buds. After the luncheon the guests danced until about 4 o'clock.

Elaborate Christmas decorations were used throughout the club. At the entrance were bankings of balsam trees, with a large urn of poinsettias on the table there, and in the grill were balsams, southern smilax and poinsettias. Red wreaths sprayed with silver decorated the walls in the ballroom, and the orchestra was screened with small Christmas trees. The large buffet table in the dining room had silver vases of poinsettias and three large red tapers in silver holders, and on the smaller tables were pots of poinsettias.

Mrs. Lewis wore bois de rose satin with a brown felt hat, and her shoulder corsage was of lavender orchids. Mary's frock was of apple green crepe satin and she wore a hat to match. She carried a pendant bouquet in the pastel shades.

Among the guests were three Yale seniors, classmates of Mary's brother, Jack Currier Lewis, who are here for a part of the holidays. They are Clifford McClure Marshall and Charles A. Lytle, of Sharon, and Paul Jordan Linson, of Kingston, N. Y.

A pretty home wedding will take place tonight down in Coraopolis Heights, when Isabel Gardner, daughter of the Kirtland Cutter Gardners, will be married to John Moore Malone. The ceremony will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Alleyne C. Howell, rector of St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Sewickley, assisted by the Rev. Dr. L. Walter Mason, pastor of the First Unitarian Church, and an arrangement of ferns intermingled with calla lilies and purple heather, with tall cathedral candles, will be used as a background for the bridal party. Because of the serious illness of the bride's grandmother, Mrs. George Franklin Newbauer, the wedding will be a very quiet one, with only the immediate families and a few close friends of the young people as guests.

The bride's gown is to be of ivory satin embroidered with pearls, and fashioned with a full skirt and tight bodice. Her tulle veil will be held with a cap of rose point lace, and she will carry white gardenias and lavender orchids. Her sisters, Mrs. H. Foster Robertson, who was married not very long ago, and Louise C. Gardner, will be the attendants, wearing frocks of pastel tinted chiffon and carrying white lilacs and purple iris. Mr. Robertson is to be best man and the ushers will be Kirtland Cutter Gardner, Jr., William C. Hogg, James E. McClements, Jr., and Joseph Stalnaker.

There will be a small reception and dinner after the ceremony, with covers laid for 24 at the bridal table. The young Malones are planning to take a trip to California to remain until February, and when they come back they will live on Coraopolis Heights.

WELLESLEY CLUB WILL SPONSOR ALVIN OPERA

The Wellesley Club of Pittsburgh will sponsor the opening night of the Gilbert and Sullivan operas at the Alvin Theater, March 5, as a benefit. Wellesley spirit and Wellesley songs mingled with the Christmas spirit and Christmas, songs at the club's holiday breakfast in the University Club yesterday. More than 100 members of the club and Wellesley students were present to hear Miss Sara Soffel's earnest little talk on "The Responsibility of Being Intelligent" and to hear the latest news from the campus. "There never has been a time when honest, constructive thought and intelligent leadership were more needed. The foundations of democracy are in jeopardy because the appeal to the masses of this generation is to the emotions and not to the intelligence," Miss Soffel declared, concluding her talk with a query to her listeners as to what they were contributing towards the achievement of world peace, which, she said, is the outstanding problem before the world today.

Miss Sarah Patton, one of the five Wellesley juniors who spent a year in France, an exchange year counting toward their degrees, told of her experiences and gave her impressions. Miss Elizabeth Zeigler brought news of the Barnswallows, Wellesley's dramatic organization, and Miss Martha Cooper of the Inter-Society Council spoke of the activities of the various societies. Mrs. William B. Hetzel, president of the club, welcomed the guests, and there was caroling and assembly singing of the Alma Mater. The tables were attratively centered with a huge red candle standing in a holly wreath, and at each place was a confection candlestick holding a tiny lighted candle.

Mrs. J. H. Shipp, assisted by the officers of the club, was hostess last night for the meeting of the Dormont Mothers' Club, which was held in Bethany Lutheran Church. Mrs. J. C. DeNoon described the work of the New Future Home, and Mrs. Laura Holland McDonald, Girl Scout director, talked of her work, the program being completed with readings by Miss Janet Maxwell and solos by Mrs. J. J. Moon, who also led assembly singing.

Members of the new drama group of the Womans' Club of Wilkinsburg will have a luncheon at the Roosevelt Hotel at 12 o'clock tomorrow, luncheon to be followed by a theater party to see "Saturday's Children" at the Pitt. Mrs. S. B. Cuthbert is chairman of the group, Mrs. John Lessells, secretary, and Mrs. E. Brinker, treasurer.

The Norcross Club will hold its annual election and luncheon at the Congress of Clubs Friday at 12:30 o'clock. The social committee is to present the program.

The Central Branch of the Young Women's Christian Association presents a pleasing welcome to holiday season visitors. The circular lobby is ornamented with a shapely tree, silver trimmed and lighted and reaching to the balcony on the second floor. Other greenery on the wall and at the fireplace helps make the lobby most attractive, but the dining room is the most "Christmasy" spot in the house. To begin with, the green-topped tables and green chairs set the keynote. On every table is a tiny green and white tree standing in a green bowl and the mantels at each end of the room are adorned with scarlet bowls of growing ivy.

"Watch your ~~step~~ throat"

Due to overheated homes, stuffy offices, crowded cars, sudden changes of temperature, and exposure to bad weather, you are in constant risk of colds, sore throat—or worse.

You can reduce this risk considerably if you care to. Every night when you get home, gargle with Listerine used full strength.

Many a cold and sore throat, threatening to become serious, has been quickly checked by this pleasant antiseptic.

Listerine immediately attacks the germ-producing bacteria in the mouth, nose, and throat.

The wise thing to do, of course, during bad weather, is to use Listerine systematically night and morning.

Rinse your mouth with it. Inhale it through the nose. Gargle with it full strength.

It may be, and very probably will be, the means of sparing you a long and trying siege of illness. Lambert Pharmacal Co., St. Louis, Mo. U. S. A.

"Look at That Girl" Broke Hickman

By WALTER NAUGHTON,
Universal Service Staff Correspondent.

LOS ANGELES, Dec. 28.—"Look at that little girl. Look at that little girl!"

Hour after hour these words rang in the ears of William Edward Hickman, confessed kidnaper and slayer of little Marion Parker, during the first 20 hours of the trip from Pendleton, Ore., to this city.

And they were precious words to Los Angeles county, for they paved the way for the complete confession which Hickman made to Chief of Detectives Herman Cline, District Attorney Asa Keyes and Chief James E. Davis, of the brutal slaying of the Parker child.

It was Herman Cline, big, good-natured Herman—that is, good-natured when things are quiet, but full of business when there is a hard case at hand—who "broke" "the coyote," formerly "the fox."

But it was Lieuts. Harry Raymond and Dick Lucas who paved the way for Chief Cline to "break" the slayer.

Here, in brief, is how Hickman's gruesome confession was obtained:

No attempt was made to question the prisoner at any time during the first day and night on the train. This was for two reasons. First because he was just recovering from the special "fit" he threw for the benefit of the Los Angeles officers the night before at Pendleton. He did not come to until the train was nearly in Portland, six hours from Pendleton. The second reason was that the Los Angeles authorities did not want to seek the confession of Hickman until they were down in their own state, ripping along on their way to Los Angeles.

Slowly Hickman started to come out of the state of semi-coma, following his fit of acting, as we left Portland Sunday night. And every time that Harry Raymond and Dick Lucas saw a little girl at a station they would nudge Hickman and exclaim:

MIND GRADUALLY BREAKS.

"Look at that little girl."

Hour after hour it went on. Raymond and Lucas were carrying on a prearranged plan to, slowly but surely, shatter the little remaining nerve of the murderer. And it was working out perfectly. At first he merely looked in the direction to which his attention was directed. Then, later on, as Raymond or Lucas made the remark he shuddered. It was working on his mind. The two officers were relentless, they gave him the treatment every time a station was reached and a crowd was gathered.

"Look at that little girl! Look at that little girl!"

Hickman cringed. His sneaky eyes flashed and he shuddered as the officers, his guards, kept up their sing-song phrase!

"Look at that little girl! Look at that little girl!"

Finally the time was at hand for Chief of Detectives Herman Cline to make his entry. That was shortly before noon the second day of the Pendleton to Los Angeles ride. Previous to Chief Cline's appearance in the prison compartment he, Mr. Keyes and Chief Davis conferred as to who would attempt to "break" Hickman. Gracefully District Attorney Keyes stepped out of the picture.

"I'm the prosecutor, Herman," said Keyes. "You are the detective chief and officer. It's up to you to start it. Go in there and call me when you are ready.

And Herman Cline went in and was with Hickman but a few minutes before it was time to call Mr. Keyes and the confession was on its way. Chief Cline took a seat across the compartment table from Hickman, looked him in the eye and said:

"Hickman, we want your story. We are ready to hear it now. I am sure you are not a coward. We know the story from start to finish, and we know you are the kidnaper and murderer of Marion Parker. But we want to hear it from you. I'll give you five minutes to think this over. You know it is the right thing to do Tell us all."

FIVE MINUTES TO CONFESS.

In the appointed five minutes, Chief Cline returned. Hickman, in the meantime having had another "look at that little girl" from Lucas and Raymond, gulped a couple of times and started to talk.

At first he weakly attempted to throw a "they" into his story, bringing in the names of "Cramer" and "Dunning," which he invented in his Pendleton cell.

District Attorney Keyes, Chief Davis and Chief Cline all looked Hickman in the eye.

"That won't do," said Mr. Keyes, "We want the truth."

And then, with no other sign that he intended to confess other than a heavy sigh, Hickman began to recite, from the beginning, the history of his crime, from the time he first planned it, until his capture in Pendleton.

Keyes, Cline and Davis interposed no interrogations. They were not necessary. The story was too genuine. It was the truth. Hickman told everything.

When he had completed his almost unbelievable narrative, Chief Cline said to the prisoner:

"You are the most cold-blooded murderer in history. You will hang by the neck in San Quentin as soon as we can try you and get you there."

"I'll plead guilty," said Hickman.

"Well, we will send you in writing paper and pencil, and you sit here and write out your story, just as you have given it to us."

"Yes, sir," said Hickman.

And the kidnap-slayer was busy for the next five hours. Raymond and Lucas did not talk to him, then. Their work, with the exception of placing him in the county jail, was over. Hickman wrote on and on and on. At times his hands twitched with writer's cramp.

He wrote 19 full pages on the confession, and an additional five pages, of what he declared, was his "motive" for the murder, the desire to secure the $1,500 and the uncontrollable impulse to slay.

CONFESSION 5,000 WORDS

Judging by newspaper scale, at the rate of 200 words per page, Hickman's confession was a document of 4,800 words. He wrote at least that, and it constitutes the complete, uncontradictable and damning confession which District Attorney Keyes now has in his possession.

Hickman seemed relieved when his confession was made. He joked and laughed with his guards and Raymond and Lucas, through with the phrase, "Look at that little girl," joined in his jokes and laughed with him when they would rather have thrown him out of the window.

A little while later Chief of Police Davis entered the Hickman compartment and heard Hickman tell of all his other crimes, holdups and bank forgeries.

Hickman's criminal career lasted eight hours. It took him just that long to go to the end of the downward path.

Last May he started his career of crime by forging more than 30 checks while employed as errand boy in the bank in which Perry M. Parker, father of his victim, is personnel officer.

He confessed, was admitted to parole and returned to the home of his mother in Kansas City.

RECITES CRIMINAL CAREER

Picking up the story of his career of crime from that point on, here it is, as he told it to Chief Davis:

"My first holdup job was early last October, in Kansas City. It was at Thirty-fourth and Euclid streets. I had an automatic, which I had purchased on Main street, Los Angeles. At home I had two more automatics which I bought sometime after July 5 of this year. On the first job I used a .38 automatic and held up a man from Independence, Mo., and took his Chrysler coupe. I put the car in a parking station, near by home, and then I used it, in either four or five, drugstore holdups the next few days. About a week later I held up a man who was walking near Thirty-fourth and Brooklyn streets, Kansas City, and took $10 from him."

Hickman used none of the crook slang or underworld lingo. He is not familiar with it at all. This proves he was always a lone bandit in his operations.

He continued:

"After holding up that man in Kansas City and taking $10 from him, I pulled four or five other holdups there, and then went to Chicago.

My first holdup there was of a grocery store, in the outskirts. I took $20, using the .38 automatic. I spent a week in Chicago, but did not make any other holdups there.

"Then I went to Detroit and stole and Indiana license plate and put it on the Chrysler coupe I had stolen in early October in Kansas city.

"From Detroit I drove to Cleveland, Pittsburgh, New York and then west to Columbus, O., where I pulled three holdups in 30 minutes. I was out of funds then and worked fast. First I held up a small market, then a drug store and then another market.

"All three of these holdups brought me $70. That was on the first of November, and on the following day I held up another market and secured less than $10.

"Then I drove the Chrysler to St. Louis, where I held up two drug stores, one right after the other, and took $100.

"From St. Louis I went to Kansas City, but I did not see my mother while there. I abandoned the Chrysler coupe in Kansas City and stole another Chrysler, the one I used here in the kidnaping. While in St. Louis this time I bought a shotgun and sawed it off close to the base of the barrel. I started to Western Kansas, but changed my mind and drove to St. Louis.

RETURNED TO LOS ANGELES

"Then I drove down through Missouri and Texas to El Paso, where I bought the .45 automatic, which I had in my right hand when the Pendleton officers arrested me.

"I drove out to Los Angeles, arriving here about November 1. My first holdup here was of a drug store on Sunset boulevard. I took $5, some tubes of toothpaste and some stationery. Then, the day following, I drove to San Francisco.

"I only committed one holdup in San Francisco, and this was the time I stole the $50 slide trombone from the music store man. I told him I knew my father would buy it for me as he had promised to.

"I persuaded the music store man to ride with me so that he could get the money for the trombone.

"Out in Golden Gate Park, I think it was, I held him up, put him out of the car and took the trombone.

"I returned to Los Angeles, bringing the trombone, but I broke it up and threw it away in Elysian Park.

"I arrived back in Los Angeles on November 2 and registered at the Bellevue apartments. That day I held up a drug store and the next night held up two drug stores. All three jobs brought me about $45 each. In the last drug store I took ether and chloroform, for I must have had the kidnaping idea in my head then. But I never used the drugs and threw them away in a trash can in Pershing square.

"I tried to hold up a man and a girl in Hollywood, but they saw me and ran away, and I was afraid they saw my license number so I drove to San Diego. I tried to hold up a man there that night, but he ran to a door and knocked and I drove away.

"In San Diego I stole new license plates for my Chrysler, the ones I had on it in the kidnaping.

"Then I came back to Los Angeles and I had only $10, so I was undecided whether to pull a holdup or the kidnaping, and I decided on the kidnaping."

"You know the rest."

DEPUTY SHERIFF SMITH JACKIE TAYLOR

Jackie Taylor, ex-husband of Vera Stedman, film actress, is appearing nightly in an orchestra of a Hollywood cafe, his leg manacled securely to the leg of Deputy Sheriff Smith, officially designated to act as Taylor's guardian. The situation arose when Taylor, given a jail sentence for failure to keep his alimony payments to Miss Stedman up to date, informed the court that failure to appear nightly as violinist would make it impossible for him to pay up. An astute judge solved the problem.

The New Chauffeur Grins At Lily, and She Gets Extremely Excited

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Lily Lexington is the spoiled and only daughter of the Cyrus Lexingtons, who have always lived far beyond their means. She realizes her highest ambition when she becomes engaged to Staley Drummond, a rich bachelor older than herself. Downtown to meet her chum, Sue Cain, she is attracted by Pat France, a taxi driver. She asks him to drive her home. On the way she learns that he is cab-driving to raise money to finance a new kind of piston ring he has invented. Pat tells her that he is selling the cab to raise money for the piston ring, and she miserably wonders how she'll see him after that. Mrs. Lexington plans a big dinner party to announce the engagement, and on the night of it Staley comes to the house early to see Lily alone. He tells her the age-difference between them doesn't matter and tenderly kisses her. Lily realizes that she hates his love-making. Mrs. Lexington announces the engagement just as Lily's made up her mind to tell Staley that she doesn't want to marry him, and she feels like a mouse in a trap—helpless. The Lexingtons decide to get a chauffeur.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY.

SHE pushed back her chair, picked up her half-burned cigaret and went sauntering out through the side door to the back yard that lay like a green velvet carpet under the sun.

The new chauffeur was standing with his back to her, polishing the back window of the limousine with a piece of chamois skin. He was tall and broad, and there seemed to be something familiar about the way his head was set on his fine square shoulders.

At the sound of her high-heeled slippers on the driveway he swung around and faced her. His blue eyes lighted up, and he grinned, touching his cap respectfully.

"Morning, Miss Lexington!" he said, politely.

"Why—if it isn't Pat France!" Lily gasped. "Why—if it isn't—you!" Her voice vibrated on the last word.

She climbed into the new car. "Take me for a little run," she said. "I want to see how it goes."

Pat hesitated for a second, looking over his shoulder at the windows of the dining room.

"Get in! Get in! I want you to take me around the block, she said!" Lily was impatient. She bounced up and down excitedly on the springy new cushions of the back seat.

Pat got in and started the car. It rolled smoothly out of the yard and into Montpelier road.

"Turn to the right," said Lily.

Then when they had gone a block or two she sang out another order.

"Stop for a second."

The car came to a sudden stop, and in a jiffy she was out of the back seat and into the wide front seat with Pat.

"Drive on!" she told him. "Keep right on going—Jimminy! I never hoped to have as much fun as this again!"

He shook his head. His face sobered and the twinkle went out of his eyes. "Neither did I," he said, quietly.

They drove on for a mile without a word.

"How in the world did you happen to take this job?" Lily asked at last, feeling as if she might wake up from this happy, sunshiny dream if only she pinched herself hard enough.

"Well—it was offered to me through an employment agency, and I couldn't resist temptation, I guess," Pat France answered, his face getting red. "I—I hadn't seen you for over a month, you know."

Lily gasped. . . . This from him! From this indifferent and habitually insolent man! She forgot that he was a chauffeur, working for her mother, and that she was her mother's daughter—and engaged to another man, to boot! . . . He was just the man she loved. The only man she ever cared about, really, it seemed to her.

"Did you want to see me?" she asked, and he choked on his answer. He nodded his head.

They were on a lonely stretch of road now. There was no car ahead of them, and in the windshield mirror the road they had just passed over was empty, too.

Lily moved over in the seat and put her face down on the Oxford-gray shoulder of Pat's new uniform. Her voice came to him, low and muffled.

"I'd give anything in the world if you'd kiss me," she said shamelessly.

He shook his head. She could feel that he shook it as she leaned against him, her arms around his neck.

"I never will," he said, as he turned the big car and started back to the house.

"You'd better get into the back seat," he said. His voice came from between set teeth, and Lily saw his knuckles whiten as he grasped the driving wheel.

"He wants to do it, anyway," she said to herself, and found a certain cold comfort in that thought.

Obediently, she climbed into the back seat, and sat there in the corner, watching his face in the little oblong mirror in front of him. Every now and then his eyes met hers in it, without a ghost of a smile.

When they were within two blocks of the house she began to talk to him.

"You're such a peculiar person, Pat, that I'm not sure you'll be driving for us tomorrow, so I'm going to tell you something today," she said.

"Yeah?"

"I've been—oh, wild about you for weeks!" she went on in a matter of fact voice. "It's just infatuation, I suppose, and I'll get over it, no doubt. But right now I don't know how I'm going to marry another man on the tenth of June. I certainly don't!"

He never said a word.

They turned into the drive. Then, as he helped her out at the front steps, he answered her: "You'll feel very differently by the tenth of June, Miss Lexington!"

"'Miss Lexington!'" she mimicked him, scornfully.

Then she laughed. "Miss Lexington is going to play cards at Mr. Staley Drummond's house tonight," she said. "If Miss Lexington happened to have a bad headache and had to leave early, would Pat, the driver, take her for a little spin in the cool night air?"

He shook his head vigorously.

"He would bring her straight home," he answered, his finger still at his cap in the attitude of a well-trained chauffeur.

"That's better still. For Mr. Lexington and Mrs. Lexington will be playing cards at Mr. Drummond's house," said Lily. "So there won't be anybody at home but—you and me!"

Then she wrinkled her nose at him in a little grimace. "See you later, Pat!" She waved her hand and ran up the steps, Staley's ring flashing in the sun as she went.

The door of the house opened and Sue Cain stood on the threshold. She was in a tailored shirt and knickers, and her small face, with its short, sleek hair, was like the face of a little boy.

"Ha, ha! Dirty work at the cross roads, eh?" she asked, much as a slangy little boy might have said it. "Bringing your boy friend out here to drive the car? You're pretty slick, aren't you, Lily Lexington? All I hope is that Staley Drummond doesn't find out how long you've been kiting around with this chauffeur!"

It came to Lily then, in a flash, that Staley would think the same thing that Sue thought—that she had brought Pat out to the house to drive her father's car so that she could see all she wanted of him!

"I just mustn't let Staley see him," she decided, thinking it all over.

CHAPTER XII.

BACHELORS very often are very wonderful housekeepers. Staley Drummond was.

His beautiful house was a dream of comfort, service and peace. There were always enough cigarets and ash trays on the little smoking tables near the deeply-cushioned arm chairs. There were always the freshest of flowers in the rooms, and the reading lamps were always at just the right angle.

There was always a silent Japanese man servant around when things had to be done—cigarets lighted, ginger-ale poured, sandwiches served.

But on this particular May night the luxury and comfort and beauty of the big room where Lily Lexington sat playing bridge with seven other people meant nothing to her. Nothing at all.

The seven people—her own parents, Staley, Sue, Cain and her mother and father, and Jack Eastman—meant very little to her, too, that night. They were like figures in a dream, seen through the blue-gray haze of cigaret smoke that rose like a cloud above the two card tables.

The only thing that was real to her was the little silver clock on the mantel-piece across the room. . . . Ten minutes to nine . . . five minutes to nine. . . . At nine Pat was coming for her!

At three minutes before the hour she told Staley she had a beastly headache and pushed back her chair.

He pushed back his, and got up when she did.

"Upstairs in the blue room there's a medicine chest with some headache tablets in it. They're very good," he said, looking at her anxiously as he walked with her to the foot of the wide stairs. "I'll wait here for you—don't take more than one tablet."

"Please don't wait for me," she begged him. "Please go back and play cards. I'll be right down."

She was telling him a lie, just as she had fibbed about the headache. She had no headache, and she had no intention of going back to the card game.

Her plan was to run upstairs, put on her cape, and slip out of the house without anyone seeing her. After that they could all think what they wanted to think about her. . . . She didn't care what they thought.

All she cared about was getting out into the starry, scented darkness of the spring night with the man she loved—with Pat France, in his chauffeur's uniform!

Everything else she ever had cared about or wanted seemed trifling and unimportant, all at once. Everybody else seemed dull as ditch water—everybody but Pat.

She did not even glance toward the medicine chest in the dressing room off the blue room when she ran upstairs. She snatched her cape from the bed where she had thrown it and sprayed herself with some perfume from a tall blue-and-gold atomizer on the powder table between the windows.

As she set it down on the table top she saw the flash of automobile headlights turning into the drive and knew that Pat had come for her. Her heart felt as if it were nose-diving like an airplane, and she ran lightly out of the room and tiptoed down the stairs, hoping and praying that no one would see her—especially Staley.

She reached the landing, and as she started down the last flight of steps she saw him waiting for her. "Whew!" he said, blinking his eyes, as if they smarted. "Is perfume good for headache? Woman, you smell like a scent factory!"

Then he saw that she had her cape wrapped around her. "You really have a headache, haven't you?" he asked, as if he had been doubting her word. "Wait a second. I'll run you home and come right back."

Lily laid her hand on the door knob.

"Please don't bother. Our car's right here in the drive," she said quickly. "I'll be home in 10 minutes. You go back to your card

Second Tunnel Under S-4 Near Completion

By International News Service.

PROVINCETOWN, Mass., Dec. 28.—The third day of fair weather enabled the divers from the Falcon, of the S-4 rescue squadron, to continue their submarine salvaging work at about where they left off in the blow of last night.

Work was started early today and it is expected that the second tunnel, directly below the deck gun, will be completed before nightfall.

The tunnel is already excavated one-half of the way from the starboard side. There remains only 16 feet of mud and sand to clear away.

Navy officials are now of the opinion that a third tunnel will be unnecessary.

The chains will be placed in the space between the hull and the rudder and the stern and in the two tunnels now practically completed.

The water will then be pumped from the flooded compartments of the S-4. This operation will be one of the most delicate of the entire work.

Perfect weather for a continued space of time and calm waters will be required, for the divers will have to get inside the S-4.

A sudden blow last night caused the Falcon to shift her position and operations were suspended rather than risk the lives of the divers in the heavy swell of the waves.

AUTO HITS SLED, BOY, 7, KILLED

BUTLER, Dec. 28.—John Robert Haslett, 7, of Karns City, was killed last night when his sled, on which he was coasting on the Butler road, was struck by an automobile driven by Floyd Hilliard, of Bruin. Hilliard is being held by state police of Butler, pending an investigation. Hilliard declared the accident was unavoidable.

"Give Me 90 Days," He Pleads, but Gets $5 Fine

"Your honor, I was drunk, give me 90 days," pleaded John Solman, 35, 1611 Webster avenue, in North Side Police Court today.

"Can't do it," Magistrate E. M. Hough refused. "It's your first offense."

"Give me 60 days, then, your honor."

"Can't do it."

"Thirty, your honor?"

"Nope," replied Hough. "I'll give you three days—or a $5 fine."

Solman's son paid the fine.

Senate Prepares to Sift Vare-Wilson Balloting

WILL SEIZE VOTES IN 10 DAYS

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 28.—The question of whether Pennsylvania shall have a Democratic senator for the first time in modern history came a step nearer the Senate today when it was learned that some 1,500,000 votes cast in the Keystone State's senatorial election last year will be seized within ten days.

The seizure, pending for months, will be a move toward the recount demanded by William B. Wilson, former Democratic cabinet member, in his contest for the senatorial toga won but not worn by William S. Vare, Republican senator-elect. If the Senate finds enough errors or throws out enough ballots to overcome Vare's plurality of 173,000, Wilson will win the seat.

The ballots will be brought here by the Senate Elections Committee from 65 counties in Pennsylvania, where they were impounded by Federal Court order last September. The ballots from the two remaining counties—Allegheny and Philadelphia—were seized a year ago by the Reed slush fund committee.

Meanwhile the Reed committee will meet January 7 to give Vare and Senator-elect Frank L. Smith, Republican, of Illinois, a new hearing on slush fund charges. This will be a preliminary to the final battle to deny them all title to the seats they apparently won last November.

For Vare, however, it will be only a step in his uphill fight to get in the United States Senate. Unlike Smith, who will have the opportunity to win a seat by winning another election, Vare will not be sure for many months whether he can get into the Senate. This will be due to the Wilson contest.

If denied his present seat, Vare, of course, can run for re-election to the vacancy thus created, but he can't be sure there is a vacancy until the Wilson contest is decided. If the Senate ultimately declares Wilson legally elected the Democrat would be seated, even though Vare had won an election to fill the vacancy in the meantime. The seating of Wilson would expel Vare automatically and give the Democrat a six-year term from last March 4.

SUES WIFE'S FAMILY

ARCHIBALD L. LYNNE AND WIFE

Archibald L. Lynne, vice president of the Elevator Company of America, has filed a $500,000 alienation of affections suit in a Chicago court. His action follows closely his estranged wife's filing of a suit for divorce. Lynne named as defendants Albert Pick, president of a large Chicago manufacturing company; his son, Albert, Jr., and the latter's wife. The men are the father and brother, respectively, of Lynne's wife, and although the charge has not yet become known, it is believed that he will contend that they are responsible for his marital troubles.

GANG WAR RENEWED; 2 DEAD

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—(AP.)—Two men were dead today in what police believed was a renewal of gang warfare, following a holiday truce.

A volley of revolver shots greeted Charles Miller, beer runner, as he started to leave Bob's Lone Tree Tavern on the northwest side shortly after midnight. Although Miller apparently recognized his assassins, he died without speaking. The men escaped.

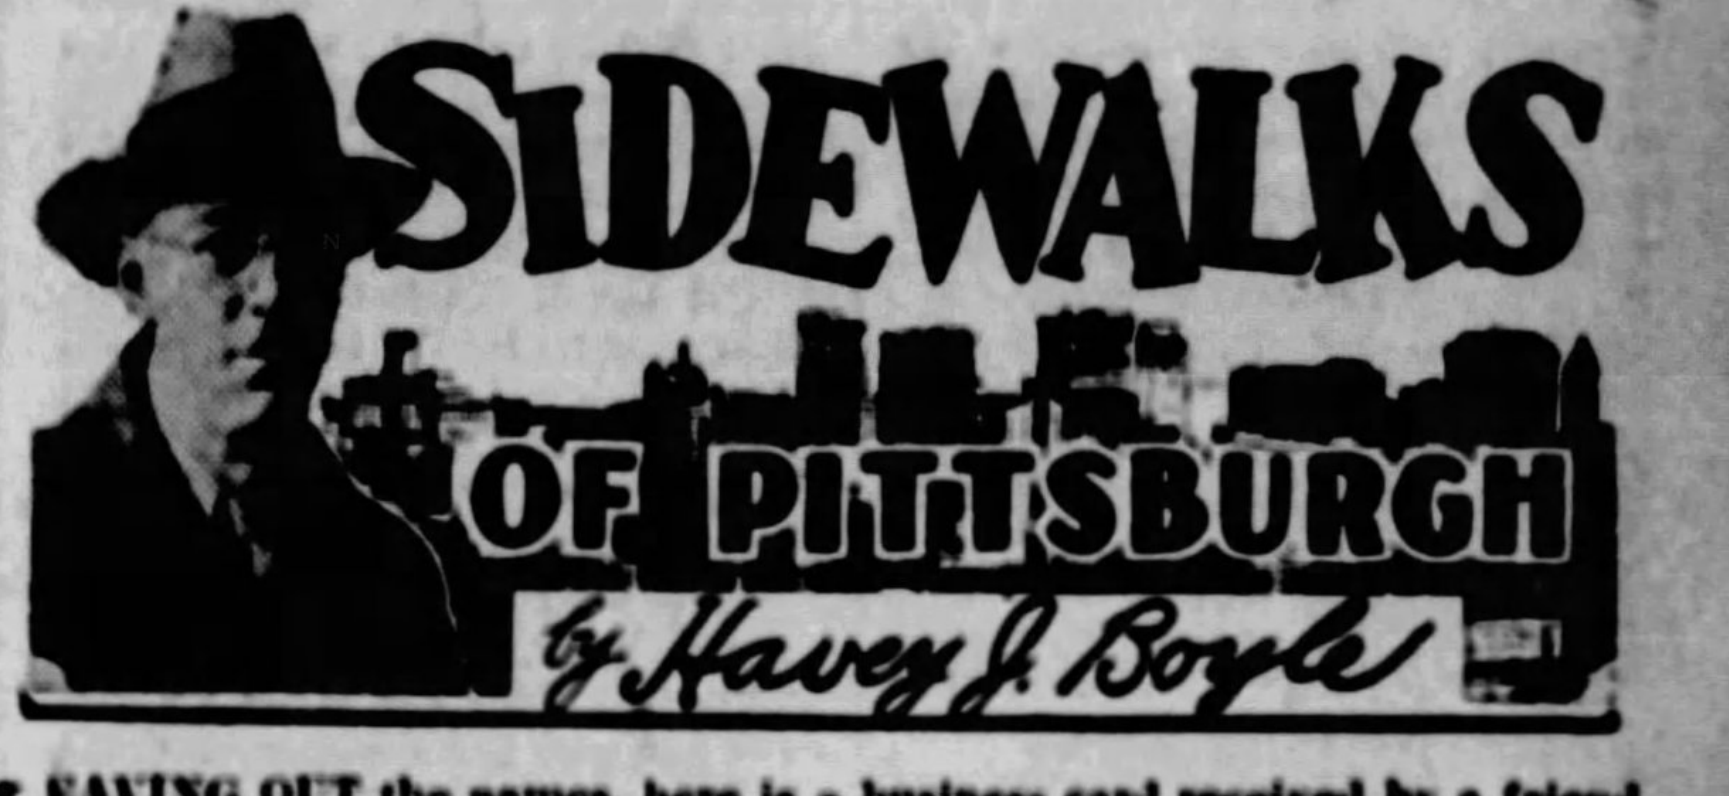
About an hour later, a man was hauled into a hospital by several companions who dropped him on the floor and left, telling a nurse they were going for his hat and coat. They did not return, but the man was later identified as John Davis.

He was believed to have been a member of the gang that shot Miller and was accidentally wounded in the head by one of his own party. Unable to talk, he died within a short time after his companions left.

Miller had been admitted to the tavern after it had been closed, Robert Treebus, owner, said. After a few minutes of conversation, Treebus unlocked the door and let his visitor go and the gang pushed in. They did not attempt to molest Treebus or his employes.

TO OBSERVE WILSON BIRTHDAY AT DINNER

The annual Woodrow Wilson dinner in celebration of the birthday of the late war President will be held tonight at 6:30 in the Roosevelt Hotel. Mrs. J. Wood Clark is chairman of the affair. The speakers will be Rabbi Samuel H. Goldenson and former Congressman John H. Wilson of Butler. Mrs. Carol Miller will act as toastmaster.



SIDEWALKS OF PITTSBURGH

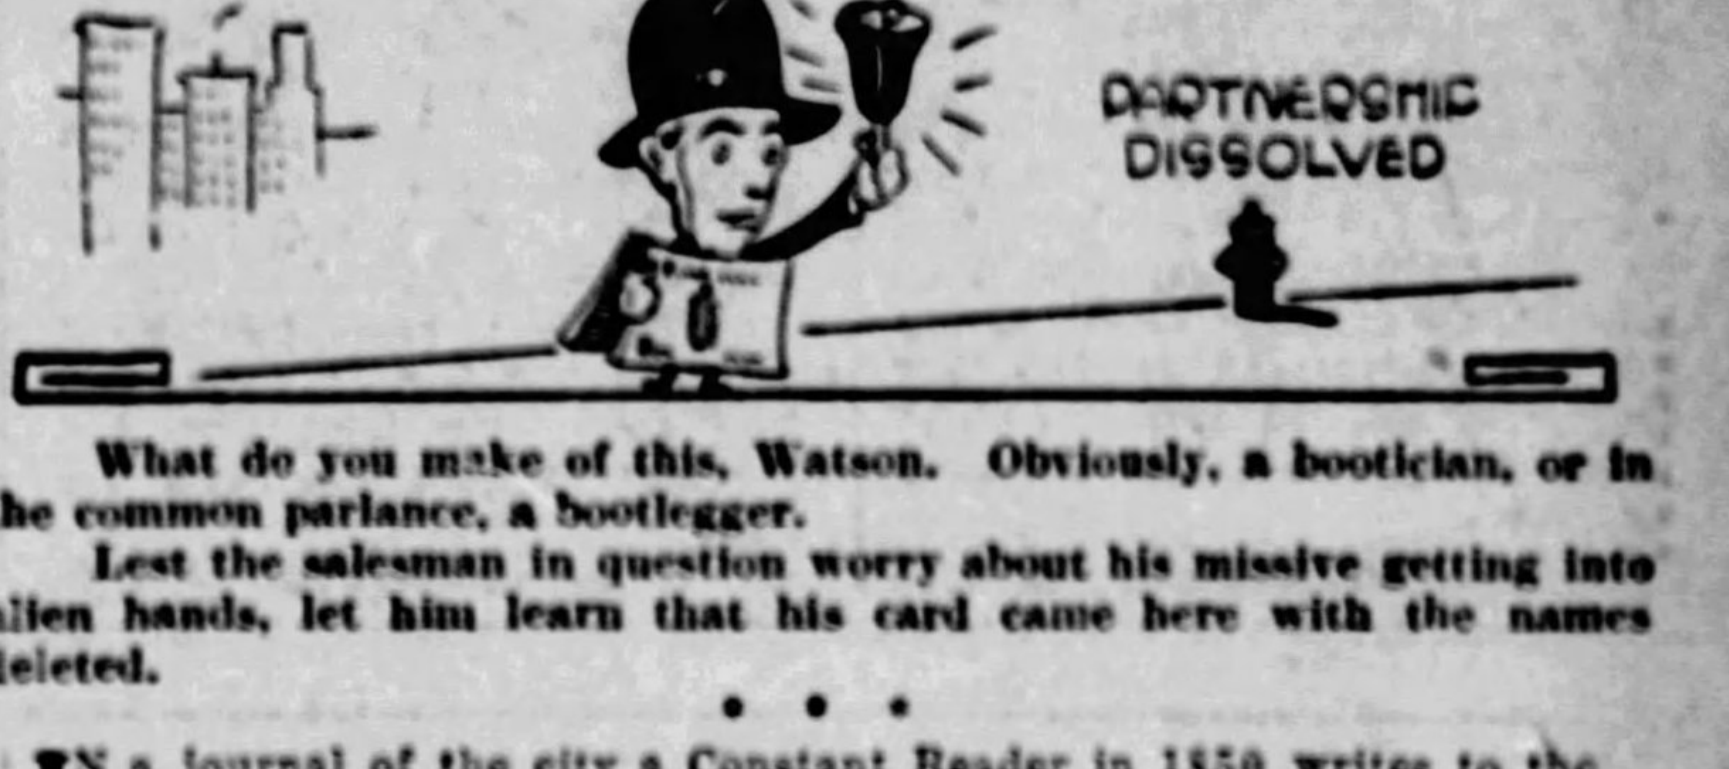
LEAVING OUT the names, here is a business card received by a friend, who relays it to this department: "Mr. . . . . . has left the city for an indefinite time. Being that I was connected with him for the last two years, he has left the business in my care. Inclosed you will find my card. Thanking you for future business, I remain, Yours, etc."



What do you make of this, Watson. Obviously, a bootician, or in the common parlance, a bootlegger.

Lest the salesman in question worry about his missive getting into alien hands, let him learn that his card came here with the names deleted.

IN a journal of the city a Constant Reader in 1850 writes to the editor to protest against the salaries paid to city officials. "Where is all this money coming from?" he asks, citing that the Mayor of Pittsburgh draws down $600 a year; the clerk to the mayor, $300, with the city treasurer getting $700.

Another letter in the same journal contains a lament that the young folks of the day seem restless and wild in contrast to the fine decorum of the boys and girls of the preceding generation.

NOT owning the power of a prophet, I cannot say whether eventually Sunday concerts will be allowed in Pittsburgh, although a correspondent writes in, saying they will come within a short time. Incidentally, taking a shot at the earnest folk opposed to the Sunday concerts, the correspondent quotes these lines: "The Puritan hated beerbaiting, not because it gave pain to the bear, but because it gave plasure to the spectators."

That Satan looks upon Sunday concerts as one of his pets to lure poor souls into his realm, I don't believe. I believe Satan has better artillery than Sunday concerts.

If I were opposed to Sunday concerts I know what I should do. I'd stay away from them. Insofar as I can make out, no one yet has proposed a law making attendance compulsory.

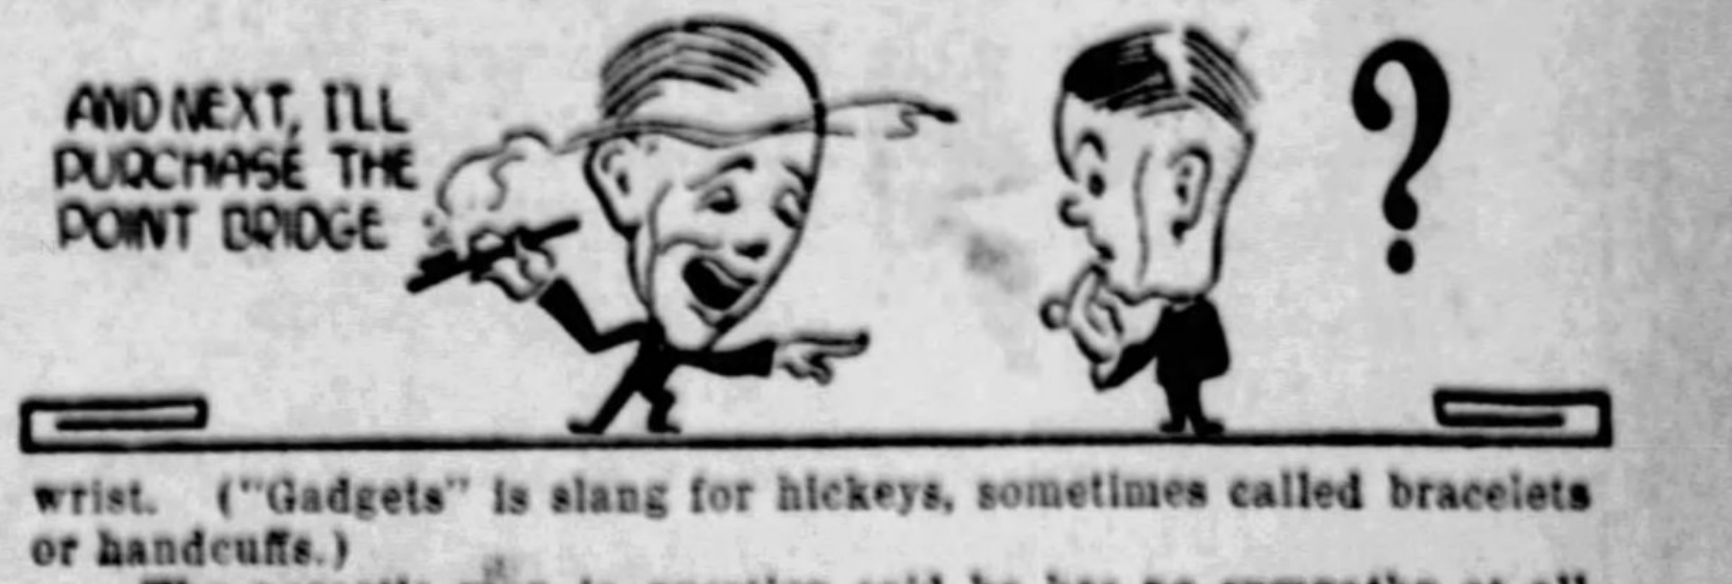
A NARCOTIC SLEUTH was in to see me the other day. He had just "copped a sneak" on a peddler of dope. The revenue man posed as a boy who likes a sleigh ride now and then, and after winning the confidence of the peddler, snapped the gadgets on his wrist. ("Gadgets" is slang for hickeys, sometimes called bracelets or handcuffs.)



AND NEXT, I'LL PURCHASE THE POINT BRIDGE

The narcotic man in question said he has no sympathy at all for the peddler. For the consumer his heart now and then aches.

Lenient as possible with the poor fellow who "goes for the snow," the narcotic agent makes up for this by being tough with sly guys who make a living in such a dirty way. Very few of the peddlers inhale themselves, this interesting spy reports.

THERE is a kind of national bund of opium smokers. There are not many delegates-at-large in Pittsburgh, but there are a few. They are addicts, but not, as one might say, fanatics. They take their little smoke regularly, but otherwise live normal lives. A "smoker" in Pittsburgh will entertain lavishly for a "smoker" from out of town who drops in for a visit. The courtesy, of course, is returned when our local "smokers" go on tour. Few of them have any of the characteristics portrayed by stagey actors who likely don't know much about the characters they seek to imitate.

game. I don't want to spoil everybody's evening."

He shrugged his shoulders, looking at her in a puzzled sort of way. She certainly did not look at all ill, with her big gray-green eyes glowing with excitement and her face freshly powdered and rouged.

Staley switched on the porch light and followed her out into the fresh air.

The first person he saw was Pat France, holding open the door of the Lexington's new blue limousine.

If he were startled or annoyed he certainly did not show it. His face was a good-natured mask as he said goodnight to Lily. He held her hands in his for a moment and then kissed her squarely and firmly upon her mouth, as if they were alone—as if Pat France were only a part of the car and not a human being at all.

"I certainly am getting a great boot out of this!" said Lily. Pat's face showed jealousy as clearly as the color of his eyes. . . . She wanted Pat to be jealous! She was glad that he was!

She climbed into the car and it backed down the drive. Before it reached the street Lily had swung her slim self over the seat and was sitting beside her chauffeur.

"You're not going to take me straight home? You're going to take me for a nice drive so that we can talk and talk and talk, aren't you?" she asked him, sitting just as close to him as she could.

He shook his head. "I told you I'd take you straight home," he said, and turned his face toward her for a second. "Look here, I know you're engaged to that bird back there, if you don't. . . "I'm going to take you home! Don't you suppose he's going to telephone your house in about 15 minutes to see if you are at home? Of course he is! And you're going to be there to answer him and tell him you're all right!"

Lily slid over to the farthest corner of the seat and sulked. "I don't understand why you came out here to work for us, if you didn't want to see anything of me," she said, sullenly.

"You know doggoned well why I came," Pat answered her harshly. "I came because I couldn't stay away. . . . Don't think I enjoy being out here, working for your mother. I've never had this kind of a job before. I've owned my own cab and worked around Roy Jetterson's livery—I've never worked in a houseful of women before. This afternoon Carrie, your mother's maid, asked me to drive her to market—"

"What's so terrible about that?" asked Lily. "If you hate your job, all you have to do is pack up your clothes and leave it tonight—I didn't ask you to come out here to us, you know!"

The car rolled on a block or two. It turned into Montpelier road and swung into the Lexingtons' driveway. It stopped at the steps and Pat jumped out, came around and opened the door beside Lily.

She looked at him, her eyes big pools of shadow in the darkness. "Do you know why we argue and row like this, Pat France?" she asked him, standing close to him in the driveway, with her hands on the lapels of the Oxford-gray uniform.

She told him why they did. "Because we're in love with each other," she said. "That's why I tipped you with that quarter the last day you drove me home in your cab—because I love you and can't have you, and it makes me cross and mean. It makes me want to scratch and bite and fight. It makes me want to hurt you—just as it makes you want to hurt me."

"I—hurt you?" He shook his head. "Not in a lifetime! I'd never hurt you!"

Lily laughed. "Yes, but you have!" she cried. "What about the time you came to this house and accused me of stealing—stealing—your identification card! I suppose that didn't hurt me?"

"I saw you take it that day," he said. "And I never said a word about it at the time. I made it an excuse to come back for it and see you again—and then I found out how things stood between you and your friend Drummond. So I made up my mind to keep you out of my cab."

"But you couldn't!" Lily laughed again. "You couldn't, could you, Pat? I wanted to be in it with you—and I always get what I want, somehow! I always, always do."

Inside the hall of the house the telephone rang. They could hear it from where they stood in the cool darkness.

"There he is! There's Drummond on the 'phone! Didn't I tell you he'd be calling you about this time?"

Checking up on me!" Lily's voice was full of bitterness. "Keeping tabs on me!"

Pat shook his head. "Oh, no, that's not fair," he answered. "He's doing just what any man would do. He's telephoning to see that you reached home safely and to ask if your head's better."

"My head's fine. . . . It's my heart that's all wrong," said Lily, and then she stood on tiptoe and put her arms around the man's neck. "Pat—I can't help it. I love you—and I'm not going to marry Staley Drummond. I couldn't!—Why Pat, how could I marry him and go off to Europe on a boat with him, caring about you the way I do? Why, it would be the wickedest thing in the world, Pat, wouldn't it?"

"You can't make hash of a good man's life, either," Pat was beginning, when the door of the house opened.

Carrie's voice came floating out into the darkness. "Is that you in the car, Miss Lily?"

"Yes." Lily dropped on the step.

YUM TIDA TOODLE YUM TIDA TOODLE UM-PA UM-PA TOODLE OU! TUM!
'RAB' WHAT DO YOU CALL THIS DANCE YOU ARE DOING!
ITS SOME KIND OF A TANGO!
BUT THE BAND IS PLAYING A WALTZ!
OH! I NEVER PAY ANY ATTENTION TO THE MUSIC!
John Held Jr

"My dear, I HONestly had the WILDest time at the COUNtry Club the other night because it was the MOST weird-and-WITCH-like party you've ever SEEN, my dear, because there were PRACticably NO STAGS and simply EV'rybody was STUCK for HOURS, do you know what I mean? Well, ANYways, my dear, whenever I GO to one of those foul COUNtry Club parties I simply VOW I'll NEVer go aGAIN because you just SIT HEAVily or get STEERED round VAGUEly for a couple of HOURS at a STRETCH with some odd YOUTH who DANces like NOTHing HUman and is GA-ga with GIN or something—you know the type! Well, ANYways, my dear, I went with ARab and we went to GRACE'S DINner and, my dear, it was the FUNniest affair you've ever GAZED upon because there were actually MORE odd SOULS present! You know that THORwald FRINGE who sort of has RUSH of TEETH to the MOUTH, my dear—well HE was there and I could have SLAIN him because he's actually the FRESHest guy I've ever MET, my dear, because he HONestly says the RUdest THINGS to you. F'r instance he asked me where my STOCKings ENDed UP when they started to RUN—can you BEAR it, my dear? REALLy I was SIMply FUrious, and ARab had me all hot and BOTHered the way he carried ON at the DANCE afterward, my dear, because I mean he simply has NO sense of TIME and ANYways he NEVer stands on his own FEET, do you know what I mean?"

Love's Embers

Absorbing Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

By Adele Garrison

Mary Harrison and Marion Morton Are to Become Chums After All

THERE is no approach more soothing to a mother's heart than praise given to her child. I knew that poised and self-sufficient as was Lillian Underwood, I could wield no more trenchant weapon for Mary than the slangy but heartfelt tribute which Dicky's tempestuous young niece had given Lillian's daughter.

I saw the rather set expression of her face relax and her eyes soften as I told her of Mary's assertion that Marion "couldn't do anything mean to save her life," and that "it must be pretty soft to have things tugging the right way inside your soul instead of the wrong way."

"Poor child," she exclaimed. "I did not know she had that feeling for Marion. And you think she is sincere in her realization of the soul struggle she has before her if she wishes to conquer the traits that early mistraining fostered?"

"I know she is," I returned promptly, feeling much as if I were doing battle for Mary upon a slippery field. "But surely, Lillian, you can see that the child sorely needs helpful and kind companionship."

She nodded thoughtfully, then flashed a swift smile at me.

"I think she has that—in you," she said, "but it isn't fair that you should bear all the burden of rehabilitating her soul. I can see your point when you said a little while ago that she needs Marion, but—can't you see mine when I can't help but remember Mary's experience with Jack Leslie and in that cabaret, and feel reluctant to throw Marion into her company?"

I stirred impatiently, for I felt that Lillian's perceptions had been blinded by her overweening anxiety to keep her young daughter from all doubtful associations.

"Before we go any further into this thing," I said, "let me assure you of something which should be needless between us. If Mary Harrison were my own daughter and I thought association with her would injure Marion, do you think I would throw the girls together, any more than you would if conditions were reversed?"

"That's granted of course," she said, looking intently at me.

"Will you give me credit for having had opportunities for observing and judging many girls of Mary's age during my career as a teacher?"

"That's granted, also," she said promptly.

"Then," I went on steadily, "I want you to know that I believe that Mary has not been harmed in the least by that experience of hers in the cabaret. Leslie was playing a waiting game, and I do not believe he ever startled her until that night when your prompt action, together with the strong right arm of Hugh Grantland and Noel Veritzen put him definitely out of Mary's life.

"Please understand me," I said, forestalling the comment I saw upon her lips. "I am not defending Mary's action in slipping out each night and dancing masked in that cabaret. It was contemptible, treacherous, everything that would stamp a girl as dishonorable and possessed of traits that never could be eradicated. But I have studied her very carefully, and I say to you with the utmost confidence that I believe the lesson she received when she found out Leslie's real character, and her remorse for Noel's broken hand —and for the—the—misunderstanding between Dicky and me, have been just the things needed for her salvation."

"While, on the other hand, I suppose she does need a companion near her own age," Lillian said thoughtfully. "All right, Madge, you win. Marion and I will come to the farm. I guess you know how gladly. I've been blue as indigo thinking of going anywhere else."

For the Lovelorn

By ELEANOR GALE

Black-Eyed Brunnette Girl.

DEAR MISS GALE:

It makes me so mad when I read so often that men are looking for a true, old-fashioned girl and having such difficulty in finding her. What do the men really want? Are there really men who would care for just an old fashioned girl? The real thing is and as you say too, Miss Gale, that the good girl (and how well I know how many of them there are!) does not invade public dance halls, cabarets, road houses, etc. but stays at home, waiting for her true Prince Charming to come along. Oh, you men! Wake up to this fact, I think it's about time. I am an old-fashioned girl. I do not believe in going out with strange men, auto rides, and all the other evils. My parents are still with me, but I do not mind it, as I know it is for my own good. I am a girl looking for an old-fashioned man. All right, Blue-Eyed Blondie, this message is for you, and take it from me, there are many good girls just like you are looking for. Find her.

BLACK-EYED BRUNETTE GIRL.

I agree with you entirely, my dear.

KEARNS PAYS $25,000 FOR BAKER'S CONTRACT

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The cauliflower market, which had a bull session with the purchase of Jack Delaney by Joe Jacobs for $50,000, recorded a further rise today with the announcement that Jack Kearns, former manager of Jack Dempsey, had bought Sergt. Sammy Baker's contract for $25,000.

The purchase of two prominent fighters, neither a champion, for such unprecedented sums within a week has given the boxing business an unusual stimulus.

Baker, a welterweight, who stopped Ace Hudkins of Nebraska, for some time has been regarded as Joe Dundee's most dangerous challenger for the 147-pound title.

GRID RULES TO COME UNDER FIRE

By Universal Service.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Three separate tribunals will deliberate over the new football rules within the next two days in New York. Deliberation, however, is as far as the negotiations will go, as the official meeting of the football rules committee is not until February.

The Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Football Officials will convene at the Hotel Astor today. Tomorrow the meeting of the National Collegiate Athletic Association, which includes representatives from nearly all of the important colleges in the country, will meet at the Astor. Members of the Football Coaches' Association will have their day on Friday.

The rule which moved the goal posts 10 yards behind the end lines and the fumbled punt innovation are the two changes which are expected to draw the most fire.

Rogers M. Baird and Dan B. Dougherty, delegates from the Pittsburgh chapter of the Eastern Association of Intercollegiate Football Officials' Association to the association's meeting in New York left last night for the confab.

John C. Holahan, graduate manager of athletics at Duquesne University, will leave today to attend the annual meeting of the National Collegiate Athletic Association in New York. Harry Stansbury of West Virginia University also will attend this meeting.

Long's Sport Comment

the Rovers for first place in runs scores, each club having 817 tallies to its credit.

The Pirates would have finished with a big lead over the entire field but for the fact that the Giants made 109 home runs, many of them of the joke variety by reason of the close stands, while the Pirates made only 54 home runs because they played their home games on a real ball field.

Despite the tie due to those conditions there is no doubt that Pittsburgh was by far the leading run-getting team of the league.

It was the same cheap home-run factor in New York that prevented the Bushmen from leading the circuit in total bases.

AND it is not only on the offensive side that the batting averages prove the class of Pittsburgh's pennant winners.

There is an interesting column showing the number of runs scored by each club's opponents, and here the defensive strength of the Pirates is revealed.

With the solitary exception of Brooklyn, which did not play as many games as Pittsburgh, fewer runs were scored by opponents against the Picaroons than against any other team in the league.

Though the Giants tied with the locals in runs scored, they did not approach the Bushmen defensively, as 720 runs were scored against New York, whereas only 659 were scored against Pittsburgh, a difference of 61 runs in favor of the Bucs. And, at that, the latter played one game more than the McGrawites.

St. Louis was scored against six times more than Pittsburgh, and Chicago was scored against two times more, though each played three games fewer than the Rovers.

ALL of which would appear to indicate that there was nothing wrong with Pittsburgh's pitching. Some critics at times raved over the twirlers of St. Louis and Chicago, but figures do not lie, and the fact that fewer runs were scored against Pittsburgh than against any of their pennant rivals shows clearly that the Pittsburgh pitchers really did better work than any staff in the lot.

This should also serve to dispel the fears of some fans who seem to consider it imperative that the Pirate staff be bolstered.

The disclosures in the official figures on runs scored by opponents that the local hurlers outpitched the staff of every other flag contender during the season, make it reasonably safe to assume that there is nothing to be worried about in connection with the home slab corps for 1928.

As a matter of fact, there is every promise that Pittsburgh's pitching will be even better next year, with Kremer and Miljus available for the full route instead of for only part of the time, as was the case last season, with Aldridge prodded into improved form and with Fussell and Peery added to the stable.

AN additional item that must not be overlooked in reckoning the probable improvement in the Pirate pitching is the fact that the inner defense behind the hurlers will be strengthened by the appearance of Adams at second base, plugging up the hole through which many a game trickled away during 1927.

Adams' cleverness at the keystone station, by the way, stands out impressively in the official National League fielding averages published in The Sun-Telegraph today. In 60 games at the midway, Sparky made only two errors in a total of 345 chances, for an average of .994, an astonishing performance and a mark that would be a credit to even a first baseman.

ANOTHER interesting feature of the fielding averages to Pittsburgh fans is that they show Glenn Wright, in spite of his having had an off season, was second among the league shortstops in double plays, being only three behind Travis Jackson of the Giants, who led the league with a total of 85.

Except for such notable achievements as those of Adams and Wright, however, fielding averages do not count for a great deal. Very frequently they are deceptive.

Look at Pie Traynor's ranking at third base, for instance. He is eighth on the list with an average of .961, while Rhyne, Toporcer, Lindstrom, Pinelli, Dressen, Sand and Adams are ahead of him.

Dressen is the only one of those named who played regularly, but who would think of trading Traynor for several Dressens?

IT is in such cases that fielding averages often are misleading.

Players like Traynor (assuming that there are any others like Pie) often have low averages because they make errors after taking long chances and turning in sensational stops, while others escape being charged with misplays because they do not cover the same amount of ground and do not get near to the same kind of batted balls.

DUKES

score as many points as they did in the opening period. Marietta failed to score a field goal in the second half until within three minutes of the end of the game.

DUKES DO WELL

While the Dukes looked better than they did against Wesleyan, (they all look good when they are winning) there were several ragged spots noticed in their play. Their passing is still groggy and inaccurate, and both Benedict and Losman have difficulty in getting back into defensive positions from the offense.

Benedict was the leading point getter of the game, tagging 15 points on seven field goals and a shot from the foul line. He played a pretty good game, as did Losman, who looked vastly better than he did in the inaugural with Wesleyan.

This little Stevens chap played a fine game at forward, starting in place of Capt. Jerry Reich, who was kept out of the game until the second half. Stevens covered his man and position well and handled the ball in fine fashion.

Jock Rosenberg came within a hair's breadth of cracking his skull open when he took a high dive after making a shot and just missed ramming his coco into the steel rail that bounds the ticket booth end of the floor. As it was, he banged up his back and shoulder and broke his thumb. Porter, Marietta guard, suffered a badly cut eye in the second half and was removed to the Mercy Hospital, where several stitches were taken in the gash. Jock also took a trip to the hospital after the game to have his thumb, leg, back and shoulder looked after. It was a tough night for the ambulance drivers.

PITT STARTS WORK

Dr. H. C. Carlson, left in charge of the athletic doings out at Pitt now that the football team is speeding westward, where men are men and most of 'em play football for Pop Warner, will call his Pitt Panther basketballers around him today and begin work for the Ohio State game Saturday night.

The Panthers came out of the Dartmouth game (?) in fine trim and will enter into the preparations for the Buckeye struggle in good physical condition.

SHARKEY AT WORK FOR HEENEY BOUT

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—Fears expressed among boxing fans that Jack Sharkey would not go through with his scheduled match with Tom Heeney of New Zealand, O., January 13, were in a measure laid at rest today when Tex Rickard, the promoter, and the New York Athletic Commission both expressed themselves as satisfied that the Boston heavyweight was in good shape.

In addition to the above assurances, Johnny Buckley, manager of Sharkey, sent a message in which he said: "Jack knocked out Rocky Stone twice during a three-round workout Tuesday. He stopped Stone in the first round and again in the third."

DUKE, W.-J. GRID GAME LOOMS AS CERTAINTY

Pitt in First Workout Today on Trip West

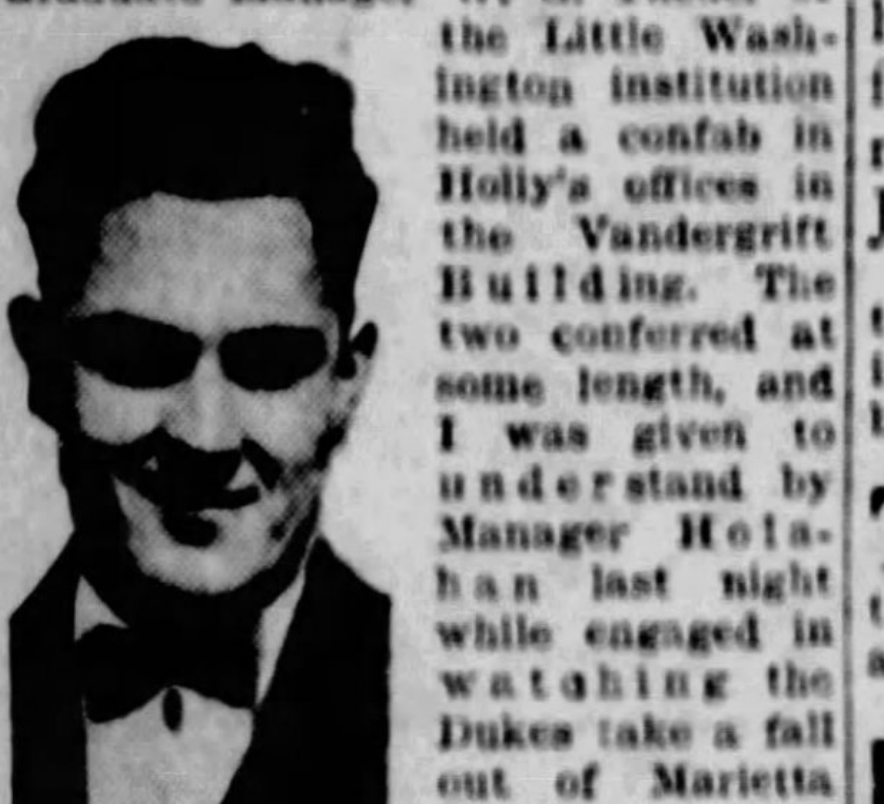
SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS
BEST IN PITTSBURGH WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 28, 1927 Y-ONE

MAY BATTLE IN 1928; CAGERS WIN

By JESS CARVER.

WITHIN a week, Graduate Manager of Athletics John C. Holahan of Duquesne University will announce the scheduling of Washington and Jefferson as a gridiron opponent for the Dukes for 1928. The announcement probably will be made after Holahan returns from New York, where he will attend the coaches' and officials' meetings which are beind held there, beginning today.

All this was indicated, and strongly so, yesterday after Holahan and Graduate Manager W. G. Theuer of the Little Washington institution held a confab in Holly's offices in the Vandergrift Building. The two conferred at some length, and I was given to understand by Manager Holahan last night while engaged in watching the Dukes take a fall out of Marietta College's basketball team, that tentative plans have been made for the game, which is to be staged in Washington. Of course, John didn't come right out and say that the game was officially "on," but he told enough to lead me to believe that Johnny won't be chasing down another game for the date while in New York.



John D. Holahan

The date of the game, October 13, has already been filled on the Duke schedule, Bethany being scheduled to appear here on that day. It is believed that the matter can be arranged with the Bisons so that the Dukes can be left free to meet Wash-Jeff.

MAY PLAY GEORGETOWN

Manager Holahan may also close for a contest with Georgetown University while in New York. He and Lou Little have already opened negotiations for a game and as both have open dates on their gridiron cards, such a game may be arranged. If it is, it will be played in Washington, D. C.

The Dukes gave Marietta a terrible drubbing last night. Marietta brought a team here that would have trouble winning over some of the local high school fives, and never even threatened to make things interesting for the Dukes. They looked as bad as Ohio Wesleyan looked good last week, so those of you who saw Wesleyan and were fortunate enough to miss seeing Marietta can judge how they must have appeared. The score was 42-16.

At half time the counts was 25-8, and in the second half, the Dukes used two or three different combinations, and consequently failed to

by JAMES J. LONG

IF any doubt had existed that the Pittsburgh club possessed the most powerful attack in the National League last season and won the pennant cleanly on its own merits, it would have been dispelled by the official batting averages announced by League President John A. Heydler.

The superiority of Pittsburgh's attack is shown by a number of points in the averages that appear to have been generally overlooked.

TAKE the individual averages, for instance. They disclose that the Bucs had more .300 hitters among their regulars than any other club in the loop. No fewer than seven Pirates batted above .300, Paul Waner leading the whole league with .380, followed by Lloyd Waner with .355, Pie Traynor with .342, Joe Harris with .326, Clyde Barnhart with .313, Hazen Cuyler with .309 and George Grantham with .305.

Boston had only six, counting Burrus, who played in only 72 games; New York and St. Louis had only five each, counting Blades in the Cardinal list, though he participated in only 61 contests; Philadelphia and Chicago had only three each and Brooklyn and Cincinnati had only one each.

CLUB averages show the supremacy of the Freebooters even more convincingly. In the first place, Pittsburgh, with a team mark of .305, was the only outfit in the league to hit .300 collectively.

The Bucs were first in base hits, second in doubles and triples, and would have easily led the league in the all-important department of runs scored, but for close stands on the New York grounds. Those stands made it possible for the Giants to tie with

FRISCH'S PLAY FEATURES IN FIELDING AVERAGES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE.

FIELDING records often show up the baseball player in the wrong light; nevertheless, there are a few interesting sidelights to the official figures of the National League for 1927 as given out today.

The second-base play of Frank Frisch of the Cardinals, perhaps, is the best feature of the averages. The Fordham Flash, in one of his best seasons, established a new league record of getting in front of 1,059 chances, he accepting 1,037. Frisch broke Hughey Critz's record mark of 1926 when Hughey accepted 945 chances.

Sparky Adams, new Pirate second baseman, set a new average record by fielding .994. Adams, however, played but 60 games in that position. Sparky made only two misplays in 345 chances. That is an extraordinary performance.

Jim Cooney, sure-handed shortstop traded by the Phillies to the Cardinals, broke his own average of .972 made in 1926, by fielding for .978 in 107 games.

Walter Pipp, Cincinnati, leads the first basemen with a percentage of .996.

Fred Lindstrom, New York, is the nominal third base leader with .9675, while Charles Dressen, Cincinnati, is the actual leader with a percentage of .9674.

Albert Spalding, Philadelphia, heads the outfielders with .992. John DeBerry, Brooklyn, and Eugene Hargrave, Cincinnati, tied for leadership in the catching with .996. Charles L. Hartnett, Chicago, had the most passed balls, 12.

Twenty-two pitchers fielded for 1000, but Burleigh Grimes, New York, heads the list, accepting the most chances without a slip, 87.

Princeton Gridder Quits

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 28.—(AP.)—Princeton's football forces yesterday received a stunning blow when Earl Baruch, star quarterback, announced he had withdrawn from the university.

Baruch will be associated with his father in the insurance business, he announced, stating also that his impending marriage to Miss Alice Fox, of Red Rock, Merion, in the late summer, would demand a great deal of preparation.

Baruch was a junior at Princeton and still had one more year of football.

Baruch played a leading role in Princeton's football victories the last season.

TRACK STAR SHOWS GREAT IMPROVEMENT

DECATUR, Ill., Dec. 28.—(AP.)—Although remaining under a strict quarantine, Loren Murchison, noted Olympic track star, continued to show slow but steady improvement over the Christmas holiday period from his attack of cerebral spinal meningitis, which has confined him to a hospital bed for two weeks.

Physicians stated yesterday that there was a possibility of the quarantine being lifted by the end of the week.

DODGE CITY WELCOMES EASTERN CHAMPS

By SUN-TELEGRAPH SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

DODGE CITY, Kan., Dec. 28.—Dodge City called it a holiday when the crack Santa Fe flier, "The Navajo," brought the Pitt football squad into this sunlit western town town shortly before noon today.

A throng of interested citizens milled around the station awaiting the arrival of the Golden Panthers and Dodge City High School athletes were on hand to volunteer the use of their gridiron for the Panthers' first workout of the trip.

Coach Jock Sutherland allowed the players to walk about the town after luncheon and then escorted the squad to the local high school.

Sutherland drove his men through a stiff one-hour session. Jimmy Hagan and Charley Edwards unlimbered their kicking apparatus and boosted a dozen or more 60-yard punts for the edification of an admiring crowd of spectators.

Assistant Coach Charley Bowser then led a round of vigorous calisthenics to stretch train-weary muscles. The practice ended with a lengthy signal drill.

The Panthers appear to be in fine trim and 36 hours of constant traveling apparently has not dimmed the enthusiasm of Sutherland's squad.

Council Lauds Pitt

AT a meeting of the City Council yesterday, official recognition was given the undefeated University of Pittsburgh football team, now speeding across the country on its way to the Pacific coast, where it will meet Leland Stanford University in the Tournament of Roses games at Pasadena next Monday.

The recognition came in the form of a resolution, adopted by Council and the Mayor, in which high tribute was paid to Coach Sutherland, Capt. Gibby Welch and the members of the team for their prowess on the gridiron and their clean and manly play. They were referred to as "unofficial ambassadors" from Pittsburgh to the cities through which they will pass on their way West and to the coast cities they will visit before and after the game.

SOCCER

by TOM BIRKS

"JUST as we expected," seemed to be the sentiment of the fans when the news came from Cleveland of the Pittsburgh Soccer Club's defeat at the hands of the American-Hungarians. Looking at the results of the game from every angle, Clevelanders have very little to enthuse over in the victory.

The announced attendance at the game should take away from Cleveland any right it might have to class itself in a position to stage big games. Reports state that the paid admissions totaled one thousand. That many can be seen at any Chartiers Valley League game on a Sunday.

For many years Cleveland attended the national convention, asking for recognition in the big inter-city games. After refereeing quite a number of the big games in the Forest City during the past 10 years, and also attending every game except last Sunday's that found a Pittsburgh club playing, the writer can safely state that Cleveland is passe when it comes to drawing crowds to big soccer games on Sundays. But the officials always seem to have an alibi ready. It is either weather, no publicity, or counter attractions, but the writer feels that none of the Cleveland clubs have a following worth while.

Heidelberg's great win Monday was a surprise for the soccer following in the district. While all felt the National champs would hand the Grant eleven its first defeat, very few thought Balsarini's cracks would score five goals in the first half of the game. The highly touted defense of the upriver club that has held through strenuous league warfare in many seasons failed to hold that Green and Gold Tornado led by Buff Donnelli.

TO LIFT REFEREE'S BAN

PHILADELPHIA, Dec. 28.—(INS.)—The State Athletic Commissioners are scheduled to hold their final meeting of the year here today. Among the matters up for official action is the lifting of the suspension of Francis (Pop) O'Brien, dean of referees. O'Brien, veteran of 40 years' experience as the third man in the ring, was suspended indefinitely just prior to the holidays for refereeing a bout in another state.

SHOTS and PASSES

by JULIUS LEVIN

THE long-awaited battle for first place in the Allegheny County League between the Broadway club of Beechview and the Duquesne Lafayettes, winners of last year's championship, will take place in Duquesne tonight.

The two teams originally were scheduled to meet in Beechview last Friday, but the game was called off due to the death of Mickey Gross' sister.

The battle tonight brings together two of the strongest teams enrolled in the Allegheny County League this winter, each club winning its first three games.

WHILE the major portion of basketball attention will be centered at Duquesne, the South Side Market House should be the scene of a hectic struggle tonight when the B. L. Succops, just striking their natural stride, will attempt to hand the J. J. Mieles, winners of eight successive victories, their first defeat in the P. & O. League.

The Mieles have lost the services of Phil Aiello, their star forward, who is playing with the Pitt Freshmen, and tonight's game is their first without the presence of this sharpshooter in their lineup.

The Succops have shown in recent games that they are no longer a setup for the best of them and if they play up to their usual standard tonight, they stand a good chance of upsetting the high-class Mieles.

THE Enoch Rauhs last night showed their best form of the season to defeat the Goose Goslins of the South Side in an Allegheny County League game at Columbus Temple, 37 to 36, thereby turning the tables for a reverse suffered at their rivals' hands earlier in the season.

It takes a good club to bring out the best that an opponent possesses in the way of basketball ability and the Goslins were that last night, thanks to the presence of Artie Hoffman, George Babic and McVickers in their lineup.

The Goslins found the Rauhs a vastly changed team last night and while they were defeated by one point they were by no means disgraced. Why this team has won only one game in five starts is a mystery. If they continue to play the same game they showed last night, their chances for the second-half championship are exceedingly bright.

The Goslins have Whitey Littell signed as forward, but the former Merry flash was unable to attend last night's battle. Whitey should bolster the lineup considerably.

THOSE who believed that Buckets Sandomire had seen his best days as a professional basketball star had better alter their opinion somewhat, if the former Coffey star's work last night means anything.

Sandomire showed his old-time form in ringing up seven baskets against the Goslins and he was the main factor in the downfall of the South Siders.

Sandomire did not confine his activities to scoring, but played a wonderful floor game. When Sandomire has the range of the basket there are very few in professional basketball who can compare with him.

DRIBBLES

The Knickerbockers and Heinz House will meet in the feature attraction scheduled in the West Penn League tonight. The game brings together one of the leading amateur teams in the Strippers against a quintet that was slow in starting, but is rapidly reaching its natural stride. Heinz House has shown a big improvement in recent games and it would not prove a surprise to see them hand the Knickers a setback tonight.

John and Art Slater, brothers who formerly attended Wash-Jeff College, will be found in the lineup of the Hill Top Y when it clashes with the Presidents on Friday night.

Two preliminary games will precede the main attraction at the South Side Market House Friday night, the Vanities meeting Allentown Turners and the Dairy Cottage five engaging the Sam Meyers Club.

Fire Track Coach After Drunken Charge

BATON ROUGE, La., Dec. 28.—(AP.)—President Atkinson of Louisiana State University announced yesterday that Francis T. Gormley, track coach and athletic trainer, was dismissed because he was "plainly and unmistakably under the influence of alcohol" on the day of the L. S. U.-Mississippi A. & M. College football game at Jackson, Mich. The statement was addressed to "The Parents of L. S. U. Students."

Saying he had "definite and positive information from men of the highest honor and standing" that this charge against Gormley was true, the president said in a statement that when he informed the veteran trainer to this effect and requested his resignation, Gormley replied that anyone who made the charge was a "liar."

"I promptly told him his services with the university had come to a close—the only course left open to me," said President Atkinson.

Y. M. H. A. FIVE MEETS GENEVA TOMORROW

The Geneva College Basketball team, one of the strongest contenders for the Tri-State Conference championship, will make its first appearance of the season in Pittsburgh tomorrow night when the Covenanters clash with the Young Men's Hebrew Association quintet on the latter's floor.

The battle marks the Bellefielders first appearance against a college quintet and they are reported eager to score a victory over the Beaver Falls passers. The Geneva varsity this year is captained by Moy Rubenstein, a member of the Y. M. H. A., and many of his friends will be out to see him in action against the Bellefielders.

Indications are that a large crowd will turn out for the game tonight as interest in the contest has been high. The game will give followers of the Tri-State Conference in this section a chance to compare the Geneva quintet with the Duquesne University varsity.

The Bellefielders have been working for this contest for the last two weeks and will take the floor in the best of physical condition.

BURLIE HOLDS WINS OVER WEE TITLISTS

By HARRY KECK,
Sun-Telegraph Sports Editor.

ALEC BURLIE of Canada, who boxes Willie Davies of Charleroi in the main bout of the all-star card of four eight-rounders in the Motor Square ring next Monday afternoon, boasts quite a record.

He has beaten both Frenchy Belanger and Corp. Izzy Schwartz, who are claiming the world title as the result of recent victories in elimination battles, and also triumphed over Newsboy Brown, Tommy Hughes, Billy Kelly and other topnotchers, including Davies himself. He has won decisions over Belanger and Schwartz within the past year in bouts fought at Toronto.

Illness kept Burlie from competing in the various elimination tournaments, but he is fully recovered now and hopes to make up lost ground. This will be his fourth meeting with Davies. He won the decision at Toronto, lost a bout at Charleroi and the pair fought on fairly even terms at Chicago later.

Alec is a veteran, although only 22 years old. His career runs a close parallel to that of Davies. Both started out boxing exhibitions as soon as they were able to get up their hands and went on from this work into the amateur ranks and then the professional. Burlie was an amateur champion in his own country and in international competition. He is tall and rangy for a man of his pounds.

The Davies-Burlie and other bouts on the Motor Square card promise a lot of action. Young Saylor, knocked out by Willie Harmon, starts along the "comeback" trail against the hard-hitting Rudy Ceder of Tarentum in the semi-final; Young Rudy of Charleroi and Teddy Welch of McKeesport battle each other for the seventh time in the second bout, and Jimmy Belmont of Braddock and Harry Taylor of the North Side clash in a return battle in the opener.

Tommy Loughran has started training for his bout against Leo Lomski in defense of his world's light-heavyweight championship in Madison Square Garden, New York, January 6. Maxie Rosenbloom and Jack McVey have been paired for the semi-final.

Bud Taylor and Tony Canzoneri, who recently fought twice in Chicago for the bantamweight title, will be meeting as featherweights when they clash in Madison Square Garden Friday night. The winner likely will be matched with Benny Bass, recognized as the 126-pound champion. Taylor is the bantamweight champion, but is growing out of that division.

Joe Glick and Johnny Farr meet in a 12-round bout at Cleveland, January 4, with Jack Britton, former welterweight champion, and Floyd Hybert of Cleveland boxing the eight-round semi-final.

Considerable interest is being shown in the experiment of McKeesport, which will lay off professional boxing shows until after a mammoth amateur carnival planned for January 11-12 is out of the way. The McKeesport A. C. will sponsor the affair and Jim Girr will stage it in his Palisades roller rink.

Cuddy DeMarco meets Billy Petrolle at Fargo, N. D., next Monday afternoon. His manager, James (Red) Mason, has left New York for the scene of the battle, where he will be joined by Cuddy.

GREENSBURG HIGH FIVE BEATS NEW KENSINGTON

NEW KENSINGTON, Pa., Dec. 28.—Greensburg High School's basketball team proved too much for the Red and Black passers of New Kensington High School here last evening when the Brown and White quintet, displaying the best basketball seen here this season, defeated Coach Glock's proteges, 17-9.

The Low-Paid Worker Tells How to Live Economically.

By B. C. FORBES

HERE'S one family consisting of husband and wife and 10-year-old boy who "have plenty to eat" on a grocery bill of only $20 a month. How do they do it?

This column tells. It throws insight, also, on how this family manages to get along apparently happy and pay for a home and carry $12,000 of insurance all on "just a little more per week" than the $27.50 received by the Seattle store clerk whose budget was presented here recently.

JUDGING by the number of letters received, alike from struggling families and rich, this subject of how to maintain a home on modest pay possesses widespread interest. Employers as well as workers examine closely the various household budgets which have been given in this column.

THE budget submitted today, with its accompanying letter, is refreshing because of the cheerful note struck by the writer, a railway employe. Not only so, but the practical suggestions on how to buy food, etc., to the best advantage, may help other families who have difficulty in making their pay envelope cover all necessities.

THIS railway workman writes in part:

"Here is my solution of the financial problem of the Seattle store clerk.

"First, I am going to compare my expenses with his. I am getting a salary of just a little more per week than he is, and am also buying a home and my notes on it are larger by practically $10 per month than his:

	His Budget	Mine
Payment on house..	$23.10	*$30.00
Lights	1.75	1.50
Water	.75	.50
Insurance, $1,000...	1.90	No. 15.00
Sick benefit	1.15	None
Boy's school bank.	1.10	None
Daily paper	1.10	.78
Fuel	10.75	No. 2.50
Car fare	4.50	No. 2.50
Lunches	6.75	None
Tobacco	3.00	None
Taxes	4.00	7.50
Housekeeping	45.00	No. 30.00
Clothing	15.00	15.00
Amusements, etc...	4.00	.75
	$122.75	$105.53

*—Plus accrued interest.

No.—Approximately. Life insurance carried, $12,000.

"Now, there are several of his items which I think he could lower considerably. They are tobacco and amusements, and he could considerably lower his cost on lunches by taking them from his home (unless he has some kind of stomach trouble which won't permit it). I do not see how his fuel bill is so high unless he has a worthless furnace, and in that event it would pay him to buy a new one. One advantage I have on that item is that in our home we do not have a furnace, but run a large heating stove, laundry stove to heat water for washing dishes and taking baths, and a grate in our living room.

"I suppose it will be hard for him to believe that the grocery bill for the three of us hardly ever runs over $20 a month, but the way that is handled is, we watch the prices every week-end advertised by the serve-your-self and other chain stores, and when they make a special price on any one item or a 'leader' we go and get that; also, we use a substitute for butter (butter selling at 6c to 55c per lb.), the substitute selling sometimes as low as 19c.

"By this kind of watching, anyone would be really surprised as to how low in price groceries can be purchased. 'Service grocers' will sometimes charge from ¼ to ½ more. Yet all three of us have plenty to eat.

"As to his car fare, I do not know how far he lives from his work, but I walk about two miles each way a day (except when the weather is bad) to get to and from my work.

"I am with a railroad and there are three of us in the family, our boy being 10 years old. I have other expenses besides the ones mentioned above."

A GOOD many letters come from persons who complain that they neither experience nor see much of the "great national prosperity" they constantly read about in the newspapers.

Farmers, naturally, have been among those of this frame of mind.

White-collar employes getting small pay also are asking whether it isn't time for employers to give them a little more consideration. Some complain that the statements and statistics they read about the wage level rising in this country are no doubt true, but that the advances are granted usually to highly unionized workers, not to clerks and other office workers not organized. Is this true?

FUELS FEATURE GENERAL RISE IN MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP.)—Disregarding stiffer call money rates and widespread predictions of a "technical reaction," stock prices forged upward today in apparent anticipation of a heavy January reinvestment demand. Buying centered largely in specialties in which there is a limited floating supply and in the New York public utility issues. J. P. Morgan's selection as the new chairman of the board of the United States Steel Corporation apparently had been discounted, as the stock moved erratically within a rather narrow range.

Weekly steel trade reviews reported the usual sharp falling off in operations, due to seasonal shut-downs, but emphasized the unusually heavy demand for railroad equipment, which will be reflected in operations after the turn of the year. Packard Motors published an unusually favorable quarterly report, showing earnings of $1.84 a share, as against $1.27 in the same quarter a year ago.

Rails, which were rather sluggish in the morning, turned upward in the afternoon under the leadership of St. Louis, San Francisco, Rock Island, Lehigh Valley and Atchison. St. Louis Southwestern was a conspicuous exception, falling back 3 points.

Brooklyn Union Gas, Brooklyn Edison, Consolidated Gas and Abitibi Power all moved into new high ground, some of the gains running from 3 to nearly 5 points. Other issues which broke into new high ground included Christie Brown, Collins & Aikman and Outlet Co. Pan American B was bid up 2 points, but the other oils failed to follow in its wake. American Brown Boveri preferred jumped 10 points and the common 3.

Decline at Seminole.

The Seminole area for 24 hours to 7 a. m. Tuesday produced 244,957 barrels crude oil against 270,153 barrels on Monday.

—I—

Denver Gas Price Advanced.

Continental Oil Company advanced service station price of gasoline 2 cents a gallon at Denver to 15 cents. This is the first time since October 5 that there has been a price differential between the wholesale and retail prices of gasoline at Denver.

—I—

Southern Railway Orders Cars.

Southern Railway Company has purchased 2,000 hopper cars from the Standard Steel Car Company, 750 hoppers from Mt. Vernon Car Company, 1,750 automobile box cars from American Car and Foundry Company, 250 ballast cars from Rodger Ballast Car Company and 500 gondolas and 250 cabooses from Lenoir Car Company.

—I—

Bush Terminal Gains.

Earnings of Bush Terminal Company for 1927 probably will total $1,900,000 after all charges, including depreciation and federal taxes, or the equivalent of $3.15 a share on the approximately 155,100 no par common shares outstanding, after allowing for dividends on preferred and debenture stocks. This would compare with $1,766,076 for 1926, or $4.90 a share on 152,770 no par shares then outstanding. Based on the latter share basis, Bush's earnings this year will equal $5.70 a share, of an increase of slightly more than 16 per cent over the previous year.

—I—

November Rail Earnings.

First 22 railroads to report November earnings had net railway operating income aggregating $39,297,000, compared with $45,843,000 in the same month of 1926, a decrease of 23.2 per cent. Their October net totaled $61,372,000. November gross for these same roads amounted to $193,541,000, against $219,455,000, a decline of 10.0 per cent. Their October gross was $231,461,000.

—I—

Midland Steel Sky-Rockets.

Midland Steel Products preferred furnished the sensation at the opening of the market this morning when it came into the market with an overnight gain of more than 27 points. First sales were at $300 a share as compared with last night's close at slightly above $272. The stock has enjoyed a consistent rise over the last few months mainly by reason of the company's successful application of a newly patented automobile brake known as the "steeldraulic." The high opening attracted some profit taking to the shares and a fairly wide recession ensued. Wild gyrations in the stock continued throughout the greater part of the session. The preferred is a participating issue, cumulative to the extent of 8 per cent and sharing profits remaining after $4 has been paid on the common. E. J. Kulas, president of the company, said today that there is not a thing in sight in the company's affairs to justify the activity in the stock and that he is very much concerned over the apparent manipulation of the shares.

—I—

Exports of Aircraft Products.

Exports of American aircraft products during the first 10 months of 1927 were valued at $1,449,392, an increase of 43 per cent above those for the year 1926, Commerce Department announces.

—I—

Packard Motor Earnings.

The Packard Motor Company reports for the quarter ended November 30 net income of $3,532,208, equal to $1.84 per share on the 2,494,204 shares of capital stock outstanding. This compares with $2,729,172 or 90 cents a share for the preceding quarter and $1,895,475 or $1.27 per share for the same quarter of last year.

—I—

Interborough Improving.

Interborough Rapid Transit November net income totaled $533,786 after all charges, as against $437,736 in November, 1926. For five months the company reports net income of $233,180 compared with net loss of $1,292,007 a year ago.

—I—

Money Market Steady.

Call money renewed at 5½ per cent today, equal to the highest rate so far this season on this class of accommodation. While it created some nervousness which was reflected in an irregular price movement in certain directions, the general list held steady, supported by the strong demand for such leaders as General Electric, Consolidated Gas, United States Steel and General Motors. Banks called about $3,000,000 of loans in New York up to the noon hour, but the higher rate on demand money had attracted outside funds, which served to ease the situation.

RAIL BUYING GIVES STEEL IMPETUS

The Iron Age in its weekly summary of the iron and steel trade tomorrow will say: Railroad equipment buying on a scale scarcely matched in the year makes the final week of 1927 noteworthy just as it bade fair to show the usual year end quiet. Orders for 11,500 freight cars have been placed by four roads, the Southern buying 4,750, the Santa Fe 3,650, the Louisville and Nashville 2,150 and the Chicago and Northwestern 100. The St. Louis-San Francisco has inquired for 4,000 cars, and the Pacific Fruit Express is preparing to ask for bids on 2,000 refrigerator cars. Thus this year, which for weeks has looked like a leaner one than 1926 for the car shops, may run a thousand beyond the total of 67,000 for last year including cars the railroads themselves built.

The whole trade had looked forward with lively interest to the Steel Corporation's meeting of Tuesday and the naming of President Farrell as chief executive met the widespread expectation. Reasonable competition at home and the maintenance of this country's position in foreign trade are taken as firm planks in his platform.

Rolling mill operations in the last week in December do not signify and usually are light. But Pittsburgh, Youngstown, Cleveland and Chicago report some increase over last week. For the Chicago district as a whole, ingot output has gone up to 74 per cent. On the other hand, the Steel Corporation closes the year with little more than a 60 per cent ingot production as an average.

The large expectations the steel trade entertains for 1928 on account of the automobile industry are emphasized again this week, but tinged with disappointment at the pace of Ford production. Spring is now the time for reaching a good production schedule on the new car.

Bar, plate and structural shape specifications have been flowing in upon Pittsburgh and Central Western mills in good volume for another week, and in these heavy products most makers now have a tonnage on their books that will insure good operations through January.

Rail orders just placed include 50,000 tons for the Illinois Central and 6,250 tons for the Missouri-Kansas-Texas. The St. Louis Southwestern is in the market for 15,000 tons.

Sheet specifications have been coming out in good volume for January shipment, but there is not much new business, as most consumers covered before the recent advance. The National Association of Sheet and Tin Plate Manufacturers reports sales for the first half of December at 275,000 tons, bringing unfilled orders as of December 15 up to 600,000 tons. It is probable that the Steel Corporation's sheet mills have done proportionately well.

Heavier buying of pig iron by the automotive industry and larger shipping orders forecast a sharp increase in motor car output. Some production foundries in Michigan are already running full notwithstanding the holiday season. Sales of foundry and malleable pig iron by Cleveland furnaces, largely to the automotive trade, totaled 45,000 tons for the week. For one producer, sales this month are the largest since June, 1925.

Neither of The Iron Age composite prices is changed this week, that for pig iron remaining for a third week at 2.314c a pound. The latter is about 1 per cent above its low level of two months ago.

NEW YORK CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP.)—Heavy dealings and wide fluctuations with violent movements in both directions in many stocks marked the trading on the curb market today. Reactions came in several issues after brisk advances and, taken altogether, the market was of an unusually mixed character.

Midland Steel Products common, which participates to a moderate extent in the earnings of the company after the preferred receives 8 per cent in dividends, advanced 10 points to the new high of 125, and then lost most of its gain. American Rolling Mills moved up 2 points, crossing 105, and Ford Motor of Canada, after advancing 2 points to 584, dropped back to 580. Firestone Tire yielded 1½ in the early trading, but quickly recovered its loss. American Arch, which had been under pressure for a good part of the trading earlier in the year, had an advance of over 4 points.

There was heavy liquidation in Canadian Marconi, which dropped to 3⅝, followed by a rally to 3⅞. Insurance stocks were quieter. North American yielded a little over a point, while Maryland Casualty advanced a point, selling at 197½. Celotex dropped 2 points and Industrial Rayon yielded a point.

Utilities were irregular. Associated Gas and Electric Investors each rose about a point, while Northern States Power, Southeastern Power and United Gas Improvement were in moderate supply.

U. S. Freight, which is understood to have secured additional railroad contracts, rose about 3 points. Sheaffer Pen, after advancing 3 points to 778, dropped to 769. Tubize Artificial Silk rose 6 points to 474.

Oil stocks were irregular. Standard Oil of Indiana, after dropping ¼, became strong, being influenced by the advance in Pan American stock. Gulf Oil also was strong, while Vacuum Oil yielded a little over a point.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP.)—Following is the official list of transactions on the New York Curb Exchange, giving all stocks and bonds traded (000 omitted in sales column in bond list):

Total gold holdings 1,860,357,000. Rate of discount 7 per cent.

NEW YORK BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP.)—The bond market continued to mark time today, with traders disposed to limit their commitments and await developments. Money conditions were virtually unchanged, and prices fluctuated in extremely narrow limits, except in the case of a few convertible issues.

Liquid Carbonic 6s, which are exchangeable for common stock, stood out with a jump of 4⅝ points, selling at 130, against their previous peak of 125½. Erie 5s followed a firm trend, but the Missouri Pacific bonds were easy. Pressure also was directed against Consolidated Gas 5½s.

Very little of interest occurred in the foreign group, in which prices clung to yesterday's final figures. The United States government list recorded only a few transactions.

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP.)—Transactions in the most active bonds on the New York Stock Exchange today were as follows, (00 omitted in sales column (United States bonds in dollars and thirty-seconds of dollars):

COTTON MARKET

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—(AP.)—The cotton market opened steady today at an advance of 4 to 7 points on further buying promoted by reports of an improving tone in the cotton goods situation. The advance to 19.86c for May met considerable realizing, however, while there appeared to be a little southern selling.

Prices eased off in early trading and by the end of the first hour May was selling around 19.77c or 6 points net lower, the general market showing net losses of about 3 to 7 points. A few January notices were reported, but there was continued covering by near months shorts or trade buying of that position against sales of later deliveries.

Private cables said covering with local and Bombay buying had absorbed continental liquidation and a small volume of hedging in the Liverpool market.

The reaction from the opening advance carried the market off to 19.75c for May, or about 6 to 10 points below yesterday's closing quotations. There was enough buying to absorb the comparatively light offerings at these figures, however, and the market was steady later, May selling up to 19.87c and the general list showing net advances of about 3 to 5 points at midday. No fresh news factor was in evidence, but the buying was attributed to a feeling that the improvement reported recently in the demand for cotton goods would be reflected by an increased spot demand after the holidays.

Big Fireproofing Drops Lower

The resumption of demand for Carnegie Metals, which became apparent on the Pittsburgh Stock Exchange yesterday, assumed larger proportions today with the price of the stock rising to the best level of the current recovery. Several hundred shares changed hands at the opening at 17 and slightly above as compared with yesterday's initial transactions around 16.

The trading in Carnegie overshadowed the other dealings today mainly because of the heavy turnover in the mining issue and partly for the reason that most of the other business consisted of scattered sales of miscellaneous manufacturing stocks. National Fireproofing preferred broke back to a new current low on small offerings, the drop reflecting the recent passing of the dividend on that issue. Blaw Knox firmed up slightly, while Pittsburgh Screw and Bolt and May Drug Stores were steady and unchanged.

The fuel stocks were dull and showed no noticeable change in prices despite the upturns noted in some of the oil and gas issues on the "big board." During the afternoon the list broadened out somewhat but no price changes of importance developed.

CHICAGO BOARD

CHICAGO, Dec. 28.—(AP.)—Influenced by relative firmness of Liverpool wheat quotations and by unfavorable weather in the corn belt, grain prices tended upward early today. Buying, however, was chiefly of a scattering character. Opening at ⅛c to ⅜c higher, wheat later scored some additional gains. Corn started unchanged to ⅛c up and subsequently made a moderate general advance. Oats were firmer. Provisions inclined to sag.

Advices current today from a recognized trade authority said heavy European requirements for wheat during the winter and spring are confirmed and will have to be furnished from exporters supplies, which, however, are also large. According to this same source of information though the requirements may offset the available supplies unless Argentine shipments should prove to be of sufficient volume to overwhelm the buyers' market.

In addition to adverse weather likely to interfere with the movement of corn from rural districts, comparative smallness of receipts today at leading terminals gave considerable strength at times to the corn market. Corn arrivals at Chicago today were of only fair volume, 108 cars, and at Kansas City and Omaha were but 38 cars and 71 cars, respectively.

Through THREE GENERATIONS

THE Grandfathers of today's generation used The Union National Bank of Pittsburgh, and found its dependability a tower of strength; its friendship a real asset; its counsel a helpful aid.

The grandsons—men who today bulk large in the business and industrial life of Pittsburgh—find these same qualities inherent in the bank, and find them equally valuable.

NELLIE'S FLOWING HAND BRINGS FORGERY CHARGE

Christmas was good to Nellie Turner, Negro, 63, of 2846 Bedford avenue, but New Year's is on the wrong side of the calendar. Nellie was held for court in Morals Court today on a forgery charge. Police insist Nellie stole three Christmas savings fund checks amounting to $155 from mail boxes and allowed her penmanship to flourish on them.

COURT ALLOWS APPEAL FROM BOARD OF VIEWERS

Judge George V. Moore in Common Pleas Court granted a petition allowing an appeal from the board of viewers, to Emma Berryhill, 1535 Federal street extension. The petitioner alleged that her property had been damaged to the extent of $4,000 by the vacation of Federal lane, and the board of viewers did not allow her any damages.

Official—County 83

ALLEGHENY COUNTY, PA.,
DEPARTMENT OF PUBLIC WORKS.
Pittsburgh, Pa., December 28, 1927.
Separate and sealed proposals will be received at the office of the County Controller of Allegheny County, until 11:00 o'clock a. m. (Eastern Standard Time), Wednesday, January 4, 1927, and will be opened by the County Commissioners for the following improvement:
JOINT IMPROVEMENT.
U. S. AVIATION FIELD, SEWAGE DISPOSAL PLANT.
On U. S. Aviation Field (Rogers Field), in O'Hara township. For the installation of Septic Tanks, the construction and installation of inlet chamber, syphon chamber and appurtenances, together with sewers and a Tile Disposal Field.
Specifications, form of contract, instructions to bidders, proposal and blue print copies of letting plans may be viewed at the office of the Commissioners of Allegheny County.
Copies of the above data for use of bidders will be furnished upon application to the Contract Clerk in the Department of Public Works of Allegheny County, Room 104, 519 Smithfield street, Pittsburgh, Pa. Deposits in the amount of $5.00 each will be required for each set of blue print copies of the letting plans and specifications. Receipts for said deposit will be given and the money refunded upon return of the plans and specifications in good condition and without marking, within 10 days of the date bids are opened.
Proposals must be accompanied by a certified check for the amount fixed in the "Instructions to Bidders," as evidence that the bidder will accept and carry out the conditions of the contract in case of award.
The County Commissioners reserve the right to reject any or all bids.
CHAS. C. McGOVERN,
County Controller,
Allegheny County.

OFFICE OF THE CONTROLLER OF ALLEGHENY COUNTY.

USED CARS OF A BETTER TYPE

As Hupmobile Dealers, our trading policy is one of the most conservative in the industry. Thus, the used cars we offer represent exceptionally sound values based on the actual condition and worth of the cars themselves. We highly indorse the following used cars now on view at our Used Car Department:

1928 Hupp 6 Sedan	$1100	1924 Hupmobile Cl. Sed.	$375

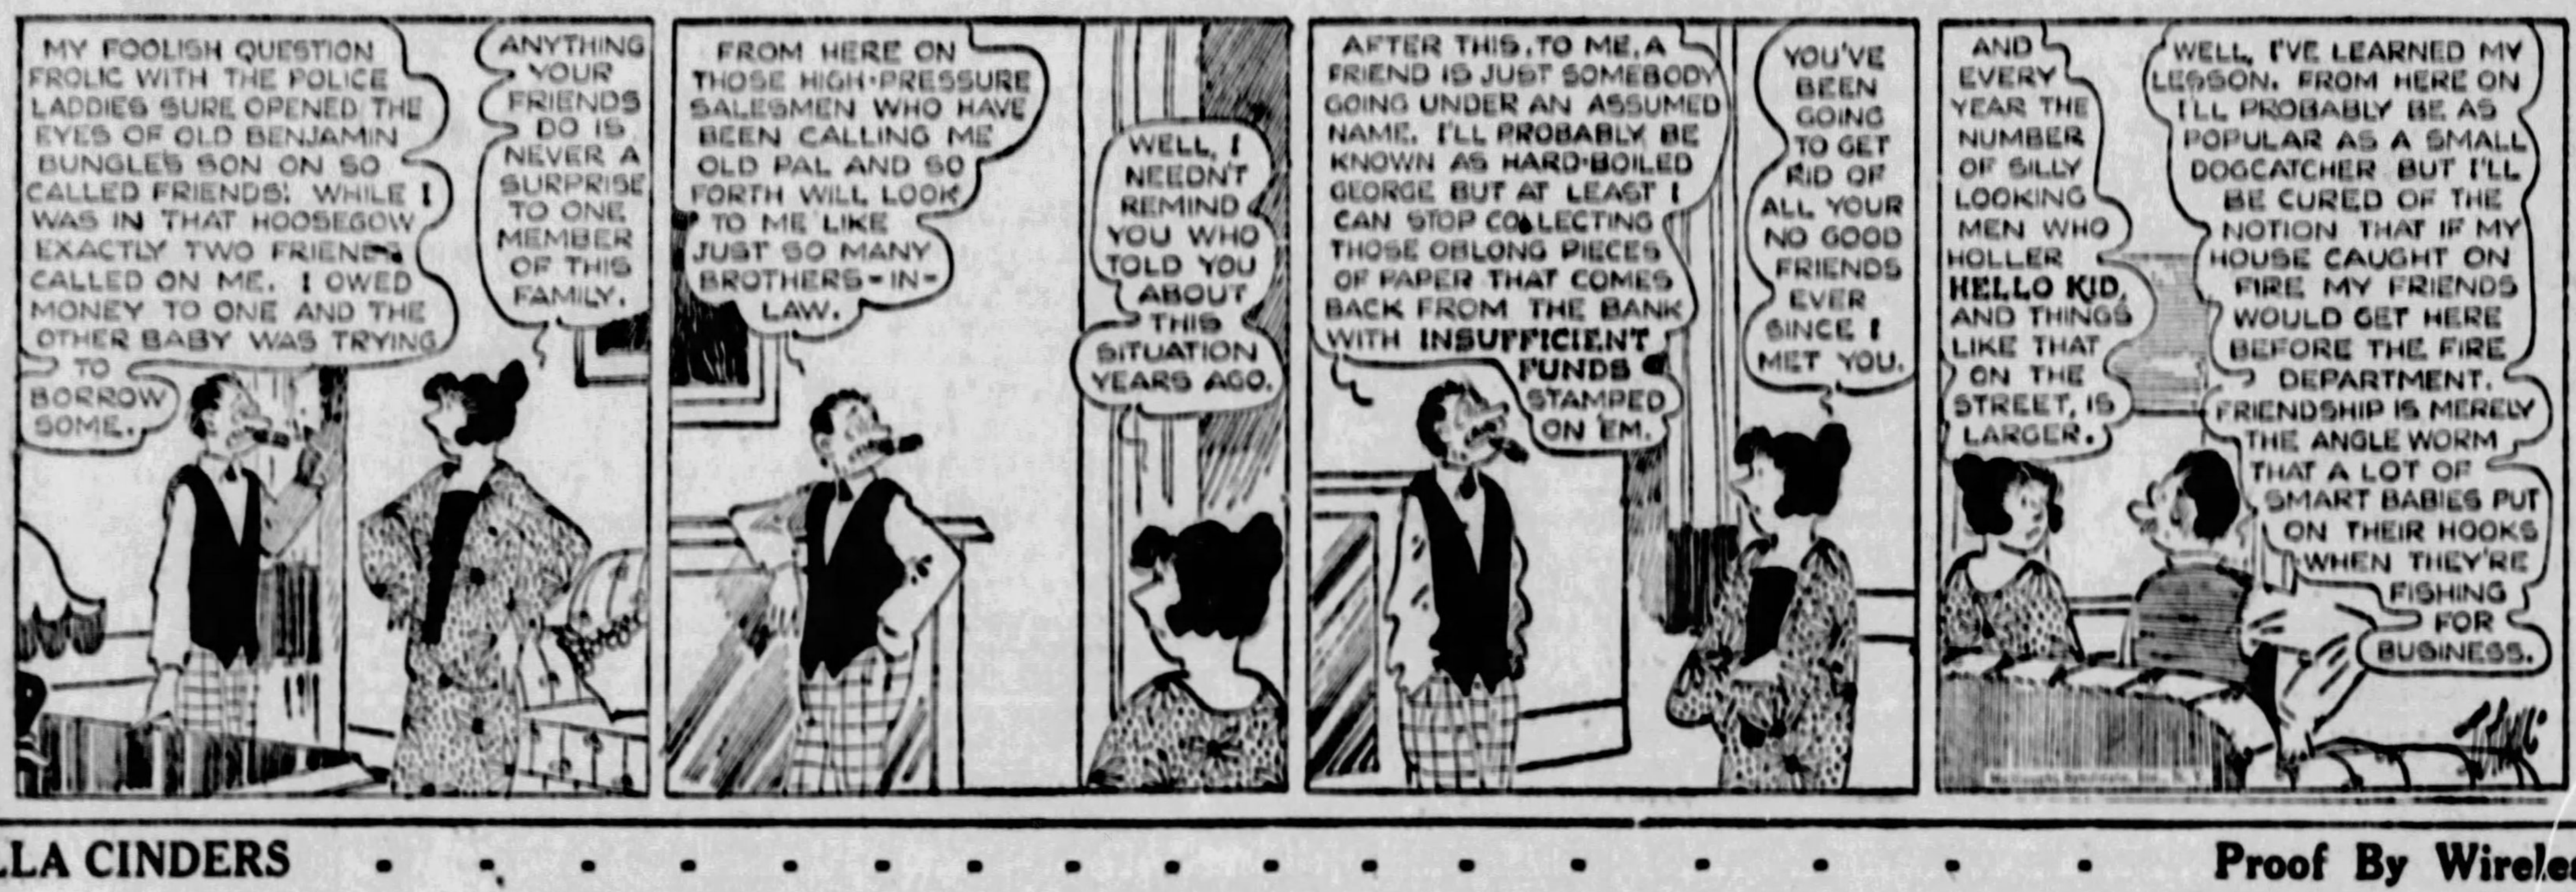
THE BUNGLE FAMILY

Lesson No. 999



MY FOOLISH QUESTION FROLIC WITH THE POLICE LADDIES SURE OPENED THE EYES OF OLD BENJAMIN BUNGLE'S SON ON SO CALLED FRIENDS. WHILE I WAS IN THAT HOOSEGOW EXACTLY TWO FRIENDS CALLED ON ME. I OWED MONEY TO ONE AND THE OTHER BABY WAS TRYING TO BORROW SOME.
ANYTHING YOUR FRIENDS DO IS NEVER A SURPRISE TO ONE MEMBER OF THIS FAMILY.
FROM HERE ON THOSE HIGH-PRESSURE SALESMEN WHO HAVE BEEN CALLING ME OLD PAL AND SO FORTH WILL LOOK TO ME LIKE JUST SO MANY BROTHERS-IN-LAW.
WELL, I NEEDN'T REMIND YOU WHO TOLD YOU ABOUT THIS SITUATION YEARS AGO.
AFTER THIS, TO ME, A FRIEND IS JUST SOMEBODY GOING UNDER AN ASSUMED NAME. I'LL PROBABLY BE KNOWN AS HARD-BOILED GEORGE BUT AT LEAST I CAN STOP COLLECTING THOSE OBLONG PIECES OF PAPER THAT COMES BACK FROM THE BANK WITH INSUFFICIENT FUNDS STAMPED ON 'EM.
YOU'VE BEEN GOING TO GET RID OF ALL YOUR NO GOOD FRIENDS EVER SINCE I MET YOU.
WELL, I'VE LEARNED MY LESSON. FROM HERE ON I'LL PROBABLY BE AS POPULAR AS A SMALL DOGCATCHER BUT I'LL BE CURED OF THE NOTION THAT IF MY HOUSE CAUGHT ON FIRE MY FRIENDS WOULD GET HERE BEFORE THE FIRE DEPARTMENT. FRIENDSHIP IS MERELY THE ANGLE WORM THAT A LOT OF SMART BABIES PUT ON THEIR HOOKS WHEN THEY'RE FISHING FOR BUSINESS.
AND EVERY YEAR THE NUMBER OF SILLY LOOKING MEN WHO HOLLER HELLO KID, AND THINGS LIKE THAT ON THE STREET, IS LARGER.

ELLA CINDERS

The man whose bumper bagged Ella—Asa Kadd's—turned out to be John Smith's business partner—or so he say's ....
MR. SMITH IS IN LONDON ON BUSINESS—IN HIS ABSENCE I AM EMPOWERED TO HANDLE ANY MATTERS OF INTEREST TO HIM. I THINK WE SHOULD GET TOGETHER ABOUT THIS RADIUM MAP! AND ISN'T THAT JUST WHERE WE ARE NOW?
IT'S ALL VERY WELL, BUT HOW DO I KNOW THAT YOU REALLY ARE JOHN SMITH'S PARTNER? YOU MAY BE AS STRAIGHT AS A WOODEN LEG—OR AS CROOKED AS A COWPATH!
MY LIFE IS AN OPEN PAGE FOR YOU TO READ—AND THERE ARE NO BLOTS ON IT, EITHER! LOOK ME UP—I'LL FURNISH CHARACTER, FINANCIAL, AND SOCIAL REFERENCES.
I HAVE IT! TOMORROW I'LL CALL JOHN BY TRANSATLANTIC WIRELESS TELEPHONE, AND YOU CAN TALK TO HIM YOURSELF. HE'S AT THE HOTEL MELFORD!
GREAT! SENDING MY VOICE TO EUROPE WILL BE ALMOST AS GOOD AS GOING ALONG MYSELF!
NOW WE'LL SEE! Maybe Kadd's is John Smith's partner!

THE FABLE OF THE REGULAR KIND OF PLACE
BOARDERS TAKEN
A TALL QUEEN WALKED INTO A BOARDING HOUSE WITH $1200 WORTH OF CLOTHES THAT FIT HER EVERYWHERE ALL THE TIME
SHE HAD A WATCH-ME KIND OF WALK, AND WHEN SHE CAME IN THE GRASS WIDOW CURLED UP LIKE AN AUTUMN LEAF.
THE MEN WERE GOOGLE-EYED—THE HELP RAN INTO CHAIRS, DROPPING IMPORTANT PARTS OF THE MENU
THEN THE LANDLADY ANNOUNCED THAT THE QUEEN WAS IN TOWN SHOPPING, AND HER HUSBAND WOULD BE UP ON THE NEXT TRAIN—FIVE MEN FELL UNDER THE TABLE!

FAMOUS LAST WORDS

If you don't mind, I'll slip off my shoes.

A PLEA THAT GOES STRAIGHT TO MISTER FRISBY'S HEART

Famous portrait, "Congressman Frisby in His Prime," which he has offered to Queen Marie of Rumania if she will let bygones be bygones.

Dear Mr. Frisby: In addition to the fearless stand you took in the drive to do your Christmas shipping early—why not urge your loyal followers to SEND their Christmas presents early, hereafter. This would eliminate the dissatisfaction caused by trying to exchange gifts around January 1st, and having a shopworn, picked over mess from which to make your selection.

If you will do this, Mr. Frisby, I promise to use my influence (and don't forget, that I am chairwoman of our Tuesday Forenoon Club) to swing the club in an entire body for you on election day. That is, I can swing the better element. But there are some of those women who won't listen to reason, and just to spite me would vote for McKinley or someone.

Yours for earlier and better Xmas Gifts,
Grayce Maye Donkes,

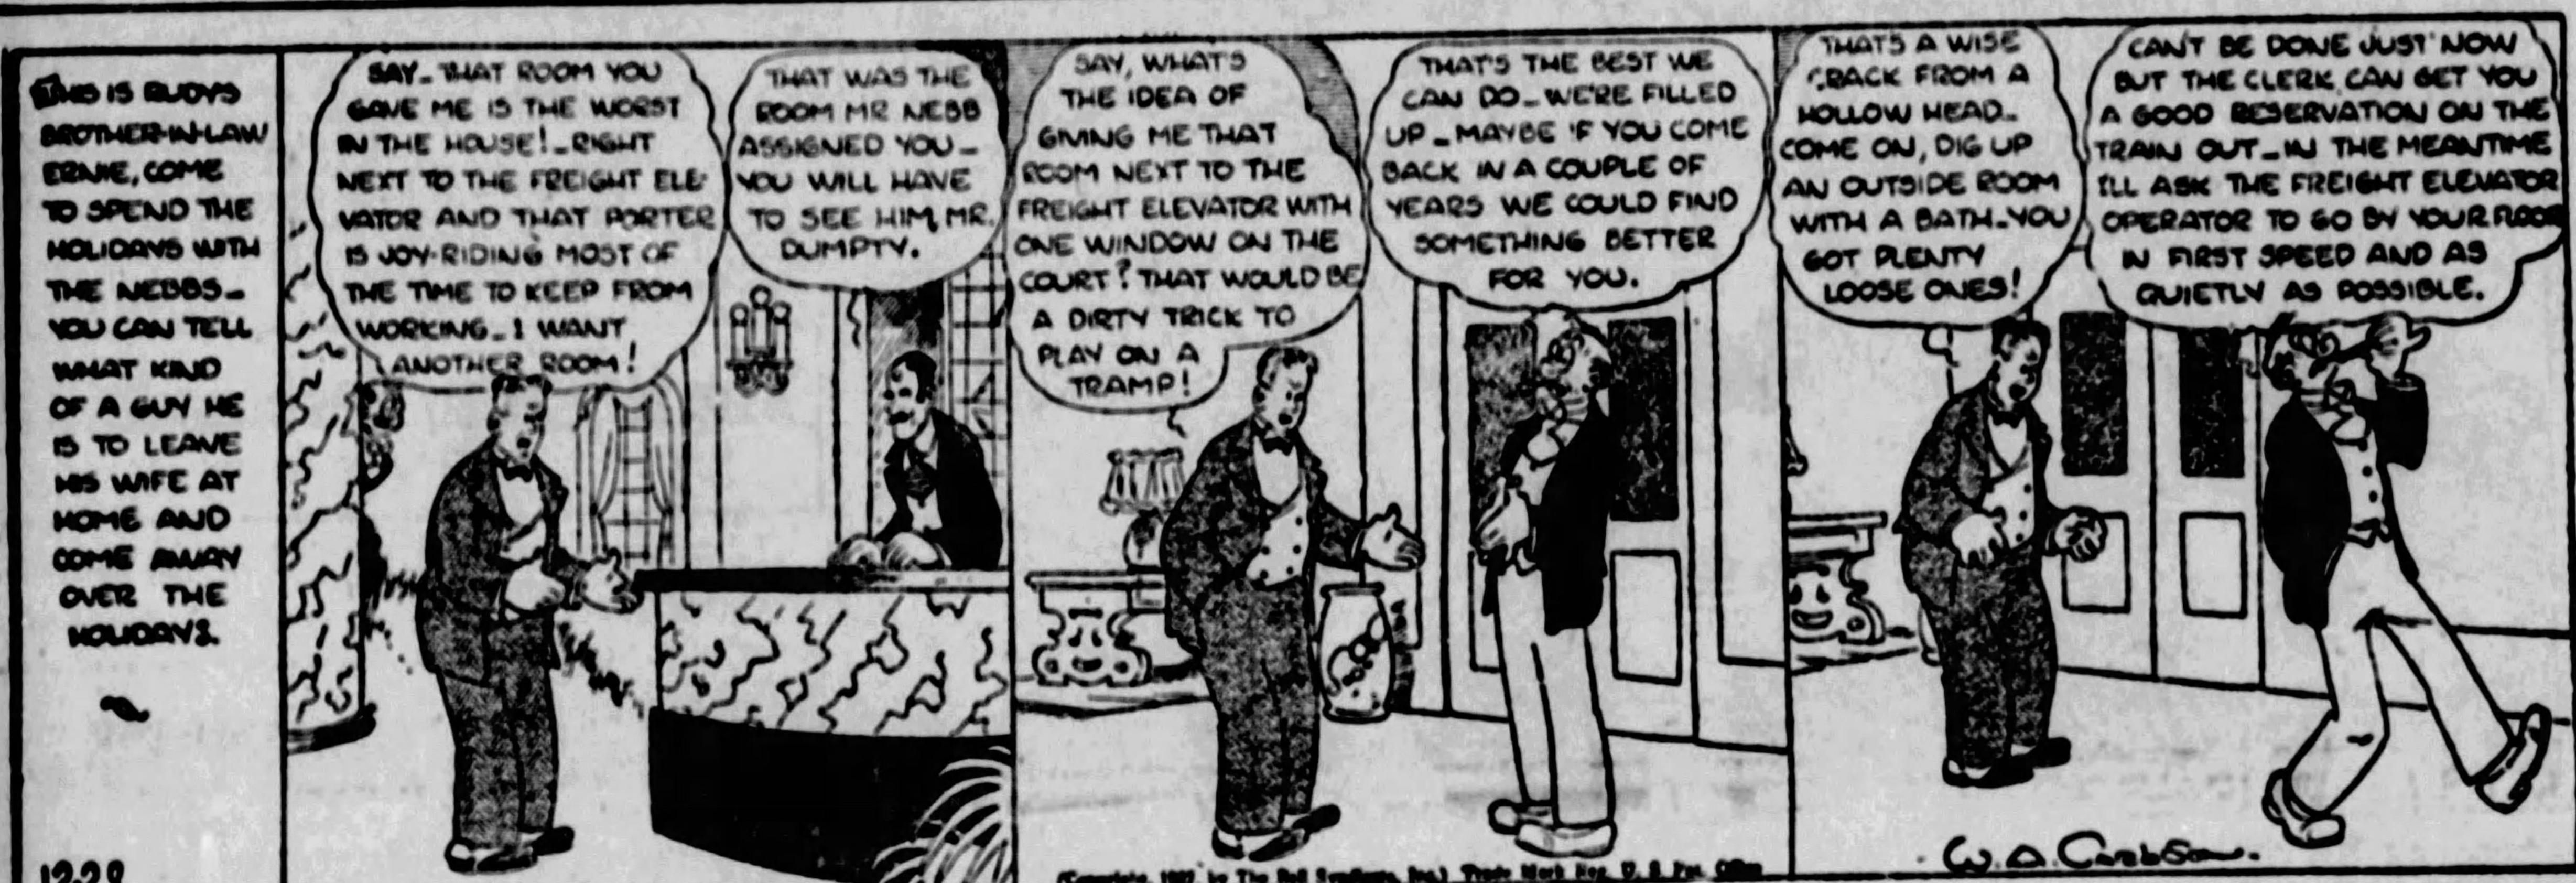
Nothing Is Too Good



THIS IS RUDY'S BROTHER-IN-LAW ERNIE, COME TO SPEND THE HOLIDAYS WITH THE NEBBS - YOU CAN TELL WHAT KIND OF A GUY HE IS TO LEAVE HIS WIFE AT HOME AND COME AWAY OVER THE HOLIDAYS.
SAY - THAT ROOM YOU GAVE ME IS THE WORST IN THE HOUSE! - RIGHT NEXT TO THE FREIGHT ELEVATOR AND THAT PORTER IS JOY-RIDING MOST OF THE TIME TO KEEP FROM WORKING - I WANT ANOTHER ROOM!
THAT WAS THE ROOM MR NEBB ASSIGNED YOU - YOU WILL HAVE TO SEE HIM, MR. DUMPTY.
SAY, WHAT'S THE IDEA OF GIVING ME THAT ROOM NEXT TO THE FREIGHT ELEVATOR WITH ONE WINDOW ON THE COURT? THAT WOULD BE A DIRTY TRICK TO PLAY ON A TRAMP!
THAT'S THE BEST WE CAN DO - WE'RE FILLED UP - MAYBE IF YOU COME BACK IN A COUPLE OF YEARS WE COULD FIND SOMETHING BETTER FOR YOU.
THAT'S A WISE CRACK FROM A HOLLOW HEAD - COME ON, DIG UP AN OUTSIDE ROOM WITH A BATH - YOU GOT PLENTY LOOSE ONES!
CAN'T BE DONE JUST NOW BUT THE CLERK CAN GET YOU A GOOD RESERVATION ON THE TRAIN OUT - IN THE MEANTIME I'LL ASK THE FREIGHT ELEVATOR OPERATOR TO GO BY YOUR FLOOR IN FIRST SPEED AND AS QUIETLY AS POSSIBLE.

BUGS BAER

Work's Dummy Resigns; Collier Out-Dumbs Him

By Arthur "Bugs" Baer

WORK'S Dummy: I have admired your articles. In fact, they are my main reason for reading the Police Gazette. You refer to yourself as the champion bridge dummy. You were a champion dummy at anything you ever started.

If you will translate this letter into intelligent statistics, you will discover that I am hurling a challenge at you to play me a game of double dummy—to be held in private in any public park that you are allowed to enter—for as much money as you can afford to owe—the money to be deposited with Mary Sampter and Eddie Deutsch—for safe keeping.

ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER.

For my kibbitzers and demonstrators I have selected Eddie O'Brien, Harry Akst and Will Mahoney. The game is to be played on the same night the bids are made. The playing cards are to be made by the American Tin Roofing Company as I hear you have the reputation of tearing up a dozen packs of cards a night.

Yours, for clean, amateur playing.
WILLIAM COLLIER.

This is the insult that straightens out the camel's back. If Mr. Collier is so good why did the Lotus Club give us a cane for Christmas while all he got was a Japanese shoe horn?

The game of double dummy is not enough. We must play four dummies or none. Collier's claim that the game is to be played on the night the bids are made is a violation of the rights of bridge players. We admit that we have made a mistake or two million, but we never yet have taken a quinine pill for a partner's headache.

We understand that Collier is only a Class B dummy. He will have to get dumber before he can challenge us. In spite of the fact that we have been Work's dummy for 20 years we feel that we do not get the respect due to our sunken condition.

Therefore, there will be no more bridge lessons given free to the public. After this, they will have to think up their own mistakes. From now on, we give up the fourth hand at bridge and play the first hand at the morning waffles.

THIS IS THE LAST OF A SERIES OF UNINTERESTING ARTICLES ON BRIDGE WRITTEN BECAUSE IT WAS EASY AND DIDN'T REQUIRE ANY THINKING BY ARTHUR BUGS BAER. THE EDITOR GOT AFTER HIM AND SAID, "IF YOU WANT A VACATION, DON'T SPEND IT WRITING."

"You Said It, Marceline!"

By MARCELINE d'ALROY

ON "THE STONE WALLS OF MATRIMONY"

Many PEOPLE have so LITTLE
To think of they just Can't stand themselves
ALONE. So they FALL in LOVE. Of course, to Fall in love is EASY,
But to LOVE—ah! that's Different! When two PEOPLE
Love too YOUNG they often
Imagine MARRIAGE is a
ROSY path off the hard Road
Of LIFE, that will LEAD them
Ultimately to JOY and Happiness; so, BLINDED by
The VISION, they rush
HEADLONG up the lane.
Some find HAPPINESS,
Not because it was WAITING
For them, but because they BROUGHT it with them.
But often, the rosy PATH of Marriage ends
In a STONE wall of INDIFFERENCE, compromise
Or RESIGNATION. It seems,
Finally, all HUSBANDS become WALLS of some kind to
Their wives. Then FOOLISH wives
Beat against them and Only HURT THEMSELVES.
But CLEVER women always know
How to get ROUND them.

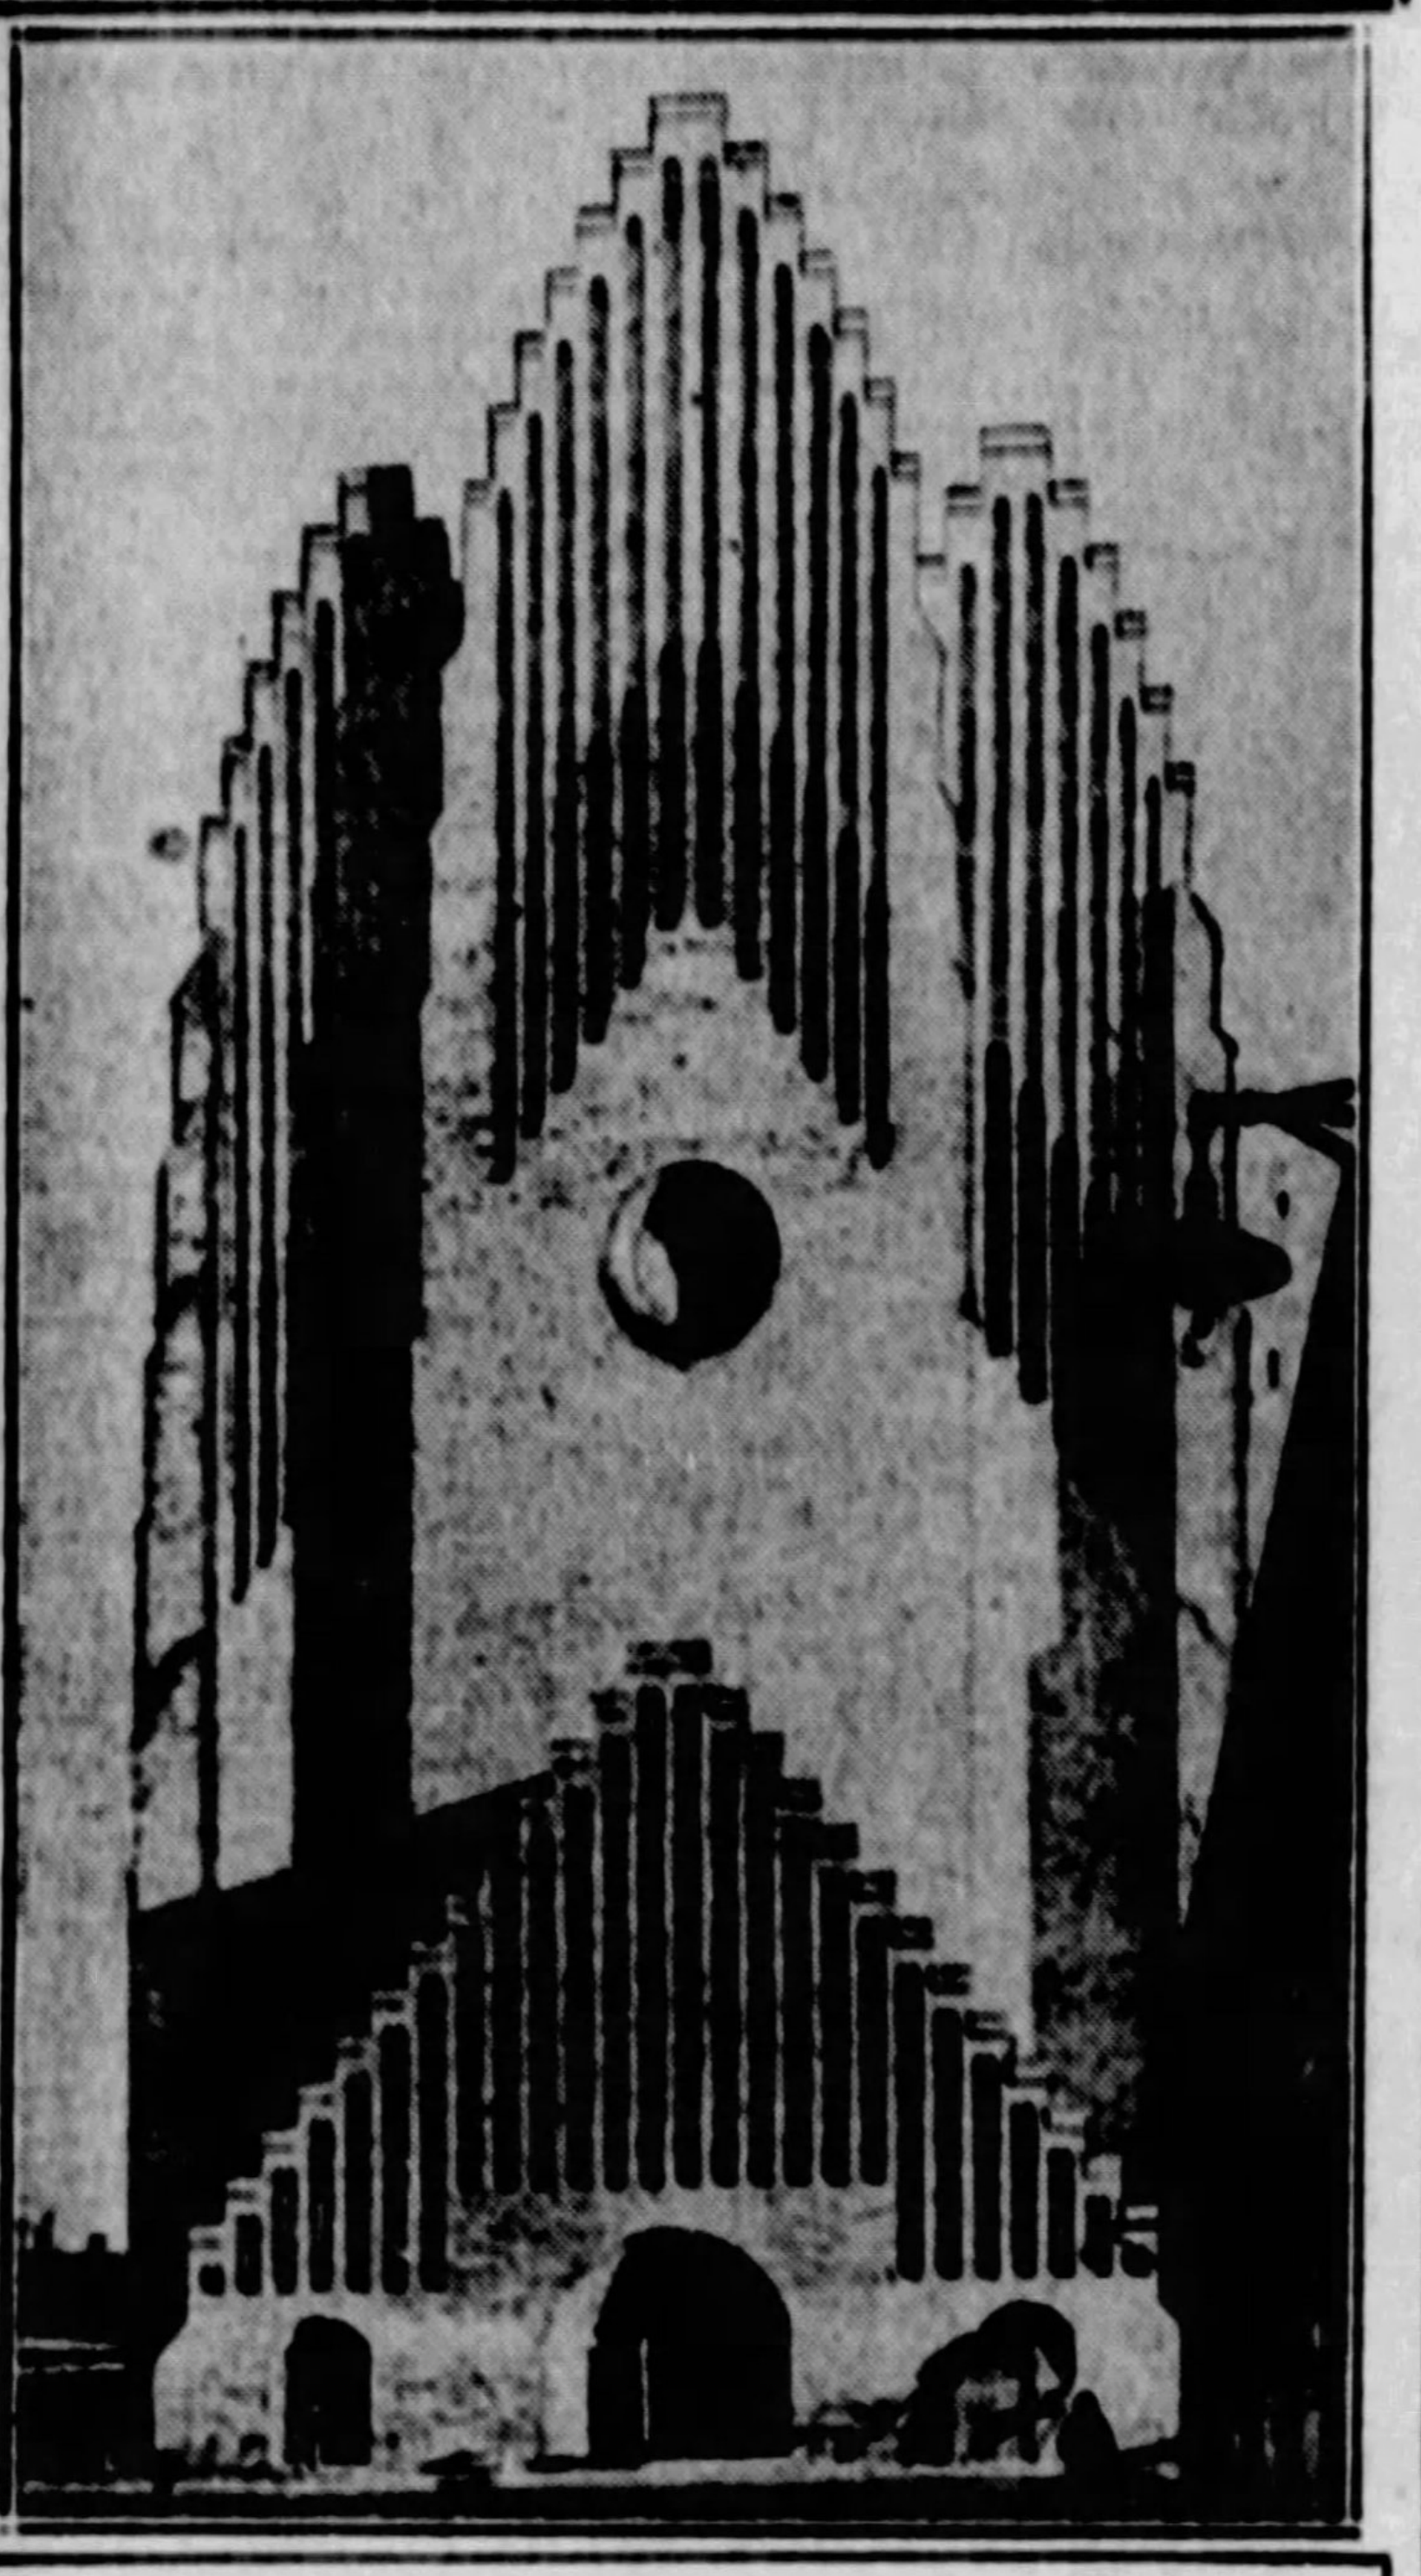
A Church Like an Organ

What OTHER Design Would You Suggest?



A NEW DANISH CHURCH OF STRANGE DESIGN.

These are days of architectural novelties, cubistic art, towering skyscrapers, crouching bungalows, strange Einstein sculpture.

And this is one of the most striking architectural novelties, built in Copenhagen, Denmark.

It is a church made to resemble a great organ. The door is at the bottom of the organ, and the pipes form a sort of church spire.

Perhaps it will impress those that worship, making them feel that they have entered the very spirit and temple of sacred music.

It will certainly interest the children that see it, and those that like strange things.

If this fashion should spread, many interesting designs for church facades may be devised. What would be YOUR selection?

Would you suggest a church made in imitation of a huge angel with spreading wings, the entrance to the church being between the feet of the angel? Or perhaps a church to look like a pair of gates 200 feet high, symbolical of the gates of heaven?

Or would you prefer something more striking, a representation of Abraham's bosom, with Lazarus sitting there, very contented, and a suggestion that churchgoers might also make that trip? You might even have a church shaped like a Christmas tree. Many possibilities, once novelty takes.

However, the old-fashioned church, its steeple pointing to all parts of the sky, as the earth turns around, satisfies the majority.

We Know the Automobile

Soon We'll Know About Airplane

Colorado proposes to give Chicago, Detroit, San Diego and other cities a race for the country's aviation championship.

Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Humphries, of Denver, decide that an airplane is the thing for traveling, and their Fokker-Universal airplane, especially arranged for high altitude flying with a 425-horsepower motor, flew from New York to Denver in 18 flying hours.

There is nothing BUT "high flying" in Colorado for when you are on the ground you are already eight or ten thousand feet up.

Nobody could imagine what automobiles would do for local transportation. We know NOW.

Nobody can imagine what flying machines will do in long-distance transportation.

But we SHALL know in a few years. In winter some will fly from Denver for sea baths at Miami, others will fly to San Diego or New Orleans. Those with a week to spare will fly over to the Lido, on the Adriatic, where the ladies of Europe sit on the beach in their queerly spelled pyjamas. We shall all fly soon.

More Speed for Boats

They Would Need It in War

Princess Xenia, married to a rich young American, William B. Leeds, traveled 63 miles an hour in a speedboat 38 feet long. She hopes, waves consenting, to go from New York to San Francisco by water in six days. That might cause railroad management to speed up a little.

Boat building is almost as backward as farming, so far as science goes. The speed of Mrs. Leeds' little 38-foot boat is increased from 47 to 63 miles an hour by the use of a horizontal duralumin plane six feet long, four feet wide, attached to the boat at the stern, a few inches below the water line.

Johannes Plum, Danish inventor of the speed-giving "flake," thinks it can be used on small war vessels. They will need it when, in REAL war, they meet airplanes going 300 miles an hour.

Men Dislike Killing

1,000 Zlotys Per Hanging

Dislike of the death penalty spreads gradually over the earth. Men no longer enjoy killing other men, "just for the fun of it," at least in Western countries. When men from the North captured Rome they threw women and the children out of the windows to hear the noise they made, torturing men to make them confess where they had hidden their wealth. Some savages still enjoy killing, torturing. Civilized men do not.

Now Poland abolishes shooting as a death penalty because soldiers object to being made executioners. Even hangmen don't LIKE their job, and, looking around for new hangmen, Poland raises the fee for each hanging from 100 to 1,000 zlotys, or about $112.50.

Garrett P Serviss Says:

What Is a Comet?

FOR some weeks past a comet has been visible in the evening sky. It came up out of the southern hemisphere, having been seen first from Australia. It is already receding. It will be catalogued on earth as "Skjellerup's comet." If the people of some other planet see it they will name it for one of their own star-gazers. What home-bodies, what little provincials, we must seem to a great traveler like a comet, who sees all the worlds, and sees them gazing at him, and finds none worth stopping for!

We have already furnished one definition of a comet—it is a wanderer among the planets that has rendezvous with the sun. Yet it must be wary of going too near the sun; some that have done so have suffered for it. To the comet planets seem galley slaves, circling prisoners, in their almost unchanging rounds, while it gayly and freely crosses their paths and flings out its splendid 10,000,000-mile tail as if to astonish or mock them or make them afraid—and the last it often does.

This animistic view of comets prevailed for thousands of years, before astronomy took the place of astrology. Even Kepler, it has been written, "seems to have been more than half disposed to consider them as living beings, traveling through space with will and purpose."

But what definition does science give? This is the substance of it: Comets are swarms of probably solid particles, mostly very small, like marbles in size, mingled perhaps with dust and gases, and scattered so widely that their mean density per cubic mile is but a minute fraction of that of our atmosphere. But there may be, in some comets, much larger particles, though always the density of the swarm as a whole is slight.

Such a swarm constitutes the comet's "head" or "coma," which includes about all there is of the comet, since the tail is of tenuity almost inconceivable. In the center of the head there is usually a small nucleus more dense than the coma, but still probably never a single, solid mass.

The diameter of the heads of large comets averages about 80,000 miles; that of their nuclei is but a few hundred miles. The comets all travel around the sun, like the planets, but their orbits, through conic section curves, differ from those of the planets in eccentricity and in position. They are not confined near the plane of the planetary orbits, but are inclined to it in various angles, and many of the comets travel around the sun in a direction opposite to that common to all the planets.

As a comet approaches the sun, or the turning point of its orbit near the sun, its head begins to be agitated by forces excited by the sun, which cause the coma to expand, while spouts or fountains of brilliant shining matter are emitted on the side toward the sun, and then curved backward, as if driven by a great wind, to form a tail many millions of miles in length, which streams out away from the sun and in a direction backward with reference to the comet's advance in its orbit.

It is believed that the tail consists mainly of fine particles, not more than a hundred-thousandth of an inch in diameter, which are driven away in opposition to the sun's gravitation by the pressure of the light-waves from the sun, so that the sun has a double action upon the comet, drawing it ahead in its orbit by gravitational attraction, but at the same time driving off the minute particles that emanate from its head.

There are at least two instances known—one in 1861, the other in 1910—when the tail of a comet swept over the earth. On each occasion luminous phenomena were remarked, but no physical effect was produced upon the earth, or upon its atmosphere, or upon its inhabitants. There are reasons to believe that in the aeons of the past comets have occasionally hit the earth with their heads, but what the effect of such a collision must be left to conjecture. Only in case the comet consisted of particles of large mass is it likely that any serious damage would be done. It has been calculated that the nucleus of a comet should hit the earth about once in an average interval of eighty million years! Let us not be afraid.

Helping to Save

A WIFE cannot be blamed for anger when she sees her husband spending liberally when out with a crowd and she knows that he is stingy so far as she is concerned.

Often the man who is insistent upon paying the hotel check and the theater tickets outside, is the one who makes the most fuss when his family asks him for money.

Frequently such a man, when he comes to figure up, realizes that his income will not cover his necessities because he has been so liberal in pleasures that flatter his vanity.

There must be a cut somewhere, so he makes it at home.

Then there are wives who will not join with their husbands in a real, honest-to-goodness saving plan—but they are few and far between.

Rightfully they object to being scolded for spending money in the home or for the family when they know the many dollars spent foolishly by their husbands.

Most men will find an honest desire on the part of the women members of a household to make substantial savings, but the joy of saving is lost when one side must do all the work alone.

The Rhyming Optimist

By ALINE MICHAELIS

The Best of Life

"THE best of life has passed me by,"
Some sigh in pain and grief,
"For youth was best, when hope was high;
But youth was all too brief."

"The best of life is yet to be,"
Another thought asserts,
"And some tomorrow's dawn will see Each gain his just deserts."

But not in any yesterday
Nor yet in unborn hours
Lies all life's best. It is today
That holds all strength, all powers.

The here and now are all man needs
To win in worldly strife,
To reap bright joys, to sow good deeds;
Today, the best of life!

Isn't It So?

The more henpecked a man is the more he crows when he is away from home.

Tales that are Told

The Color Clue

FIVE men were in a first-class non-smoking compartment in a somewhat crowded train. One of them asked permission to smoke, explaining that he had not been able to secure a seat in a smoker.

Three of the others promptly agreed and pulled out their own pipes, but the fifth strenuously protested against any smoking. The others, however, claiming they were four to one, lit up in spite of his protests that he would call the guard at the first stop, which he did.

The guard hesitated, unwilling to displease his passengers, and yet recognizing his duty, when the first man said:—

"I have reason to believe that this man who is complaining is traveling in a first-class compartment with a third-class ticket."

The guard, relieved at this possible solution of his difficulty, demanded to see his ticket, which in spite of protests he was compelled to show. It proved to be a third-class one. He was unceremoniously bundled out of the train, and the others continued their smoke in peace.

"That was a clever piece of work," said one. "How did you guess he had a third-class ticket?"

"Well," replied the other, "I happened to see him put it into his pocket and noticed it was the same color as mine."—London Tit-Bits.

Just in Time

THE Lord Mayer's Show was passing through the city, and a party had obtained seats in a shop window. The window was old-fashioned, and consisted of a number of small panes.

After a few hours' waiting the atmosphere became stuffy. One of the party suggested that a few of the panes should be broken to admit fresh air, and that everyone should contribute towards payment for the damage done.

All agreed except one man, who refused to pay a farthing. It was decided to dispense with his contribution, and the window was smashed

As soon as the first pane fell out, the mean one pushed his head through the opening and exclaimed: "Thank goodness! In another minute I should have been suffocated!"—London Tit-Bits.

Made Him Good

When the show was over and the parents returned they discovered a tear-stained Bob in bed and a brooding Victor watching him.

"Goodness me, Bobbie, what is the matter?" asked the mother.

"I hit him," said Victor.

"You hit Bobbie?" cried the horrified father.

"Yes," declared Victor, "and I kicked him once or twice, too."

"But whatever for?" wailed the woman. "What could he have done?"

Victor looked very righteous

"He wouldn't say his prayers; but I made him."

First-Aid For Travellers

THEY were both commercial travelers and were waiting for the same train, when one turned to the other.

"What's the strange label you've got pasted on that bag of yours, old man?" he asked.

"Ah," returned the other, "it's a new idea! Here's a similar one. I had a lot printed before I left home. Read it."

The questioner took the slip of paper and read it aloud:

"'While a trunk was being handled carelessly at a railway station recently, it exploded and seriously injured a porter.'" He finished and looked up.

"Have a few?" asked the other man, putting his hand in his pocket. "You'll find them very useful!"

New York Day by Day

by O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—The New York night club is a great social leveler. And a study in social contrasts. The rich roue and the scarlet sister sit cheek by jowl with the silk-stockinged youth and the debutante daughter. If one doesn't like it, he may, well, lump it.

Night club financing comes chiefly from the underworld although there are, of course, a number of respectable clubs. Bootlegging criminals make a killing, rent a cellar, hire a jazz orchestra and lo! a rendezvous that breaks down social barriers.

One sees Harry Thaw at a table. The Duchess Soandso at another. A pomaded South American gigolo. The dancing star of a music show. A scarred gunman with his moll. Philandering husbands with dizzy blondes inviting blackmail. Bluebloods, gleaners, racketeers, and such.

The night clubs are geared to such seductiveness that people who would hesitate to be seen in a second-class but respectable restaurant have no compunction about mingling and rubbing elbows with riff-raff who have often made murder a fine art.

The clubs are supposed to close not later than 3 a. m., but they do not really snap into high speed until that hour. Customers stream out to their taxicabs at sun-up and must go to Reuben's for breakfast before calling it a night.

Early workers are so used to seeing men and women in evening clothes they do not even turn their heads. But doubtless at times it turns their stomachs. The strange thing is these night clubbers fear to snatch a wink of sleep before going to their offices.

Bootleg sleep is most profound and so they go through the day with heavy heads and burning thirsts. There is, incidentally, one rich bachelor whose diary shows he spent 250 nights out of the year in night clubs. And he is still carrying on.

One of the new rich has a neat conceit on his visiting card. It is an engraving of his yacht.

Unvarnished bunk from a chain restaurant menu—urging vegetarian diets because there is little profit in meat any more. It says: "Life may be prolonged to even 200 years by biological living, the first requirement of which is to eat freely of fruits and vegetables."

* * *

Literary lights who decided in the first flush of success they could collect royalties and do their work in Europe are flocking back again and many are holding their hats and admiring the walls in editorial waiting rooms. Selling writing is little different from selling groceries. It requires personal contact.

* * *

From a cafe in Fifty-seventh street a couple emerged and hailed a taxi. A blundering bus boy rushed out and cried: "Lady, you dropped this out of your bag." He handed her a hypodermic needle.

* * *

The bobbed wigs of various hues which gained such popularity a year ago are seldom noted these days. The etiquette concerning them was always puzzling. Is one supposed to say "What a pretty wig you are wearing!" or regard it as natural hair?

* * *

As one who once tried gallantly to brush what resembled a bread crumb from a strange lady's arm at a dinner party only to discover it was a mole, it seems the safest procedure for a clod hopper in any gathering is to keep your hands in your pockets, and try to achieve the silent dignity of a clam.

The Right to Responsibility

By DR. FRANK CRANE

I came across a phrase the other day that intrigued me. It was "The right to responsibility."

This is one of the most necessary and invaluable rights of a human being. It is the one of which many youth are deprived by mistaken mothers.

The mother is likely to want to save her offspring from any trouble. So she picks up after the girl who makes a mess with her playthings on the floor and she steps in to intervene between her son and the consequences of his wrong deeds.

Consequences of an unpleasant nature are the means nature uses in teaching people. Everybody needs to know that doing a wrong act brings punishment. If he does not learn this he misses a great deal and is laying up trouble for himself in the future.

The way a child learns to take care of himself is to have his fingers burned on the hot stove and to stub his toes and bump his nose. If somebody else steps in and takes the burned fingers and nose bump in his stead he is deprived of a very useful lesson and something he ought to know.

Every one has a right to responsibility.

Responsibility is not only a burden to be borne, it is a lesson to be learned. It is a great mistake to step in between a person and the legitimate consequences of his own misdeeds.

It is hard for a father to let his son get into difficulty because of his pranks and to see him compelled to pay for his evil deeds, but it is much better for the father to restrain himself and hold back his generous impulses and let his son suffer in order that the son may learn that it doesn't pay to do wrong.

This world is very nicely adjusted in its scheme of cause and effect and sooner or later the wrongdoer gets what is coming to him. He ought to get it. That bitter experience is the thing that enables him to learn. A boy learns more from the rough blows he receives on the playground than he does from the kind words he receives from the teacher.

Capital punishment or corporal punishment may be an undue extreme and if used at all tought to be used with great discretion, but short of those extreme measures one ought to be allowed to suffer for his own evils.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Life Moves in Waves

JACK LONG is worried about himself. He graduated from college three years ago, all set to conquer the world. Since then he has drifted into and out of a dozen jobs. Can't seem to find anything that suits him. Always starts a job under a full head of enthusiasm then cools, and is soon actually rebelious.

"Of course, there's no use staying on a job when you feel like that about it," says Jack. "But I'm certainly getting discouraged. I'm beginning to think that there's something wrong with me. Why can't I stick, like some fellows—"

Jack's sister is bothered with the same problem. It isn't a job in her case—it's marriage. She has tried it twice—failed both times.

"Why can't I stay in love the way most women do," she wails. "There must be something lacking in me—"

There's something lacking in either Jack or his sister. They have simply not discovered the fundamental law of life—

LIFE MOVES IN WAVES.

Heights of growth—depths of inaction—crests of enthusiasm—troughs of apathy.

Look at the earth about you. Life, in that earth, moves in waves. Summer and winter—day and night—work and rest. That is the law of the earth. That is the law of man. Life moves in waves through our experience, as well as through the experience of a tree. That is true not only of business adjustments—it is true of all human expression. We love in waves. Warmth—indifference—warmth again. We create beauty in waves. Expression—depression—expression. Heights—depths—

We're willing to accept those heights—eager to gain them. But we're not as willing to accept the depths. Yet the depths are as natural and inevitable as the heights. Rest is as necessary as action. Boredom is not a sign of failure. It's the other side of enthusiasm—the REST side.

Mary Austin speaks of this in her new book, "Everyman's Genius."

"Merely to be dissatisfied with your environment of the moment is not sufficient to warrant you in discarding it as not experienceable, since phases of dislike, of positive antagonism, are part of the rhythm of acquaintance. Where love is blind, hate often sees clearly, and pain is an excellent educator."

The Rhythm of Acquaintance—the Rhythm of Adjustment—

Survey your own life in the light of that new thought, partner. Haven't you passed up some big chances because you wouldn't accept the DOWN SIDE OF THE WAVE?

Diet and Peace

PROF. FRIEDBERGER, noted German hygienist and savant, says that raw meat and slightly cooked foods will result in a gain of weight by the eaters thereof.

Few women, however, will desire to make prize fighters out of their husbands. Hence they will stick to the old cook book. Raw meat and domestic felicity do not travel hand in hand. And now that women have just succeeded in handling their husbands properly, why change the diet!
